DICKINSON SEES AAA AS G. O. P. VICTORY LADDER

Cites Defects; Offers Substitute Plan.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mason City, Ia., Oct. 31.—[Special.] —I am privileged to present herewith the first outline of a constructive Republican farm policy enunciated by a recognized authority on the farm problem who may be the Republican candidate for president next year.

The author of this proposed policy is United States Senator Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa, one of the half dozen outstanding leaders in the party who are figuring most prominently today in discussion of the choice of a nominee to pit against President Roosevelt.

Upon no phase of the New Deal is the attitude of the Republican party likely to be of more fateful import than upon the Roosevelt program of farm relief embodied in the AAA.

May Hold Key to G. O. P. Victory.

The Democratic AAA is popular with the farmers in the traditionally Republican west. It is entirely possible that the result of the presidential election will be determined in this farming region. So thoroughly is this recognized that the party strategists are looking to the west for a candidate who commands the confidence of the farmers and calling upon the best minds in the party to evolve an agricultural economic program more beneficial to the farmers in the long run than the AAA.

As the question presents itself to Senator Dickinson, the course of the Republican party is clear. It will be shaped by the approaching decision of the Supreme court on the constitutionality of the AAA. If the AAA be held constitutional, the Republicans should offer a program to remedy its defects. If it be held unconstitutional, the Republicans should propose a substitute.

Farm Aid Hinges on Financing.

"This whole discussion," said Senator Dickinson as he gazed out of the hotel window toward the smokeless chimney of a packing plant shut down for lack of hogs to slaughter, "this whole discussion has turned, up to date, on the assumption that the AAA is to be permitted to carry on. But if it is to be permitted to carry on, the big question will be how it is to be financed. The revenue from processing taxes is declining. While the benefits paid to farmers already total 1 billion 700 million dollars, only about 900 millions have been collected from processing taxes. The other 800 millions have come out of the treasury, out of the pockets of taxpayers.

"This enormous falling off in the revenue from processing taxes is due only in part to injunctions against the collection of such taxes granted by the courts. It is due, to a greater extent, to a reduction in the volume of processing. All over this farming country you will find packing plants shut down or running at 50 per cent capacity or less because there are so few hogs to be processed. Of course that means an increase of unemployment in such packing towns.

Points Out AAA Defects.

"With processing tax revenue declining, the question of financing the AAA becomes acute. It is going to be impossible to get congress to appropriate funds from the federal treasury to pay benefits to farmers under the AAA program. Here you put your finger unquestionably on a fundamental defect of the AAA.

"The economics of the AAA are faulty to begin with. Think of paying the farmers one year for crops they don't raise and then paying them the next year to raise the crops they didn't raise the year before. It just doesn't make sense. And the farmers have not actually benefited from the economic scheme represented by the AAA. In the case of cotton the assistance loan caused the government to invest heavily in the commodity; otherwise a price collapse would have been certain. In the case of corn and hogs it was the drouth that benefited the producers."

"What do you propose should be done about it?" I asked the senator.

Defects Must Be Remedied.

"Just this," he replied, emphasizing his points with fist thumping the arm of his chair. "If the Supreme court holds that the AAA is within the confines of the constitution, the Republican party, in my opinion,

CHICAGO AND BIG EASTERN CITIES FEEL TREMORS

Two Die as Montana Is Jolted Again.

Earthquake shocks early today were felt in all the states east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and in Ontario and Quebec. The series of temblors followed by about twelve hours a terrific quake which rocked an area of 500 square miles in the vicinity of Helena, Mont., killing two persons, injuring scores, and causing damage estimated at five million dollars.

In Chicago the tremors were felt by hundreds of persons on the north and south sides. The shocks were particularly heavy in Evanston. Milton O. Swenson, junior meteorologist for the weather bureau, examined the seismograph at the University of Chicago and discovered that there had been one heavy temblor immediately after midnight and a series of slighter ones extending over a period of more than an hour.

Epicenter 475 Miles Northeast.

Mr. Swenson's charts showed that the first shock was at 1:05 a. m. It was indicated on the seismograph, he said, that the epicenter of the quake was at a point about 475 miles east or northeast of Chicago. The Dominion Meteorological bureau at Toronto was of the opinion that an earth fault north of the St. Lawrence river was the cause of the slipping.

Among the cities in which residents were alarmed by having dishes shattered, pictures shaken from the walls, and plaster loosened from ceilings were New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Toronto, Montreal, and Cleveland.

From the reports coming in before 2 a. m. it appeared that the force of the quake along the seaboard and in western New York was greater than in the middle west. All over New England inhabitants reported they were thrown from their beds. The same reports were received from towns in New Jersey.

Danger Slight, Says Seismologist.

A somewhat reassuring view of the phenomenon was taken by the Rev. J. J. Lynch, seismologist at Fordham university, New York. He said the temblors were of the surface variety, capable of shaking and breaking dishes and of frightening householders, but unlikely to cause any serious damage.

In New York many persons declared they had been shaken from their beds. Large buildings of the skyscraper type were swayed, it was said. In the Chicago loop the tremors were hardly perceptible.

In many of its manifestations the quake furnished those who felt it with a puzzle. In Brooklyn and in the Long Island suburbs of New York the police stations and newspaper offices were deluged with calls from persons demanding to know whether there had been an explosion. At Jamaica, Long Island, one man reported he had been tossed out of a chair.

Furniture Upset in Ontario.

Toronto reported that over a large part of Ontario furniture had been overturned in houses. At Ann Arbor, Mich., the shocks were so strong that the seismograph at the University of Michigan was put out of operation. The heaviest tremor was at 12:08 a. m., Chicago time.

No shocks were felt in the south except along the seaboard. Baltimore and Wilmington, Del., had their share of the temblors. In the Allegheny region, Fairmont, W. Va., was apparently the farthest south point affected.

Telephone operators all over the area affected declared they were "almost thrown from our switchboards." Among the towns with shaken operators were Allentown and Reading, Pa.; South Bend, and Fort Wayne, Ind.

Flee to Streets in Albany.

In Elmira and Albany, N. Y., and in Towanda, Pa., the inhabitants were so frightened that they fled to the streets. One of the cities to the south that was greatly affected was Dayton, O.

Twelve houses in Sackett street, Brooklyn, N. Y., were declared unsafe by city building officials after the quake had driven the occupants to

Shoots Chinese Premier and 3 Other Officials

BY C. Y. M'DANIELS.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS FOREIGN STAF.]

NANKING, Nov. 1 [Friday].—(AP)—Premier Wang Ching Wei of China was critically wounded today in an attempted assassination.

The assailant was a Chinese believed to be a sympathizer of the Cantonese faction. He was killed, but it could not be ascertained at once whether he died by his own hand or by others.

As a result of the shooting Premier Wang Chieng Wei lies near death in the Central hospital and his trusted adviser, Tseng Chun Min, vice minister of the interior for railways, is also near death.

Martial Law Is Declared.

The two other wounded officials are Chang Chi, former president of the judicial yuan, and Kan Hai Kuang, chief of the political bureau of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek and vice minister of the interior.

Martial law was declared in Nanking immediately following the attempted assassination.

I saw the shooting, which took place while members of the central executive committee of the Kuomintang were assembling outside the party meeting hall for a photographer who was to take a group picture.

Suddenly a Chinese standing among a group of spectators about 35 feet from Wang opened fire on the premier with a pistol.

How many of the bullets struck Wang was not learned, but at least four found their mark in Chun. Both collapsed.

Return Fire of Assailant.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek with other prominent officials immediately joined the bodyguard in forming a protective shield about the fallen men. They returned the fire of Wang's assailant.

About 150 spectators, mostly Kuomintang members, scrambled wildly for safety.

The wounded were rushed to the hospital, while a nearby body found at the scene was tentatively identified as that of the assassin.

Keep Assassin's Name Secret.

Police did not reveal the identity of the assassin, but it was generally believed he was a member of the Cantonese faction which has long been critical of the premier's asserted pro-Japanese attitude.

The assassin was not a member of the committee, but gained entrance to the closely guarded meeting grounds as a newspaper man.

Despite the consternation following the shooting, government leaders decided to continue the committee meetings with Finance Minister H. H. Kung acting for Wang as chairman of the executive yuan.

Wang, as minister of foreign affairs and chairman of the executive department of the government, held a position second only to that of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The premier has been regarded as the main prop for the pro-Japanese clique in the Chinese national government.

KIN OF HITLER'S AID IS FOUND ON OHIO PWA JOB

Karl Frederick William Goering wields a pick and shovel in a stone quarry in Freeport township, while the man he claims as cousin holds the portfolios of premier of Prussia, air minister, master of the hunt, chief forester, general of aviation and chief of the German secret police.

Death Claims Baby Orang at Lincoln Zoo

Cy, the baby orang-utan born at the Lincoln park zoo ten days ago, died yesterday of starvation. In a last minute realization that her baby was dying the mother, Nancy, released him from her arms, where she had held him since his birth, spurning all efforts of zoo officials to take him from her and give him proper nutrition.

She dropped him to the floor of the cage as death neared, and zoo attendants hurriedly stretched a net and took him out of the cage. Cy was immediately bundled in blankets and fed human milk. He revived slightly, but then grew steadily weaker and died in two hours. Two baby specialists arrived as Cy was breathing his last.

Nancy Watches Fight for Life.

Nancy watched dejectedly the efforts to save her infant son. When he died she slumped in the back of her cage.

Zoo officials said that Cy had lived within one hour as long as Nancy's first-born, Betty, who died on May 10, 1934. In both cases the mother fought ferociously when outsiders attempted to feed her children.

During the ten days of his life the baby orang-utan had received a small quantity of cow's milk, which his mother took from a pan and transferred to his mouth.

University Gets Body.

Cy was named after the late Cyrus Bernard De Vry, for 31 years director of the zoo. The young orang's body was given to the Northwestern university anatomy department for scientific purposes. Nancy's first baby was mounted and presented to the Field museum, where it is on display.

Floyd Young, director of the zoo, asserted Nancy's two attempts at motherhood have proved she is incapable of caring for her young. There will be no more baby orangs from her, he said.

SHE'LL PLANT HER SPUDS RIGHT ON CAPITAL TERRACE

Westbury, N. Y., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, wife of the representative, is going to plant potatoes on her terrace in Washington so that the secretary of agriculture "can smell them," she told the Nassau County Federation of Republican Women meeting at her Long Island home today. It's her way, she said, of protesting the Agricultural Adjustment administration's potato control program.

Testimony that Robert M. Sweitzer, when he was county clerk, received $200,000 from the county treasurer and ordered his head bookkeeper to credit it to himself was introduced yesterday in Sweitzer's trial before a jury in Judge John C. Lewe's Criminal court.

The testimony came from John P. Keevers of Wilmington, Ill., during cross-examination of the witness by Defense Attorney I. Harvey Levinson. Keevers kept the books in the county clerk's office at the time the alleged $200,000 transaction occurred.

Sweitzer, who held the office of county clerk for 24 consecutive years, is charged with withholding $414,129 of public funds from his successor, Michael J. Flynn, when Sweitzer left the office to become county treasurer last December. Sweitzer was ousted as treasurer last June by the county board after the shortage became known and he failed to pay up.

Battle to Get Figures Before Jury.

The prosecution, hampered by defense objections, had spent most of the court day endeavoring to present before the jury the records of the $200,000 transaction—without any explanation of it other than through bookkeeping entries as they appeared on the books of the clerk's office.

It was during the cross-examination of Keevers by the defense late in the day that the witness testified that, according to Sweitzer's own admission made to him, Sweitzer received the $200,000 in March, 1922, and said he was going to make a "special deposit." All he ever knew about the $200,000, Keevers said, was this brief statement from Sweitzer.

The State's View on the $200,000.

The prosecution, in opening statements Wednesday, had charged that the $200,000 represented a check issued to Sweitzer in 1922 by the county treasurer [Patrick J. Carr, a Democrat] as fees for extending taxes. The money, the state contended, never found its way into an account of the county clerk, but was carried on the books under various indefinite designations.

However, according to the state, the day before George F. Harding, a Republican, assumed the treasurer's office in December, 1926, a check for $200,000 was drawn from the tax redemption fund [of the clerk's office] and sent to the treasurer to cover this same $200,000, although the transaction—merely a bookkeeping matter—should have occurred in 1922.

Testimony Is Gratifying to State.

The prosecutors were jubilant yesterday over Keevers' testimony concerning Sweitzer's alleged "personal handling" of the $200,000 item, but this jubilation was dampened somewhat just before court was adjourned for the day when John B. Higgins, 3917 Van Buren street, a cousin of Sweitzer's wife, refused to identify a statement of the finances of the clerk's office which was prepared for presentation to Flynn when he took over the office.

ANGRY ITALIANS RIOT AGAINST BRITAIN IN ROME

Crowds Cry: 'Down with England.'

Peace Hopes Fade

The European situation, which had appeared brighter for several days as a result of British-Italian-French peace negotiations, took a grave turn yesterday.

ROME—Anti-British demonstrations occurred following a speech by Premier Mussolini in which he denounced and defied the league of nations' efforts to halt his war with Ethiopia. Shouting mobs attacked British shops and menaced the British consulate.

LONDON—Prime Minister Baldwin announced Great Britain is determined to go the limit in the application of league sanctions, even to the extent of going to war. The British government sent a new protest to Italy against anti-British propaganda.

GENEVA—The league sanctions committee was reported to have run into difficulties in reaching an agreement upon the application of sanctions. The statesmen assembled at Geneva were said to be losing hope for an amicable settlement.

ETHIOPIAN WAR FRONTS—Thousands of Italians and Ethiopians were reported killed and wounded in two battles, one at Makale, in the north, and the other at Gorahai, in the south.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Oct. 31.—The growing public sentiment against Great Britain for the leading part she has played in the application of league of nations sanctions against Italy boiled over today. Anti-British demonstrations occurred all over the city. The hostile disturbances came on the heels of a speech by Premier Mussolini in which he reaffirmed Italy's determination to resist international pressure designed to stop his war by all means in the nation's power.

Groups of university students, backed by large crowds of Fascisti and other citizens, paraded up and down all the main thoroughfares shouting anti-British slogans and tearing down signs in British shops selling foreign goods.

Guard British Embassy.

The demonstrators were dispersed outside the British consulate, where the crowd, shrieking "Down with England!" was charged by a strong force of carabinieri. The British embassy was heavily guarded throughout the day, but no hostile demonstrations occurred there.

At the Hotel d'Angleterre, to whose name the crowd took violent exception, the alarmed proprietor climbed out a window brandishing a poker. With it he attempted in vain to pry off the name of his hotel, which was firmly fastened to the masonry across the façade. Finally he gave up and announced amid cheers that by tonight his establishment would no longer be known as the Hotel d'Angleterre but as the Hotel d'Italia. A few minutes later a mason was at work making the necessary changes.

Changes took place all over the city in the names of shops selling men's clothing. A favorite name for shops of this type was Prince of Wales. The demonstrators not only compelled proprietors to tear down their signs but extracted promises to change the name to Prince of Piedmont.

Police Charge Students.

The shouting men and women finally reached the Piazza di Spagna, where they removed a sign outside Miss Babington's tearoom, which Americans in Rome seldom fail to visit. The tearoom has been catering to British and American tourists for as long as present residents can remember.

A few minutes later the angry crowd was charged by 20 policemen, who appeared suddenly from a door of the British consulate. They dispersed the demonstrators after a short tussle.

The principal group among the demonstrators was composed of boys and girls wearing brightly colored student caps. They moved toward the center of the city and marched singing up Rome's principal street, the Corso. They carried flags and a large poster bearing the likeness of Mussolini and on the back the slogan, "Down with Eden." [Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs].

Catcalls for Britain.

Many of the shops on the Corso have signs in English. Outside each shop the crowd stopped while some of its members, amid boos and catcalls against Britain and cheers for Italy, either tore the signs down or effaced the lettering. There was no violence to persons, however.

The demonstrations, which began in the morning were repeated throughout the afternoon, but by that time police reserves had been called out and all foreign shops were strongly guarded. The disturbances throughout the city last until a late hour tonight, groups of young men continuing to march along the main streets, alternating shouts against Britain with Italian songs and cheers for forcing the orchestras in cafés to play patriotic airs.

Mussolini uttered his defiance of the league in a speech at the inauguration of Rome university's new seat. Il Duce dwelt so strongly on Italy's unshakeable determination not to allow herself to be throttled into submission to Geneva's will that it was clear he foresaw no solution of the Italo-Ethiopian controversy by negotiation and fully expects the entire weight of sanctions to be brought to bear on Italy.

Mussolini Attacks League.

"This new university," he declared, "is being inaugurated at a very significant moment in Italian life. It opens its doors at a time when our soldiers, when our magnificent bearers of civilization are advancing with their courage and their sacrifice, without asking anything from anybody.

"Nor can we forget that Rome university is reborn today, the 31st of October, while in Geneva a coalition of egotism and plutocracy is attempting in vain to bar the path of our young Italy of the Black Shirts.

"In face of an economic siege of which all civilized nations of the world should feel supremely ashamed, in the face of an experiment that is being tried today for the first time against the Italian nation, I wish it known that we shall present the most implacable of resistance in the firmest of our decisions."

A Modern University.

The inauguration of the new university marked the completion of one of the most important public works undertaken by the government. The plant includes a dozen large buildings.

The inauguration was performed with great solemnity in the presence of representatives of 340 foreign universities. It was particularly noticed that, despite the strained relations between Italy and Britain, both Oxford and Cambridge were represented.

News from Geneva indicates the negotiations for a solution of Italy's conflict with Ethiopia and the European problems arising from it are to be actively pursued there. In Italian official quarters it is said that, although no one has any particular faith in the possibility of reaching an acceptable compromise, Italy does not and will not refuse to negotiate and will gladly examine any new proposal submitted.

Await New Suggestions.

It is particularly emphasized that it is not Italy that is proposing a reexamination of the problem, for she fears her viewpoint is now fully known in London and Paris. Mussolini's government insists it is up to Sir Samuel Hoare, the British foreign secretary, and to Pierre Laval, French premier and foreign minister, to come forward with the new suggestion if they have any to make.

In other words, Italy is trying to make it quite clear that she is not suing for peace under the threat of sanctions and is not willing to abandon her strategic advantages, being the recipient rather than the originator of compromise proposals.

REPORT ITALIANS MASSACRED IN MAKALE BATTLE

Thousands of Casualties Claimed on Both Sides.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Ethiopian military circles discussed today unofficial and unsubstantiated reports of a fierce and bloody battle yesterday near Makale.

These reports said Ethiopians attacked in the darkness, annihilating several thousand Italians, and that the Ethiopians suffered 3,000 casualties.

The reports stated the Ethiopian casualties were mostly due to the fact that soldiers were unable in the darkness to distinguish their comrades from the Fascists.

The same reports said daybreak disclosed the most bloody scenes, with the battlefield strewn with corpses, on which vultures fed.

3,500 Casualties in South.

More than 3,500 Ethiopians were killed and wounded in fierce fighting on the southern Ogaden front, according to reports reaching here.

The heaviest Ethiopian casualties were near Gorahai, where Dedjezmatch Abde Mikael, commanding Emperor Haile Selassie's forces, was reported killed.

Ethiopians admitted the enemy has occupied Scillave, south of Gorahai. The Italians were said to be solidly entrenched, supported by field artillery and tanks.

From a third front came persistent reports that Ethiopians had attacked the Italians near Mount Mussa Ali, in northeast Ethiopia, forcing the Black Shirts back into Eritrea. Official confirmation was not immediately forthcoming.

Ethiopian official sources said today they received information that the Italians were planning a smashing offensive from a point north of Mount Mussa Ali across the Danakil desert toward Dessye.

Assaimera tribesmen are salting all springs in the Mussa Ali region to cut off Italian water supplies, it was said. In this same region, Ethiopian officials announced, the Italians are constructing an air base, 60 miles from the border of Eritrea.

Capture Thirsty Italian Officer.

The capture of a lone Italian officer, traveling about the desert in a rumbling tank in search of water, was reported today by the Ethiopian government. The Fascist was half dead of thirst, it was said. He was reported taken near Dolo, in southern Ethiopia.

Thousands upon thousands of warriors, eager for war, continue to march into the capital from remote regions of the empire. Among the latest arrivals were 30,000 tribesmen under Dedjazmatch Makonnen of Gorai province.

Push On Toward Makale.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

ADIGRAT, Ethiopia, Oct. 31.—Trained native troops beating a trail for the main advance of the Italian left column occupied another village today and seized wells to supply the Black Shirts with water.

The town was Mai Uecc, several kilometers beyond Edaga Hamus. Italian officers immediately dubbed it "Mae West."

Sharp action was reported earlier from the southwest border of Eritrea, where Italians crossed the Setit river and drove back Ethiopians massed at Nlaghin. After dispersing the enemy, the Black Shirts recrossed the stream and took up the defensive on their side.

The native troops of the northern forces have deployed tactically as far as Hauzien, half way to strategic Makale, and have taken the natural fortress of Amba Sion, 30 miles from that objective.

At Adowa yesterday Degericen Meneguse Chenfie, one of the rulers of the Scire region, surrendered to Gen. Pierro Maravigna, commander of the Italian right flank.

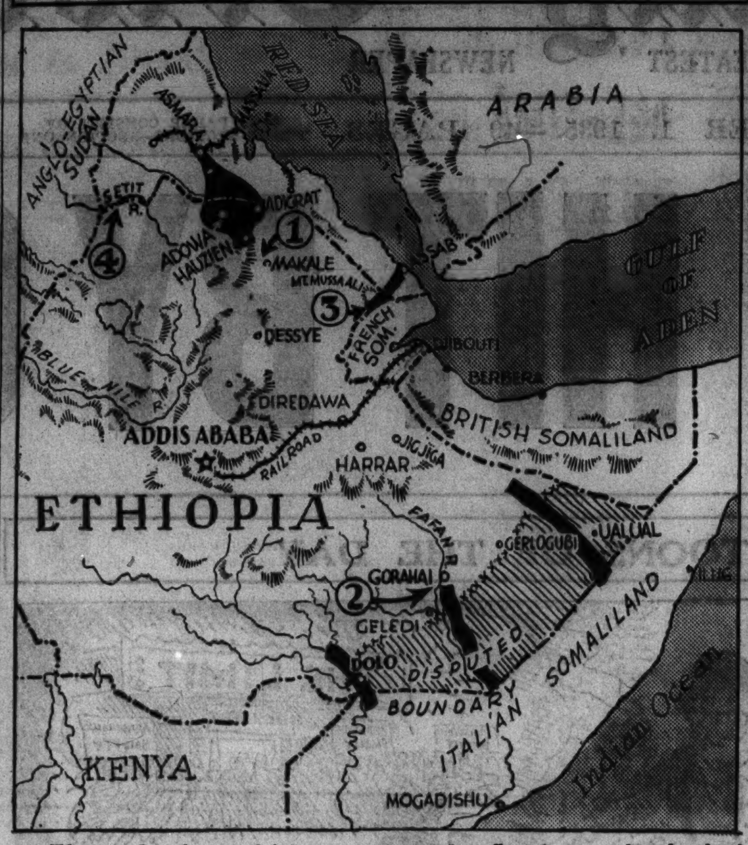
Prepare to Assault Gorahai.

ROME, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, Italian commander of the southern front, was reported today to be bringing up his artillery for an assault on Gorahai after his native troops drove Ethiopians from the regions between there and Scillave.

Italian press dispatches also reported that a force of native Dubats had met and broken up Ethiopian resistance between the two points in bloody fighting.

The region now cleared between Scillave and Gorahai was described as a well watered area which would relieve the Italians of one of their chief problems—water.

THOUSANDS KILLED IN TWO BATTLES



Thousands of casualties were reported suffered yesterday by both Italians and Ethiopians in two battles, one near Makale (1) in the north and the other near Gorahai (2) in the south. Several thousand Italians were reported slain near Makale and 3,500 Ethiopians were claimed to be killed or wounded near Gorahai. At Mount Mussa Ali (3) the Africans were said to have driven an Italian force back into Eritrea. Fascist troops pushed across the Setit river (4) and routed a concentration of the enemy, then retired to their previous positions.

General Predicts Italians Will Never Get Addis Ababa

DURBAN, Union of South Africa, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Gen. Eric Virgin, until recently an adviser to Emperor Haile Selassie, said today Italian soldiers in Africa are "dying by the hundreds." He predicted "the Italians will not reach Addis Ababa next year, nor the next year, nor ever." Gen. Virgin is former commander in chief of the Swedish air force.

LEAGUE HITS SNAG IN MOVE TO OPEN ITALIAN BOYCOTT

Fixing of Date to Launch Economic War Delayed.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 31.—Premier Mussolini is going ahead with his military war against Ethiopia and the league of nations is going ahead with its economic war against Italy—if it can.

This was the situation tonight following the reassembly of the league's sanctions committee. The ostensible purpose of the new gathering at Geneva was to fix the date on which league members will put into effect the economic sanctions voted at the last session. In many capitals, however, chiefly Paris, it was hoped the meeting would offer opportunities on the sidelines for starting peace negotiations with Italy to render sanctions unnecessary. This hope tonight appears to have faded and at the same time the sanctions front is showing signs of considerable shakiness.

Difficulties Loom.

When the sanctions committee's executive organism, the committee of 18 nations, got down to work today the Rumanians raised the question of the countries which have clearing agreements with Italy and are owed money on them at present. Seconded by some other small countries, they demanded that they be allowed to continue taking imports from Italy until they have their money back.

Although Britain herself is owed some £2,000,000 [about $10,000,000] under a clearing agreement with Italy, Capt. Anthony Eden, British league minister, vigorously opposed the suggestion, which he declared threatened to make a breach in the whole sanctions system.

France, Spain Back Britain.

France and Spain supported the British stand. Arguments against the Rumanian suggestion were first, that Italy obviously would not continue exporting to a country participating in the sanctions without getting back something more than a clear conscience; secondly, it would be very difficult to tell when the Italian imports stopped being a payment on an old account and became new trade.

Though it was apparent to every one that such a measure would tend to annul the effect of sanctions, it was not killed at once, but referred to the economic subcommittee for decision tomorrow.

Likewise, there continued to be trouble over reservations and conditions to participation in the sanctions by numerous countries and serious doubt in the case of some countries as to whether they will really carry out the sanctions they assent to in Geneva. Forty-nine of the fifty-one countries which voted the arms embargo have officially accepted it; 47 have adopted the financial sanctions and 46 have been heard from on economic sanctions.

The sanctions committee had only a brief public session tonight and adjourned until tomorrow or Saturday to fix the date on which sanctions will become effective.

MARCONI PROMISES NO TRICKS IN ETHIOPIA WITH PLANE ENGINES

ROME, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Guglielmo Marconi, Italy's "wizard of the wireless," assured Americans in a broadcast tonight there would be no "tricks" from him involving airplane and automobile engines in the African campaign.

Replying to recent current reports that he had developed a microwave radio apparatus which would stop airplane motors in flight, the noted inventor said:

"If you are eager to hear from me something about an alleged new invention with which I could stop motor engines at a great distance and do worse trick than that, then let me reassure you, saying at once you may fly to your heart's content. There will be no stopping you; for the present, at any rate."

The inventor demanded whether any one could "reasonably think a nation of 44,000,000 souls" could be compelled by "economic pressure from some other nations to abandon a campaign on the successful issue of which it has staked its very existence."

ETHIOPIAN KING GIVES CAPTURED ITALIAN A JOB

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie today received the only Italian prisoner so far brought to Addis Ababa, Clemente Sergo, 23, of Fiume, and after a friendly chat, ordered the local Greek garage keeper to provide Sergo with a job, food, clothing and a place to live.

The emperor told Sergo, who was brought by plane from the north, that he would pay his way back to Fiume when peace comes so the young man could join his parents.

"Oh, sire, you are too kind?" Sergo exclaimed. "I prefer to work here as a mechanic."

CLAIMS APOLOGY BY ALOISI GOT ETHIOPIAN SNUB

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Ato Medhen, Ethiopian diplomat, said today that Italy's chief delegate to the league of nations council session tried to make personal amends to the Ethiopian representative after calling the Ethiopians "barbarians," but was rebuked.

Medhen, who was secretary to Tecle Hawariate, former Ethiopian delegate at Geneva, related that Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, after publicly castigating the Ethiopians, tried to shake hands with Hawariate.

Medhen said Aloisi was deeply mortified and shaken after the speech he was forced to make under instructions from Premier Mussolini. But when he sought to show he had no personal feeling against Hawariate, the Ethiopian thrust his hands behind his back and glared coldly at Aloisi.

"No, we are barbarians," said Hawariate as he turned away, according to Medhen's account.

BRITAIN READY TO USE FORCE TO STOP ITALY

Will Go to War for League, Baldwin Warns.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin tonight gave a vigorous reply to Premier Mussolini's expression of "supreme contempt" for league of nations sanctions. The prime minister uttered a grim warning that the British as members of the league are prepared to resort to force if necessary to carry out sanctions.

Baldwin, who spoke before the International Peace society, said peace could not be kept by pacifism. He reaffirmed that any British government of whatever political complexion it might be from now on will be determed to make the league the keystone of its foreign policy. Then he added a sentence which was apparently meant for Mussolini:

"We mean nothing to the league if we are not prepared in the end, and after grave and careful trial, to take action to enforce its judgments."

To Keep Fleet in Mediterranean.

Baldwin's speech stressing Great Britain's determination to put teeth in league sanctions was delivered a few hours after government circles said the naval situation in the Mediterranean has become "more unsatisfactory" and that there would be "no relaxation of precautions there." The government announced a new protest had been dispatched to Italy against Italian press attacks on Britain and what was described as anti-British propaganda in Egypt. Three more destroyers were sent from Gibraltar to Malta.

Baldwin in his address dismissed isolation from continental Europe as an impossible policy, and asserted the league was the sole instrument for keeping peace. However, he warned that to keep peace the nation must keep its feet on the earth and implement peace with armaments as well as a moral example, for, said the statesman, mankind has still "to rest its enforcement of law on force."

Baldwin denied charges of his political opponents that he would inaugurate a big armaments race after the general elections Nov. 14. He indicated the proposed increase in fighting weapons would be naval replacements and a greatly strengthened air force.

Takes Jab at Mussolini.

The prime minister by implication delivered many straight jabs at Mussolini for eulogizing war as noble and magnificent. Not mentioning Il Duce by name, but leaving little doubt as to who he meant, he spoke of "governments deliberately planning the future for and leading reluctant or unsuspecting peoples into shambles."

"Most governments seem not much worse or better than the people they govern," he continued.

"I am disposed to conclude that people are not such an ineffective flock of sheep as those who claim to speak in their name often imply," Baldwin cried, making the point that people and not governments must decide the question whether differences between nations are to be decided by force or by discussion and law. "That is the question we are examining in the large and not just this present tragedy in Africa."

The prime minister reverted again to the idea he has voiced often recently, namely, that the next war is going to include every one. He said no nation would be able to remain in prosperous neutrality on good terms and trading with both belligerents.

Regrets U. S. Absence.

In his defense of the league as an international peace force, Baldwin said he regretted the absence of the United States from membership.

"However, I am certain millions of American citizens are watching with lively sympathy our efforts to make the league an instrument of world peace," he exclaimed.

The prime minister also seemed to have Mussolini's desire for an Italian place in the sun in mind when he said Britain was ready to see to it that the nations which needed them could have better access to the world's raw materials. However, he warned this must be negotiated peacefully within the orbit of the league and not by going out to forcibly grab it.

Sounding an earnest plea for the necessity of the league to keep the staves of the European barrel from falling apart, the prime minister said old relationships and old friendships were being fundamentally impaired. He referred both to France and Italy.

Stresses Friendship With Italy.

"The vocal elements in France have not seen eye to eye with us," he declared. "There is another old friend [Italy] with whom, as a member of the league, we are in dispute. The dispute between Italy and the league is real, but it is not more real than our friendship.

"Of all currents of our policy for over a half century, none has run more truly or more steadily than friendship for Italy. But we believe now that Italy is rashly departing from her own great traditions which earned and held our affections and sympathy over so many years."

Baldwin concluded by asserting that for all these reasons the British were looking to their defenses at the same time they put their confidence in the league.

BRITISH AIR FIRM PLANS ATLANTIC FLIGHTS IN 1936

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Imperial Airways is planning a number of experimental Atlantic flights in 1936 as the first step in the establishment of a regular trans-Atlantic air service, Chairman Sir Eric Geddes told the shareholders at today's annual meeting.

The company has ordered a Mayo composite aircraft specially designed to meet the conditions of the Atlantic air mail services, Sir Eric declared.

"We have been operating two small aircraft in Newfoundland on behalf of the Newfoundland government," he said. "These operations doubtless will bring to light information of great value in regard to meteorological and flying conditions at the western end of the ocean sector of the direct route."

CRACK HIAWATHA HITS MILK TRUCK IN MORTON GROVE

The Hiawatha, crack Chicago-Twin Cities train of the Milwaukee road, was delayed an hour and ten minutes last evening when it struck the trailer of a Bowman Dairy company truck in Dempster street, Morton Grove.

Albert Safford, 1756 Berteau avenue, driver of the truck, slowed down as he neared the crossing, but failed to see the headlight of the fast train, approaching from the north, and drove over the tracks. The truck itself cleared the tracks, but the trailer was dragged away from it when the train crashed into it. No one was injured, but passengers on the train were shaken up.

The wreckage was carried 400 feet down the track by the locomotive, and it was necessary to send for a wrecking crew to clear the tracks. Donald Peterson, a watchman, told the highway police he was on duty and tried to halt the truck, and, later, the train. Part of the blame for the accident was attributed to the rain and poor visibility.

Italy Refuses to Renew Tarif Pact on French Wines

PARIS, Oct. 31.—[Havas.]—An Italian refusal to renew a reciprocal tarif agreement on French wines was regarded here today as Il Duce's first retaliatory blow to France for her enrollment in the league of nations boycott. French wines in Italy will be placed in the general classification tomorrow.

CALLS CONSTITUTION THE NATION'S GUARD AGAINST HYSTERIA

A warning to guard the constitution in order to prevent a dictatorship and tyranny was given yesterday by Dean Ralph Heilman of the school of commerce, Northwestern university, in a speech before a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Kiwanis club at the Hamilton club. Dean Heilman took issue with a statement of Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, that some Americans hold "an unreasoning, almost hysterical attachment to the constitution."

"It was precisely to guard against unreasoning, hysterical actions of government that the constitution was adopted," asserted Dean Heilman. "Our constitution prevents revolutionary change while it permits evolutionary development. The American people, Dr. Tugwell to the contrary notwithstanding, will not embrace Fascism, regimentation or economic planning.

78.4° HEAT SETS ALL-TIME RECORD FOR LATE FALL

When the temperature climbed to 78.4 degrees at 1:40 p. m. yesterday an all-time late fall heat record was set in Chicago. The previous record was 78.3 degrees, set on Oct. 31, 1933. Never in the 64 years during which records have been kept here has either mark been exceeded after Oct. 30.

Showers which fell in the early evening drove the mercury down moderately after it had held above 70 degrees until after 7 p. m. At 8 p. m. it had fallen to 65 degrees and at midnight the unofficial reading was 53 degrees. A sharp decline in temperature is forecast today.

Forecasts Rain for Today.

Showers are expected this morning, with clouds hanging over the city all day.

Although the last week has been warmer than usual the month of October as a whole had almost exactly the normal amount of heat. The mean temperature for the first 30 days was 54, compared to a normal of 54.3. The highest was 83 degrees on the 13th and the lowest was 35 on the 6th.

The month was, however, the driest October since 1924, only 1.06 inches of precipitation being recorded, a deficiency of 1.40 inches from normal.

There were traces of snow on the 5th, 6th, and 22d of the month. The rainfall in October of 1924 was only .84 of an inch.

Winds Mostly Southerly.

The prevailing winds for the last month were southerly and the amount of sunshine was 64 per cent of the maximum possible. Normal sunshine in October would be 59 per cent. Of the first 30 days of the month thirteen were clear, seven partly cloudy, and ten cloudy.

In contrast to the midsummer conditions in Chicago, the Rocky mountain region reported a cold wave. The temperature was near zero at Helena, Mont., and at Salt Lake City, Utah, the mercury sank to 24 above, making the day the coldest there in October since 1917.

California and other Pacific coast states also had low temperatures, with much damage reported to vegetable crops in northern and central California. Snow fell in the Dakotas and in western Minnesota.

AUTO IMPOUNDING WINS SUPPORT AS SAFETY MEASURE

Mayor Approves; 2 More Drivers Get Penalty.

Mayor Kelly and safety authorities yesterday indorsed the plan of impounding the automobiles of motorists convicted of driving in flagrant disregard of public safety. In the Safety court Municipal Judge Eugene Holland ordered the cars of two more offenders impounded. Two other municipal judges, J. M. Braude and John Gutknecht, announced somewhat similar plans of dealing with offenders.

"Apparently all the preaching in the world doesn't do much good, and we have to be emphatic in whatever we do to cut down the terrible toll of automobile deaths," commented Mayor Kelly. "It seems difficult to make people believe that we are dealing with a monster worse than war.

Urges Leniency in Some Cases.

"I presume Judge Holland will use judgement in impounding cars. If a man makes a living through his car, and his previous record is good, I suppose there should be leniency. But the driver who is flagrantly careless should be dealt with severely."

George B. Fleming, secretary of the Keep Chicago Safe committee, also indorsed the impounding plan, which was launched by Judge Holland Wednesday when he ordered two motorists deprived of their car for 30 days. Mr. Fleming pointed out that the plan was a means of accomplishing, under the present statutes, what could be accomplished much more easily under a state driver's license law. He urged that impounding be considered as an emergency measure pending enactment of such a statute by the legislature.

Motor Club Objects to Plan.

One organization, the Chicago Motor club, disapproved of the plan. Objections both legal and practical were voiced by Joseph Braun, general counsel for the club.

"Legally, it is a bad thing to depart from uniform penalties as prescribed by law," said Braun. "Our Illinois statutes provides no such penalty as impounding, which has to be accomplished by indirection. The plan has the further disadvantage, from the standpoint of legal principles, of visiting punishment on the family of an offender as well as on himself, something our legal system always frowned on.

"From a practical standpoint, while Judge Holland appears to have been discreet in applying the penalty, I am afraid that other judges may not be, and may use impounding recklessly, either as a road to publicity, or in some of the speed trap towns with which the Chicago Motor club has had to deal, as a further instrument for shakedowns."

Truck Driver Gets Penalty.

Sam Davis, 1358 North Western avenue, was convicted before Judge Holland of driving his truck past the left side of a street car, a practice which the judge pointed out is not only dangerous to pedestrians but to the offender himself. Davis agreed to have his truck impounded for thirty days rather than pay a $100 fine.

Walter Baginski, 1753 Lull place, was convicted of reckless driving and driving without a vehicle license. He chose to have his car impounded for ninety days rather than serve a ninety day term in the Bridewell.

Judge Braude, sitting in the Boys' court, announced another plan of dealing with youthful offenders who appear before him in trafic cases. Many of their cars, it was pointed out, were bought for a few dollars and are mechanical dangers on the street at any time.

Pay Fines or Junk Cars.

He has given boys who own such cars the alternative of paying a fine or having their obsolete cars broken up for junk by prisoners at the Bridewell. Most of them have chosen the latter penalty, he said.

Judge Gutknecht, who sits in the Speeders' court, does not impound the cars, but requires the owners to deposit their license plates with him and promise not to drive for a certain period.

He said yesterday that he believes that a driver's license system, which would permit suspension of licenses of offenders and the indorsement of previous offenses on the license so that the judge may know when he is dealing with a repeated offender, is preferable to impounding.

MISS BETTY ALFORD.

[Copyright: By Bachrach. From Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Brookline, Mass., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The approaching marriage of Betty Alford, Junior league and Vincent club member, to a tall Bennington, Vt., campus policeman, will give the society girl a chance to live the outdoor life she loves. That was the declaration of her father, Edward B. Alford, retired business man, tonight. He praised his future son-in-law, William E. Mattison, 24, as a "fine type of young man with a purpose in life even if he hasn't had the advantages of a college education."

"We're going to Bermuda on our honeymoon," young Mattison said in Bennington. He said he would continue on his job as campus policeman at the exclusive Bennington Women's college, where he met his fiancée.

CALLED A SISSY, TELLS OF CHASE ENDING IN DEATH

"He called me a sissy and I chased him."

This explanation of why William Keckelsen, 7 years old, ran into the side of a moving truck and was killed on Wednesday, was given yesterday to a coroner's jury by Ralph Nelson, 8 years old, 106 Gillick street, Park Ridge. The boys were on their way home from St. Paul of the Cross school in the suburb when William dashed into the street near his home at 401 South Northwest highway, Park Ridge.

TWO MILWAUKEE POLICE STATIONS BOMBERS' TARGET

Bank Dynamiters Blamed in New Outbreak.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Two precinct police stations were bombed shortly before 7 p. m. in a renewal of the mysterious dynamitings which kept police busy over the week-end. The Shorewood village hall was bombed Saturday night, and two branch banks of the First Wisconsin National bank were the targets Sunday night.

The stations were the Fifth precinct at 2804 North 3d street, and the Third precinct at 1747 North 12th street. The bombs were placed in the rear of the buildings. They shattered windows in the stations and did some damage inside, but no policemen were injured. Houses in the vicinity were rocked by the force of the blasts. Some of them suffered broken windows. The reports could be heard for half mile distance.

False Alarm Draws Forces.

Just previous to the bombings a false fire alarm was sounded which brought fire department apparatus, police, and crowds of people to the Teutonia Avenue bank at 1803 North Teutonia avenue. The noise of the bomb at the Third precinct station was heard as the fire department apparatus was coming into the neighborhood, the residents said.

The bombings occurred while police details were on guard at all banks and public buildings. The customary guard maintained since the week-end blasts was doubled tonight as police thought the dynamiters would take advantage of Halloween, with the attendant excitement, to renew operations.

Placed on Window Sill.

The bomb at the Fifth precinct station was placed on the window sill of the garage. It tore out three large windows—frames and all—and showered the garage wth bricks. The automobile of Lieut. Carl Starke, in charge of the station, and the patrol wagon were damaged. Windows were broken in a dozen homes to the east.

At the Third precinct station five policemen and a worker in the radio repair room were showered with bricks and mortar when a bomb placed on a window sill exploded. They escaped uninjured. The policemen were Fred Breuham, George Schneider, Carl Steckling, Lawrence Sorenson, and Fred Popper. Windows in many nearby homes were broken. A large window in the rear of the station and some smaller windows were broken.

HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE.

Edward Erstman, 30 years old, 8119 Dante avenue, was held to the grand jury by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in bonds of $20,000 yesterday on charges of robbery and assault to kill.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll

Over 95 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

HIT AND RUN AUTO DRIVER'S VICTIM DIES IN HOSPITAL

Rosco De Milo, 54 years old, 1932 Ohio street, died in the county hospital yesterday of injuries received last Saturday when he was struck by a hit and run automobile at Erie street and Damen avenue.

William Hampton, 70 years old, inmate of a relief shelter at 311 West Austin avenue, was fatally injured last night when hit by an automobile in Grand avenue near the river. The driver of the car was Thomas E. Bittner, 40 years old, 5201 Diversey avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 801 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In that period 624 were killed and 14,808 injured in trafic accidents within the Chicago city limits.

The National Safety council issued a report yesterday showing that 24,840 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in the United States in the nine months ending Sept. 30. In the same period of 1934 the auto death toll was 25,080.

Sidney J. Williams, head of the council's division of public safety, said the reduction was due to the campaign of education being waged in the press and to vigorous methods being used by public officials against reckless driving.

POLICE OFFICERS TRANSFERRED BY ALLMAN'S ORDER

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday issued an order transferring three captains, three lieutenants, two sergeants, and nine patrolmen to new assignments. Under the order Capt. Daniel A. Lynch goes from the Woodlawn district to Damen avenue; Capt. Gregory Moran from police headquarters to Woodlawn, and Capt. Luke J. Garrick from Damen avenue to headquarters. The lieutenants transferred are Thomas Flanigan from Woodlawn to South Chicago, Wallace J. Monroe from South Chicago to Woodlawn, and Charles Pawlowski from North avenue to Shakespeare avenue.

7 GERMANS PUT IN PRISON; TUNED IN MOSCOW RADIO

Found Guilty of "Plotting High Treason."

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Seven prison sentences today brought home to Germans the danger that lurks in the loudspeaker when it's tuned in on Moscow.

Two men in Wilhelmshaven were sentenced to four years in prison and five years' loss of citizenship for discussing politics while listening to a Moscow radio broadcast, and five friends who listened, too, received lesser terms.

All seven were charged with "plotting high treason." Some, authorities said, were communists.

War on Moscow Radio.

The Nazis, in their two and one-half years in power, have waged a constant battle against the Moscow radio. They have taken measures all the way from removing Moscow designations from radio sets to local decrees forbidding listeners to tune in on the soviet capital.

Police of Frankfort-on-Main led off with such measures early in the Nazi régime by warning Moscow radio listeners they were liable to taste the life of concentration camps, especially when groups of persons gathered around the loudspeaker. The gravest danger, according to court decisions on the subject, is when whatever coming out of the speaker incites discussion.

Nazis, who have been sentencing from fifty to one hundred communists monthly, assert groups of bolsheviks have been gathering about radios to get forbidden inspiration. Authorities have sought to popularize small, cheap radios for workingmen—sets incapable of getting Moscow.

Forty-five Convicted of Treason.

Forty-five men, described as mostly communists, recently were sentenced for treason in Essen, heart of the reich's industrial district, the sentences ranging from six to twenty-one months. Fifty-five others are awaiting trial.

One communist, Albert Kaiser, a former reichstag deputy, is to be beheaded.

Tomorrow the German School of Politics will open an anti-communist seminar, which it claims is the first of its kind to be given by such a school.

HEINE IS DISOWNED AS GERMAN POET BY HITLER POLICE PAPER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—"There is no place for Heinrich Heine in any collection of works of German poets," the Schwarzes Korps, organ of the Hitler guards and secret police, proclaimed today. The paper attacked the Germany academy at Munich for issuing selections from German poets in a series of small booklets and announcing that selections from Heine will appear in a certain volume.

"Have responsible men in the German academy a clear realization of what the word German means in their name?" asked Schwarzes Korps. The paper also asked financial supporters of the academy if they wished their money to be used to publish the works of a Jewish poet.

"When we reject Heinrich Heine, it is not because we consider every line he wrote bad," commented Schwarzes Korps. "The decisive factor is that this man is a Jew. Therefore, there is no place for him in German literature."

The paper remarked that when it discovered Heine's name in the program of the German academy, "it was as if one suddenly was dashed with cold water."

SPLINTS FOR ALL CITY AMBULANCES TO BE CONSIDERED

Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the city council finance committee, said yesterday that he would call a conference of the committee Monday morning to consider equipping city ambulances with splints to prevent further injuries to automobile crash victims as they are being taken to hospitals. Police Commissioner Allman, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, and Dr. Elmer Mosley, police surgeon, will be invited to confer with the committee, Arvey said. If the purchase of the splints is included in the next budget, they may be bought for all patrol wagons as well. The Chicago fracture committee, a group of bone surgeons, has suggested legislation necessitating such equipment for all ambulances.

SHOT ACCIDENTALLY WITH PISTOL.

Julius Alcknus, 42 years old, was accidentaly shot in the thigh yesterday in his home at 4303 South Wells street by Joseph Damski Jr., 22 years old, of the same address. Damski told police he didn't know the pistol was loaded.

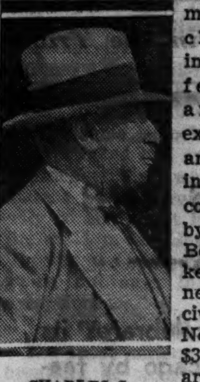
ROOSEVELT SLUR 'ARREST' BRINGS EXTORT CHARGE

Woman Sues 'U. S. Officer' After Seizure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Charles S. Neumann, former Cook county jury commissioner, was charged with impersonating a federal officer and attempted extortion in warrants sworn out in the Municipal court here today by Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett of Waukesha. Mrs. Bennett also filed a civil suit against Neumann, asking $3,000 for false arrest and slander.



CHARLES S. NEUMANN.

Mrs. Bennett told police Neumann had posed as a federal officer and arrested her as the result of a remark she had made concerning President Roosevelt. Neumann posted $3,000 bond in the civil action and $500 bond on the impersonation and attempted extortion charges. He will be arraigned Saturday morning before Municipal Judge C. W. Parkinson on the criminal charges.

Wife Reports Remark.

According to Mrs. Bennett she was bathing this morning at the Waukesha spa with Neumann's wife and the two women entered into a political discussion. In the course of their conversation Mrs. Bennett referred to President Roosevelt as a "skunk," she said. Mrs. Neumann reported the remark to her husband.

A short time later Neumann appeared at Mrs. Bennett's home, she said, told her he was a federal officer and that he was arresting her for slandering the President.

He forced her to accompany him to the postoffice, Mrs. Bennett told police, and on the way asked her: "How much is it worth to you to get out of this?"

Ordered to Free Woman.

Postmaster G. H. Daubner asked Neumann to show his federal credentials. Neumann, according to the police, produced a jury commissioner's card. Daubner then ordered Neumann to release Mrs. Bennett and advised her to bring charges against the former jury commissioner.

She did and Neumann was brought before Judge Parkinson. He communicated with his bank in Chicago and was released by Waukesha police when he drew checks for the amount of his bonds.

Mrs. Bennett is a prominent resident of Waukesha. Neumann, who resigned from the Cook county jury commission last Jan. 24, had been vacationing with his wife at the Waukesha baths.

RETURN DIARY OF RAPIST-SLAYER; TO DESTROY IT

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The little black diary of Gerald Thompson, who died in the electric chair for attacking and slaying Mildred Hallmark, has been returned to State's Attorney E. V. Champion from the files of the Illinois Supreme court and will be destroyed.

Thompson listed conquests by force of many girls and young married women. The diary was one of the means of incrimminating him in the murder when he was arrested for questioning concerning the death of Miss Hallmark. Many of his victims made no report to police because of the desire to avoid publicity.

The diary was certified to the Supreme court under seal and has been returned with seal unbroken. The The high court did not find any examination necessary in passing upon Thompson's appeal.

OPEN QUIZ TODAY ON LENIENCY FOR FIVE IN RAPE CASE

Crowley to Probe Finding of Disorderly Conduct.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Clifton Mills, burglary, sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary under the habitual criminal act by Judge Joseph B. David.

Bertele Johnson, assault to rape, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Suzanne Madoian, murder, sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said yesterday that he would begin an investigation today into the case of five men who were permitted to plead guilty to disorderly conduct charges and take light sentences after a 14 year old girl testified they had held her and a 16 year old girl prisoners for a week and raped her in a Morton Grove farmhouse.

The men are Sam Favato, 19 years old, 2215 Lake street; Rocco Sarle, 23, of 134 North 23d avenue, and Vito Spiezio, 20, of 1015 North 24th avenue, all of Melrose Park; Salvador Cioffa, 24 years old of Maywood, and Howard Taylor, 43 years old, caretaker of the farmhouse. They were fined $60 each on Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Benjamin Babcock of Morton Grove and were ordered to work out the fines in the county jail.

Arrests Follow Girls' Report.

The girl complainants reside in Madison, Wis. They testified that they were hitchhiking on Oct. 23 when they were picked up by Favato and Cioffa and taken to the farmhouse where Sarlo and Spiezio participated in the rape of one of the girls. The girls escaped Tuesday night and notified the Morton Grove county highway police, who arrested the five men.

The men originally were charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors, but Justice of the Peace Babcock, on the recommendation of Assistant State's Attorney William Rochford, who is assigned to the Morton Grove court, allowed the charges to be changed to disorderly conduct, to which the men pleaded guilty.

Admits He May Have Erred.

Justice of the Peace Babcock admitted yesterday that the men, with the exception of Taylor, "possibly should have been booked on rape charges." Taylor should have been held on a delinquency charge as he did not participate in the actual rape, Babcock said. He declared, however, that he had followed the recommendation of the prosecutor.

"I will investigate to determine if the penalty was sufficient for the crime," Prosecutor Crowley declared. "If it is true the girls were kidnaped and one of them was raped, the five men should have been held to the grand jury. They will be indicted if those are the facts."

Crowley said he would ask Rochford for a full report on the case. Rochford asserted last night that he would accept full responsibility.

Explains His Recommendation.

"Miss Marie Bell, the juvenile officer in the court, requested me to dispose of the case," Rochford said. "I figured that it would be best to have the men fined on a disorderly conduct charge with the understanding that they could not pay the fines but must work them out. That was better than having the case drag, particularly as both girls are from out of town and the girl who was raped appeared reluctant to testify."

The girls were held at the Juvenile Detention home last night while arrangements were being made to send them back to Madison.

Miss Anna Wilhelm, 20 years old, who on Wednesday identified Jerome De Jonckheere, 32 years old, as the man who raped her Monday night in her room at the Belmont Plaza hotel, 505 Belmont avenue, retracted her positive identification yesterday.

She said that she had not had a good view of her assailant's face but thought DeJonckheere resembled the man. Her cousin, Mary Wilhelm, who was bound by the rapist, said she was not certain DeJonckheere was the man.

The Town Hall police said, however, that DeJonckheere, who lives at 1345 Marquette road, would be charged with burglary. He was identified by William Conroy as the gunman who terrorized him and his family in their home at 3827½ Rokeby street Monday night.

FERNEKES' BODY CLAIMED; JOLIET QUIZ PREPARED

The body of Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes was taken from the county morgue yesterday by an undertaker who said he was acting for Jennie Mulhall, named executrix for Fernekes' estate in the self slain ex-convict's will. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment at 6216 North Clark street where attendants said no burial arrangements had yet been made.

Meanwhile, State's Attorney William R. McCabe of Will county was preparing to go before the grand jury in Joliet next week and reopen the investigation into Fernekes' sensational escape from Joliet penitentiary last Aug. 3. Four guards were dismissed from the penitentiary as a result of the incident. McCabe declared that Fernekes could not have walked past guards and out of prison without inside help.

"I believe the guards who allowed Fernekes to escape were merely stupid," McCabe declared, "and had no part in the real plot. Possibly the plot was months in preparation. I want to know how much money was spent and where it was spent to pave the way for Fernekes' flight."

Fernekes ended his life Tuesday by swallowing poison in his cell in the detective bureau. He had been recaptured Monday.

EX-CONVICT RELEASED.

Jack Lataur, 30 years old, 1140 Madison street, an ex-convict, was freed on a charge of disorderly conduct yesterday when he was arraigned before Judge Eugene J. Holland.

STICKNEY POLICE FACE GRAND JURY IN BRIBE INQUIRY

Taxi Dance Girls Name President and Trustees.

The president, six trustees, and four police officials of the village of Stickney were summoned yesterday before the grand jury which is investigating vice and gambling in the western suburbs. Subpenas for the village officials were issued after several dance hall hostesses and three other women were taken before the jury and were reported to have testified that certain Stickney resorts were "protected" by the officials.

William C. Loeffler, village president, was reported to have refused to sign an immunity waiver and he did not testify before the grand jurors. He said he wished to consult his attorney, Joseph Lustfield, before making any statements and was ordered to return this morning.

Ex-Police Chief Testifies.

Louis Marek, former head of the Stickney police department, was reported to have told the jurors that he had seized slot machines and raided resorts in Stickney last July on orders of the state's attorney and was then ousted by Loeffler.

The other officials who testified before the grand jury were Frank Dus, Walter Jicka, Joseph Blaha, Charles Hadec, and Jerry Cibulka, trustees; Police Chief Albert Jarres, Lieut. Riha and Sergt. Charles Bailey. Louis Kovarik, another trustee, who was subpenaed, was not asked to testify.

Forty-four persons, including 23 taxi dance hall hostesses were seized by squads headed by Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney's office in two raids in Stickney on Wednesday night. More than half were taken before the grand jury before the subpenas for the officials were issued.

Find "Suggestive" Dancing.

The taxi dance hostesses were seized in a resort known as the Silver Slipper on Harlem avenue near 40th street. Police also arrested eight men there. Authorities said they were dancing in a suggestive manner. The dancing was such as that which resulted in several taxi dance halls being closed in Chicago, they added.

The second raid, upon the Rendezvous tavern at 6939 Pershing road, resulted in the arrest of three women and ten men, including Eugene Hurley, the bartender.

The grand jury is expected to make its final report today concerning its investigation of Cicero as well as Stickney vice and gambling.

Seize Six in Forest Park.

Two deputy sherifs, who said they had orders to "tighten down," yesterday raided and closed three alleged handbooks in Forest Park. Six keepers and inmates, all Forest Park residents, were taken to the Maywood police station.

The first stop was at the 400 club, 400 South Des Plaines avenue. Phillip Jack, 944 South Hannah avenue, was charged with keeping the place, and Frank Gielo, 7421 Harrison street, was seized as an inmate. The raiders went then to 7201 Madison street, where they arrested Harry Stevens, 1001 Marengo avenue, as the keeper and George Foster as a patron.

At 814 South Des Plaines avenue the deputies seized James Phillip, 911 South Des Plaines avenue, as an inmate and Roy Harvey, 816 South Harlem avenue, as the proprietor.

All will be arraigned in Summit on Nov. 6 before Justice of the Peace Ira Lambert.

In five loop gambling raids later in the day 15 men were arrested by police from the central station. The places raided were 232 West Randolph street, 29 West Randolph street [two raids], 210 West Lake street, and 39 West Adams street.

HURRICANE AND FLOOD DEATH TOLL MOUNTS TO 146 IN HONDURAS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Reports of additional damage caused by the widespread floods of the last week were received here today with the death toll from the high waters and the hurricane which preceded the continued downpours reached 146.

Hundreds of marooned persons were reported hungry and without clothing in the towns of Agua Blanca and Lamina near Progresso.

Supt. A. M. Cobb of the United Fruit company ordered canoes, food and clothing to be sent to that region.

JEWEL THIEVES LOOT 3 HOMES ON NORTH SHORE

Thieves broke into three north shore homes last week-end and escaped with furs, jewels, and silverware valued at more than $7,000, it was disclosed last night when Chicago police were asked to assist in the search for the burglars.

The home of Ernest G. Loeb, 621 Waverly road, Highland Park, was looted last Saturday night while a party was in progress. Thieves fled with a $3,000 fur coat and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars. Mr. Loeb is connected with an insurance firm at 141 West Jackson boulevard.

Two Winnetka homes were burglarized Sunday night. From the home of James P. Haynes, 337 Sheridan road, thieves took a $1,000 ermine wrap, family silverware, and jewelry valued at $600. Mr. Haynes is vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The nearby home of Ernest J. Brasseur, manufacturer, at 333 Sheridan road, also was entered. Brasseur reported loss of jewelry valued at $500.

QUAKES SHAKE NORTHERN U. S.; FELT IN CHICAGO

Big Eastern Cities Jolted; Montana Hit Again.

the street. Street cars passing the buildings were ordered to cease operating, the officials fearing their rumbling would cause the collapse of the structures.

No Shock at Roosevelt Home.

The shocks apparently were not felt at Hyde Park, the country home of President Roosevelt. A call there was answered by a secret service man, who said the President was sleeping peacefully and that none in the household was aware of any earthquake.

It was indicated in dispatches from Montana that the damage in the vicinity of Helena was more extensive than it was during the former quake of Oct. 18. Damage then was placed at two and a half million dollars. Yesterday several large buildings in the town of 12,000, weakened by almost constant shaking for days, collapsed.

Two Killed, Many Hurt in West.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 31.—(AP)—An earthquake which tore at an area 500 miles wide centered upon Helena today, killing at least two persons and injuring scores.

Several buildings in this capital city of 12,000, already weakened by more than 500 earth shocks in 19 days, shuddered and collapsed.

Residents who fled their homes were greeted by wintry winds and near zero temperatures which threatened to go under last night's 4 below minimum.

Striking with a rumble shortly before noon, the severe tremor shook the city for 19 seconds, then sent its quiver through mountainous northern and western Montana, where it rumbled under Butte, Great Falls, and Anaconda.

Spokane and Alberta Shaken.

The movement was felt 500 miles to the west at Spokane, Wash., and extended as far north into Canada as Calgary and Lethbridge, Alta. Only slight, however, was the force in cities outside stricken Helena.

Today's dead brought the earthquake toll to seven, five having died previously from injuries or nervous shock.

Ed O'Brien, 27, of Salt Lake City, was injured fatally shortly before noon when a falling smokestack caught him as it crashed into a brewery where he was doing repair work.

Vincent Kennedy, 24, also of Salt Lake City, working with O'Brien, was killed on the spot.

For a time hysteria threatened. Families, gathering up heavy clothing and blankets, crowded into motor cars and set out in search of safety. They gathered on the roads, in relief shelters, and park areas.

Workmen Thrown from Scaffold.

Injured were rushed to hospitals from many parts of the city. A few workmen were reported seriously hurt when thrown from scaffolding. Most of the quake patients were injured only slightly.

The problem of caring for the injured was made greater because hospitals themselves were damaged. St. John's hospital was evacuated.

Nurses hurried from room to room in both St. John's and St. Peter's hospitals striving to quiet terrified patients.

Bricks Fall Into Streets

Bricks toppled into the streets. Chimneys fell. Walls bulged.

Buildings, especially homes, which withstood the earlier shocks of Oct. 12 and 18, and the intervening recurrent shocks which pushed the total past 500 tremors in 19 days, were generally in good condition tonight.

City Engineer Oscar Baarson did not attempt an immediate estimate of today's damage.

"Most of the apparent new damage was to homes and other buildings which had been cracked and weakened by the previous shocks," he said.

He reported further heavy damage at the Shrine temple, the new high school, the Northern Pacific station, Mills hall, and the gymnasium at Intermountain Union college.

The Montana Power company said its natural gas service had not been interrupted. However, hundreds of calls to shut off the gas to prevent possible fires flooded the office.

Two electric feeder lines were swept to the ground by swaying telephone poles, but service was expected to be normal.

Damage to the Fort Harrison Veterans' hospital, already weakened by former jolts but kept in use to care for shock victims, caused evacuation of the institution tonight.

Dr. H. C. Watts, veterans' administrator, entrained 90 hospitalized veterans for Walla Walla, Wash., at sundown. Others were sent there ten days ago.

He said the power plant chimney was leveled and the plant shaken into disability. Yawning cracks came in hospital walls.

Free County Jail Prisoners.

Twenty prisoners from the county jail were freed from their cells and guarded in nearby substantial buildings when plaster fell in the jail and steel plates and rods groaned.

Two men were injured at St. Mary's Catholic school, Ben J. Wagner of Billings and Sterrett Crum of Helena were thrown 20 feet from a scaffold. Their injuries are said to be serious.

Bernie Wagner, a young workman at the school, ran when he heard a shock which "sounded like the boilers exploding." A bookcase fell on him and pinned him to the floor. He extricated himself and fled.

Steel Worker Struck by Train; Near Death

Struck by an Indiana Harbor Belt Line freight train at 140th street, Dolton, last night, a man believed to be John Hanley, 40 years old, an employé of the Acme Steel company at Riverdale, suffered a fracture of the skull and is in Ingalls Memorial hospital, Harvey. Tentative identification was made from an employé's card in his pocket. His condition is critical.

RAIN AND POLICE KEEP HALLOWEEN TAMEST IN YEARS

Many Children Attend Orderly Festivities.

A rainy evening and a determined campaign by public and civic agencies to keep children off the street, coupled with efforts of the police, combined last night to give Chicago one of its most orderly Halloween celebrations in many years.

Some 400 complaints of vandalism, most of it of little importance, were made to the police up to 11 p. m. At the same time last year the complaints listed had exceeded 800. The fire department, which answered 200 alarms on Halloween of 1934, had only 65 last night in the period ending at 11 p. m. Some of the vandalism was as vicious as that of previous years, but such incidents were the exception.

Women Hit by Eggs.

The most serious damage was the breaking of store windows and the bombarding of street cars with missiles ranging from tomatoes to bricks. Mrs. Agnes Spangenberg, 66 years old, 1430 Rasher avenue, and Mrs. Johanna Benson, 67 years old, were struck with eggs tossed into a Clark street car at Farragut avenue. Both were treated by a physician.

A few fences were torn down and gates were carried away in various parts of the city. On the west and south sides there were several reports of young hoodlums pulling street car trolleys from their wires and delaying transportation.

There were no shootings within the city limits. At Elgin an early celebrant of the holiday, Chester Fehd, 18 years old, was shot and wounded Wednesday night by Albert Schubert, 76 years old, whose little shack a group of boys and girls were trying to tip over. Schubert was charged with assault with intent to murder.

In the Green Frog tavern at 2860 North Halsted street, patrons who were celebrating with beer and other comforting drinks were bombarded with old eggs by a group of boys who entered the place.

Two Wagons Set Afire.

A wagon which had been pulled by a gang to St. Louis and Lawrence avenues and set afire was saved by the Albany Park police. At Fullerton and Kostner avenues a wagon carrying a piano was fired. In Evanston a prairie fire near Darrow avenue and Monroe street, started by boys before the downpour, endangered several buildings. The rain, which began about 7 p. m., ended the menace quickly. An automobile standing in Polk street near Hermitage avenue was set afire and destroyed. The license plates found on it had been issued to Angelo Angelli, 5411 Lexington street.

Three thousand Chicago policemen and 130 of the park district were on duty, but had little to do during the evening. One of them referred to the rain as "equal to a thousand more policemen."

Orderly Entertainments Held.

It was estimated that several hundred thousand school children attended supervised parties and parades. Entertainment was furnished for them in 80 parks and 60 school playgrounds. All the old indoor games, bobbing for apples, gazing into magic mirrors and pinning on the donkeys' tails, were played.

At the Washburn continuation school, an original play was given by the students. At Lake Villa, the residents of the community vied with the boys of Allendale school in a spelling bee. Wheaton was more fortunate than most other suburbs in that it held its Halloween parade just at dusk and finished it long before the rain fell.

A group of 2,500 youngsters who had gathered for a party in a playground at Greenview and Diversey avenues were forced to disperse when the storm broke.

The Journal of the American Medical Association, in its most recent issue, states that physicians have verified the fact that a confederate veteran, a resident of North Carolina, is the actual as well as the putative father of a son born when the ex-soldier was 94 years old.

While the Journal did not mention the father by name, a dispatch from New Bern, N. C., identified him as George Hughes. The child, Franklin Roosevelt Hughes, was born a year ago and the father is now 95.

Physicians who investigated the case reported that the nonagenarian had suffered no wounds in the war, had undergone no operations, and had been singularly free from illness. While he had drunk considerable alcohol until recent years and had chewed tobacco, he had never smoked. He was married first in 1872. Sixteen children were born to that union. The second wife, the mother of the year old baby, is 28.

U. S. FOOTWEAR MAKERS PLAN SHOE FAIR HERE

Footwear manufacturers from many parts of the nation gathered at luncheon in the Palmer house yesterday to plan the first national shoe fair, which will be held in Chicago from Jan. 6 to 9.

James E. Wall of North Adams, Mass., was appointed chairman of the enterprise, which will be sponsored jointly by the National Shoe Retailers' association and the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association. Business meetings will be held at the Palmer house, and there will be exhibits in every loop hotel.

Howard Smith, president of the J. P. Smith Shoe Manufacturing company, commenting on the rise of lether prices, said there had been a 25 per cent increase since July, due to "disguised inflation and government lether hoarding." He predicted this will bring about an immediate increase in the retail price of shoes ranging from 25 cents, in the cheaper lines, to $1 and $3 a pair for more expensive footwear.

"Of course," he added, "those two million hides the government has stored away are good only for cheap shoes, but even so they are hurting the market, and prices have a tendency to rise even more."

JIM TULLY BOOK ABOUT BAGNIO RULED OBSCENE

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—"Ladies of the Parlor," book written by Jim Tully, was declared objectionable at a special sessions hearing and Greenberg Publisher, Inc., was fined $50 for printing it.

The decision was rendered on complaint of Charles J. Bamberger, agent of the New York Society for the Suppresion of Vice, who asserted more than thirty passages of the book were obscene.

NEED FOR GOOD CITIZENS TO BE MESSAGE TODAY

As a preliminary to observance of Citizenship day today, 30 Eagle Boy Scouts yesterday visited Mayor Kelly at the city hall. The mayor told the Scouts that "success in life and good citizenship go hand in hand." Today civic groups and public school assemblies throughout the city will emphasize the need for good citizenship and for the interest of all citizens in good government.

Bans Police Interference with Street Camera Men

Superior Judge Harry B. Miller issued a temporary injunction yesterday restraining the police from interfering with photographers employed by News Flash, Inc., 160 North La Salle street. The photographers take pictures of pedestrians and then hand them addressed envelopes with which they may obtain prints for a fee.

PREACHER SMITH, AID TO HUEY LONG, NOW A PRESIDENCY ASPIRANT

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Gerald L. K. Smith, the ex-preacher who assumed leadership of the "share the wealth" movement on the death of its founder, Huey P. Long, announced here tonight that he will be a candidate for president in the Democratic preferential primary in Georgia next April.

Smith said he consented for his name to be written into the ballot when a group of Georgians approached him and urged his acceptance.

"Who knows?" he said, "I may be the next President of the United States. Stranger things have happened.

"They told me they expected to write in the name of Huey P. Long. Because he was assassinated, they asked if they could write in my name and I consented."

FLORIDA WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE FROM 'THINKER'

West Palm Beach, Fla., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Elizabeth Weeks sued C. C. Weeks of Boynton for divorce today, describing him as a "philosopher or thinker of ideas of how to better conditions of men who would have much but do little."

Mrs. Weeks said in her complaint her husband is Boynton's most enthusiastic disciple of the Townsend and share-the-wealth plans.

She charged him with cruelty and failure to provide, saying she found it "impossible to live in the present on the wealth of the rich which the defendant hopes at some time by his efforts to share, or upon the $200 per month which he hopes to get some 30 or more years from now."

Mrs. Weeks said her husband was a professional boxer until about three years ago, but has been absorbed in economic plans since that time. She asked custody of their one child.

COMPETING BID FOR NEWSPAPER TOLD TO DAVIS

RFC Head Tells of Baring Offer on Bonds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—When Paul Davis, brother of Norman Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large, outbid a competitor and bought bonds of a Nashville newspaper company from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, he previously had been informed by the RFC of the amount which his competitor had bid, it was learned today.

Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman, announced that after James Hammond, publisher of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, had bid $200,000 for $250,000 worth of Tennesseean Publishing company bonds controled by the RFC, the RFC asked Paul Davis "if he thought a better price could be obtained."

Davis, on behalf of the American National bank of Nashville, countered with an offer of $250,000, outbidding Hammond by $50,000. Hammond was given no opportunity to equal or surpass the Davis bid.

Bonds Sold to Davis Bank.

The RFC sold the bonds to the Davis bank, which already held $210,000 worth of the publishing company bonds, and was the chief bondholder.

Hammond has charged that the RFC was interested in keeping control of the publishing company, which owns two Nashville newspapers, in the hands of the Davis brothers, who are pro-New Deal.

Chairman Jones today defended the sale to Davis on the grounds that "of course we accepted the highest offer and agreed to sell the bonds to Mr. Davis."

Uninformed of Davis Bid.

The bonds were offered to Davis after the Hammond bid, presumably in an effort to get better than the 80 cents on the dollar which Hammond had bid. But, although Davis had been informed of the Hammond bid, no similar courtesy was extended to Hammond; he was not told of the Davis bid.

Mr. Jones' formal statement on the bond sale read:

"In handling loans to closed banks, it is the custom of the RFC to require approval of our board when a proposed sale of collateral, held to secure such loans, is for less than face. Consequently with the receiver for the Central Bank and Trust company of New Orleans in receivership submitted a proposal to sell $250,000 par value bonds of the Tennesseean Publishing company, publisher of the Nashville Tennesseean [also in receivership], to Mr. James Hammond at 80 per cent of their face, we inquired of Paul Davis, president of the American National bank at Nashville—which bank holds $210,000 of the Tennesseean Publishing company bonds, there being a total of such bonds outstanding of $750,000—if he thought a better price could be obtained.

Offer of Par Told.

"Mr. Davis offered par for the bonds, which was $50,000 more than Mr. Hammond's offer, and of course we accepted the highest offer and agreed to sell the bonds to Mr. Davis.

"Since both offers were on long time credit and the bank receiver was willing to sell at $200,000 on credit, we offered to accept the bonds from the receiver at $200,000 in part payment of the bank's indebtedness to the RFC.

"When Mr. Davis' note is paid, we will give the Canal bank credit for the excess over $200,000 and interest.

"While the RFC can, under the law, make loans to newspapers, our directors have thought we should not do so, and we have made no newspaper loans."

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

BY ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

MR. BECKER and Mr. Ridgway having finished their interesting accounts of this season's activities and accomplishments on THE TRIBUNE farms, I desire to add a word on a subject in which I have become especially interested—the value of birds to farming.

In my boyhood both prairie chicken and quail were found on the Wheaton farm, but during the years that farms went without protection against trespassers they were all killed, and with them many turkeys and some chickens.

When the authorities awoke to their duty, some fifteen years ago, I began breeding pheasants. Under the advice of the late Wallace Evans, I first built a high woven wire fence around the entire farm to keep out dogs, cats, and vermin, and I set out traps to catch the last.

Astonishing numbers of animals came into them: opossums, raccoons, skunks, weasels, and even a few mink, enough peltry to reward the time of a man with a taste for trapping and curing. The opossum, besides, is celebrated for a meat appreciated by epicures. It is less well known that the venison of young raccoon is indistinguishable from lamb.

Even with this protection the fancy pheasants could not survive. The ringnecks, on the other hand, have prospered so well that for some years I have not found it necessary to hatch pheasant eggs under domestic hens.

After the pheasants were established I began raising quail. At first I found this project difficult. Eggs were hard to obtain, hatching was uncertain, and, unlike the combative pheasants, the quail were too often victims of crows, the one form of vermin that we seem powerless to combat effectively. In spite of these difficulties we have now established several coveys and enjoy their calls of "Bob White." We do not often see them.

Efforts to induce visiting ducks to remain with us have been frustrated by the black murderers. Some day when these marauders have destroyed most of the game birds, perhaps the gun makers will develop a weapon powerful enough to cope with them, but as yet the shotgun and ammunition makers are indifferent or incompetent, or both.

With the aid of county authorities we protect our birds from two legged vermin, and we do not shoot any ourselves. Migratory birds prefer the greater safety of my farm to the vermin infested regions round about and congregate in swarms in the woods and fields. All of this bird life attracts multitudes of hawks, which we combat with pole traps.

The beneficent effect of my feathered friends upon the crops has been enormous. In the midst of nurseries of weeds on abandoned subdivisions, we have nearly weedless fields and produce crops on the poor soil of the Wheaton farm that compare favorably with those grown on bottom lands.

Birds eat little grain in the short period that it is ripe in the fields. They live almost entirely upon weed seeds and insects. The chinch bugs that wreaked devastation over much of the state in the years 1933 and '34 were much less harmful on the Wheaton farm, thanks to Bob White, Ring Neck, and their winged allies.

We have tried to teach our guinea hens to go back to nature, but they refuse to give up civilization. They do range widely through the alfalfa, where they join the turkeys in visibly reducing the grasshoppers, and they pick many thousands of flies off the sheep.

I have not found that pheasants attack other ground birds, as reputed, and, therefore, on the theory that different birds seek different cover and different feed, I will try next year to raise Chukar and Hungarian partridges in numbers.

I have made a start toward stocking the Fox river farm, but, without a boundary fence and in an excellent fox country, have not been successful.

Unless a farmer will afford a vermin-proof fence, vermin will come from far and wide to take his birds. The solution of his problem lies in a general appreciation of the value of birds, which will lead to a general campaign against their destroyers. If this should lead to the revival of fox and coon hunting it will add to the pleasures of farm life while increasing its profits.

STATE STREET TOY OPENING IS SET FOR NOV. 23

The State street toy opening, the day on which the loop stores will first exhibit their extensive displays of Christmas gifts for children, will be Nov. 23, it was anonunced yesterday. Officials of the State Street council said that this date coincides with that named by the Chicago Association of Commerce for a city-wide toy opening day. The purpose of establishing a toy opening day is to start Christmas shopping early and stimulate the holiday business.

FEES PROMISED TO 3 SENATORS IN BOND DEAL

Cuba Is Asked to Pay on Defaulted Issues

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Letters proposing compensation of $25,000 or more to Senators Burton K. Wheeler of Montana and the late Bronson Cutting of New Mexico and an unspecified amount to Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota for aiding American holders of defaulted Cuba bonds were read today at a securities commission hearing.

Albert C. Coyle, secretary and promoter of a committee to aid the American holders of the defaulted bonds, said he wrote the letters. He said the senators had served in one capacity or another, but stressed that no payments had been made for the services.

Coyle also produced expense records purporting to show that Senators Nye and Wheeler, Coyle and Max Winkle, committee member, went to Cuba on committee matters this summer at an expense of $1,189, including transportation, and "entertainment in Havana." The party saw high government officials relative to the bonds.

First Chairman of Group.

Senator Cutting was the committee's first chairman, the letters showed, accepting after Coyle failed to obtain acceptances from Senators Robert La Follette and Wheeler, and Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin. Wheeler became associate counsel of the committee, and Senator Nye accepted the chairmanship after Cutting's death, when Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee refused.

On July 7, 1934, Coyle wrote Wheeler the committee believed he should "receive not less than $25,000 for your services as chairman if the committee were only reasonably successful in its efforts" and that it will be "my [Coyle's] duty to take all details off your hands."

Wheeler refused the chairmanship, but became associate counsel. Coyle said there had been no discussion of arrangements for his compensation.

On Wheeler's refusal, Cutting was asked to be chairman and was informed the duties involved would be "purely nominal."

"I am a little reluctant," Coyle wrote Cutting on July 14, 1934, "to mention the compensation that you would receive as chairman of the committee since I know that it is not a matter of first importance to you; but I ought to say that with reasonable success in rendering a service the chairman of the committee might well receive an honorarium of around $25,000."

On Cutting's death, Coyle wrote Senator McKellar, and then queried Nye on July 17, 1935 in a letter reading in part:

Forty Millions Defaulted.

"In addition to the outstanding public service to be rendered to the holders of these defaulted bonds, the committee is to receive up to one per cent of the face value of the bonds deposited with it for compensation and expenses.

"The amount of the bond now outstanding is $40,000,000; and the number of these which can reasonably be expected to be deposited with the committee will depend largely on how good a settlement we can make for them with the Cuba government."

Coyle informed Nye the duties would not be "onerous" and that he would handle the details. Coyle testified that $366,000 in bonds had been deposited with the committees, and an additional $77,000 pledged through powers of attorney. He said many large holders also had promised support, without actual deposits.

Smash Michigan Ave. Store Window; Steal Fur Coat

Two men smashed a display window of Blum's Vogue, women's wear shop at 630 South Michigan avenue, and took a fur coat yesterday. Police said the steel fence picket used in breaking the window was like the one used Sunday when three robbers smashed a window of the C. D. Peacock jewelry store at Monroe and State streets and escaped with jewelry after shooting a watchman.

23 MILLION MORE FOR ILLINOIS WPA; RELIEF CASH CUT

24,000 Jobs Provided by 381 Projects.

The Illinois emergency relief commission received word from Washington yesterday that the federal government would allot $3,025,000 to the state for relief operations during the first half of November, which falls short of the estimated needs by approximately $1,000,000. At the same time Controler General J. R. McCarl approved 381 Federal Works Progress administration projects for Illinois, requiring $23,839,705 in WPA grants and potential employment for 24,000 persons on the state's relief rolls.

The edict shortening relief funds was said to be motivated by the government's attempt to force Illinois and other states to shoulder the relief burden while "employables" are shifted from the dole to WPA made work. Despite WPA, however, the family relief cases in Illinois are expected to increase from 287,247 for October to 292,297 for November, or 5,050.

Fear Hardships Will Result.

Both John C. Martin, IERC chairman, and Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary, were out of the city yesterday but other officials were of the opinion that in the face of the coming cold weather the federal "squeeze" would result in hardships for Illinois' relief population. They pointed out that the government left the IERC short $1,000,000 in September and $600,000 in October, which forced the commission to reduce all relief orders by 5 per cent.

Dispatches from East St. Louis where Martin was attending the Illinois conference on social welfare quoted him as saying that the figures on the shortened funds were "confusing and misleading." He refused to comment before studying the figures further. The report of the Illinois allotment was given to the office of Senator James Hamilton Lewis at Washington by the Federal Emergency Relief administration.

Summer Jobs Come to End.

In defense of their program WPA officials declared that the relief rolls were increased because summertime employment was ended and many persons had gone on the dole in order to obtain jobs on the projects. They pointed out that 15,564 persons were at work on 133 WPA projects in Illinois on Tuesday.

A new WPA project that started during the day was a $542,123 survey of city streets to determine the condition and type of pavements to be repaired under a previous federal allotment of $32,543,000 for improving 1,000 miles of streets in Chicago.

Mrs. Hazel Ruth Petersen, 25 years old, 1046 Lake Shore drive, won her second divorce yesterday from Folmer Petersen, a bond salesman. She told Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort that she first married Petersen in January, 1934, and brought suit for divorce two months later because he was irritable. She dismissed that bill after Petersen had a goiter operation but his irritableness continued, she said, and she divorced him in October, 1934. They were remarried last February and separated May 25 when he struck her, Mrs. Petersen testified.

U. S. FAR SHORT OF WORKS GOAL SET FOR NOV. 1

Hopkins and Ickes Make Attack on Johnson.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—On the eve of the Nov. 1 deadline originally set by President Roosevelt as the date when 3,500,000 men would be off relief and working on federal projects, Harry Hopkins, works progress administrator, today admitted that the employment program was fully functioning in only six states.

Hopkins refused to make public any figures on the actual number of men employed, but promised some definite information Saturday. He predicted the end of the dole in 20 more states before Nov. 15 and persisted in his assertion that the remaining 22 states would be in the lineup before the end of November. He included Illinois in this last category.

Unite in Verbal Attack.

As if to throw into the background the government's failure to live up to its original schedule, both Hopkins and Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior and public works administrator, at their press conferences united in a verbal attack upon Gen. Hugh Johnson, who has been saying mean things about the works program.

Hopkins, to make a thorough job of it, also attacked Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas, prominently mentioned as a possible Republican nominee for the presidency, and Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, bitter critic of the New Deal.

Landon, Hopkins declared, may have balanced the state of Kansas budget, but he did it at the expense of the hides of the people. People are starving in Georgia because the governor of that state neglected to provide for them after the federal relief program was ended, he added.

Assails Johnson's Speeches.

Secretary Ickes began the barrage of criticism with a comment upon Gen. Johnson's recent speeches flaying the New Deal and its employment program.

"The trouble with the general," he wise-cracked, "is that since he was plucked from the saddle of the NRA he has been suffering from mental saddle soreness. His chief complaint seems to be that the job hasn't been turned over to the army engineers. That's a little naive coming from a blunt-spoken cavalryman. Perhaps he means the job should be given to a certain ex-cavalry officer."

An hour later Hopkins was receiving the press. He was told of Ickes' remark.

"Sounds Cock-Eyed."

"That's pretty good," he commented. "When Johnson says the New Deal is a flop he's just speaking a lot of—damned nonsense. It sounds cock-eyed when he says he's for Roosevelt but against the New Deal. He's wrong on all counts."

A little later he was asked about the fate of persons ruled off the federal relief rolls and unable to secure jobs under the works progress program.

"That's not our responsibility," he answered. "It's up to the states. When Georgia was cut off relief and the governor there was unwilling to do anything, it was a pretty tough break. Many people starved and are now starving. You see, the governor of Georgia is the man who believes in the whipping post."

"Then the assertion made by President Roosevelt that nobody is going to starve is no longer a policy of the administration?" Hopkins was asked.

"It's the state's responsibility, not ours," insisted Hopkins.

Makes Thrust at Kansas.

"What about Kansas?" Hopkins was asked. This seemed to be a sore spot with the works progress administrator. "The state of Kansas never put up a thin dime for relief," he flared. "The last time I heard from them was when they were trying to get up enough money to keep the schools open. Some of the counties of Kansas took care of their people but the state never did a thing. The budget was balanced out there by taking it out of the hides of the people."

Gov. Landon's balancing of the state budget has been cited by his admirers.

Hopkins returned somewhat reluctantly to discussion of the status of the WPA program.

"I can't estimate the number of persons now working but will have definite figures next Saturday," he said. "However, we'll have 3,500,000 at work and the end of direct relief by Dec. 1. Six states are off the dole now, 20 more will be cut off by Nov. 15, and the remainder will be in line before the end of the month."

Makes Report on Illinois.

Asked specifically about Illinois, Hopkins said he had conferred today with Robert J. Dunham, WPA administrator for Illinois, and that Illinois would be among those states with its full quota of men at work before Dec. 1.

"Dunham's got the projects," he said.

COUNCIL GROUP WILL CONSIDER STREET NAMES

Notified that the Works Progress administration has approved a grant of $392,000 for the purchase and installation of new street name signs for the city, Ald. Terence F. Moran [16th], chairman of the city council committee on streets, announced yesterday that his committee would meet Tuesday to consider simplifying the Chicago street name system by eliminating duplicate names and by using the same name for interrupted thoroughfares now bearing several names.

The City club has transmitted to Moran a program of recommended changes which are said to be favored by the postoffice, taxicab companies, and large department stores.

The suggestions include one that all streets running north and south be called "avenues" and all east and west thoroughfares "streets."

PRESIDENT FINDS HOME COUNTY IN NEW DEAL FIGHT

Reads Attack on His Own Policies at Breakfast.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt arrived at his family home here today to vote in next Tuesday's elections and found his ancestral county embroiled in a bitter political war over the New Deal.

At his breakfast table the President was given visible evidence that brain trusters and federal easy money had become a major issue in the local elections of Dutchess county. A screaming advertisment of the Republican county committee in a local newspaper met his eye as he sat down across from his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, after leaving the special train which carried him here from Washington last night.

Urges New Deal Protest.

"Follow Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts and protest the policies of the Roosevelt brain trusters," the message urged. "Fight with your ballots the increasing costs of living caused by the wild extravagance in government under federal and state Democratic rule.

"Repudiate the New Deal."

A further study of the paper by Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that his administration is virtually the sole issue in Poughkeepsie, Dutchess country, and New York state elections. The issue, as bluntly presented by local papers, is, "Can Poughkeepsie be purchased by the New Deal?"

The hottest struggle is over the reelection of George V. L. Spratt, Democrat, who was persuaded by the President to run for office two years ago and rode to an overwhelming victory in a normally Republican city. He is opposed by Frank M. Doran, a sturdy railroad roundhouse superintendent. Spratt is an attorney and, like his friend the President, a member of an old Dutchess county family.

Doran Hits "Vote Buying."

Doran has attacked the sudden avalanche of New Deal handouts which have poured into the city on election eve as a manifestation of the administration's vote buying through public funds squeezed out of taxpayers. He has charged that brain trusters have purchased whole sections of the country by lavish waste of tax money and that Poughkeepsie is now being subjected to political subsidization.

In the last few days the total federal grants to the city have swelled to more than $500,000. Today, shortly after the President's arrival, the state WPA administrator announced the approval of $145,549 more for new projects. Mayor Spratt has hailed each new grant as evidence that the New Deal is doing something for Poughkeepsie.

In his own neighboring town of Hyde Park the President has been partially repudiated by Elmer Vanwagner, Democratic candidate seeking to represent Hyde Park on the Dutchess county board of supervisors. He has refused to answer attacks on the New Deal by his Republican opponent, Walter L. Gilbert. Vanwagner has said he is not stumping for the New Deal but for himself.

Given Cool Reception.

The bitterness of the campaign was manifested, according to Republican leaders, in the bare reception given the President on his arrival. Only a handful of neighbors turned out to watch him enter his automobile for the drive home. There was none of the customary cheering and handclapping in response to the President's waved greetings.

The President will vote at the town hall of Hyde Park. He will cast a ballot not only in the local but in the state election, where the New Deal is exerting every effort to maintain a Democratic assembly in New York.

As he left the train the President said he would devote the day to relaxation. Later during the week's stay he will study developments of his international policy and the unemployment problem.

CRIPPLE SLAYS SELF.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Charles Stephens, 45, former furniture factory night watchman, who has been a cripple for some time, hobbled to the corner grocery store on his crutches and obtained two shotgun shells with which he ended his life by shooting himself in the throat.

DENIAL OF ADDED FEE OFFICE HELP IS RECOMMENDED

But Committee Finds Pleas Hard to Turn Down.

Chief Justice Walter J. La Buy of the Circuit court announced yesterday that the Circuit judges' committee on help will recommend that no additional employés be allowed for any of the thirteen fee offices of Cook county for the fiscal year starting Dec. 1.

The recommendation is tantamount to a denial of the requests of the heads of seven offices who on Monday asked for 180 additional employés. It is customary for the 20 Circuit court judges to accept the recommendations of their committee on help. Under the law, the Circuit judges fix the number of employés in the fee offices.

The decision of the committee, which consists of Judges La Buy, Joseph Burke, and William V. Brothers, was reached following conferences with Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and members of the board's finance committee.

County's Finances Stressed.

"While there was considerable merit in some of the requests," Judge La Buy said, "the committee felt that, owing to the present financial condition of the county, it was impossible to add any help, regardless of how strong a showing was made for the need of more employés. The committee worked and coöperated fully with the county finance committee in working out the schedule."

Judge La Buy said that as a result of the action of the committee there will be a reduction of the amount of help in county fee offices for the first time in several years. There will be a net reduction of thirty-one employés, as Treasurer Joseph L. Gill told the committee Monday that he could get along next year with that much less help. The salary savings in the treasurer's office will approximate $50,000 for the year, Gill said.

It was difficult to turn down some of the requests for more help, particularly those of Sherif Toman and Judge Frank H. Bicek of the Juvenile court, Judge La Buy said. Sherif Toman has asked for 128 additional employés, of which 92 were recommended to increase the highway police department. The Juvenile court had asked for 25 additional probation officers and six clerks and stenographers.

Some Ask No Increase.

Other offices requesting more employés were clerk of the Circuit court, clerk of the County court, Probate court, Criminal court and coroner. No increases were asked for by the Superior court, the adult probation officer, public defender, county recorder and jury commissioners.

The report of the committee on help is to be completed within a week or ten days and Judge La Buy then will call a meeting of all Circuit court judges to pass on it. Preparation of the Circuit judges' certifications on help in fee offices is being done early this year at the request of the county finance committee which is making an effort to have the 1936 budget completed at the beginning of the fiscal year.

FREE LEGAL AID PROTEST TRACED TO NEW DEALERS

Object to Lawyers' War on Doubtful Acts.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Although no official of the federal administration would take responsibility for the protest lodged with the American Bar association against the Liberty league's offer of free legal services in anti-New Deal litigation, it was disclosed in Washington today that the protest had a starting push, at least, from New Deal circles.

One official, who refused to be quoted directly, asserted that several lawyers acting as counsel for administration agencies had complained of the Liberty league offer to the bar association committee on ethics. This informant added that an exhaustive report on the business connections of the league's lawyers had been formulated and circulated among administration leaders, including members of the cabinet.

Hide Identity of Complainant.

Officers of the bar association meanwhile continued to sidestep direct questions as to the identity of the person who had requested an investigation of and an opinion upon the actions of the Liberty leaguers.

Some other folk were not quite so reticent. From Boston came a report that Attorney Joseph L. Kaplan, general counsel for the National Support Roosevelt league, claimed that he made the charges that the Liberty league lawyers were "committing the crime of maintenance"; that is, encouraging litigation by offering free advice and assistance without charge.

Kaplan added that it was "reassuring to find the American Bar association's committee on grievances citing these lawyers for unethical practices." [The association has maintained that no one has been cited, but that the grievance committee has been asked for an opinion on the ethics of the Liberty league offer.]

Kaplan Unknown to Leader.

The Kaplan claim to this particular bit of fame was not upheld by the bar association. It is understood that William L. Ransom of New York, the association president, denied to friends that he ever heard of Kaplan and held to his original statement that the person who requested the ethical probing was an attorney with no political position or affiliation.

Herschel W. Arant of Columbus, O., secretary of the bar committee on ethics, said several attorneys had asked for a ruling on the matter of giving free advice in cases involving the government. He also declined to name those who asked for the opinion. He admitted that there had been some correspondence on the matter, that the committee might have full information when it meets in Columbus on Nov. 15. Until then, he averred, no action was contemplated.

The ire of the New Dealers was aroused against the Liberty league by several actions of the league lawyers. One was the flat announcement, made by a subcommittee of these attorneys in September, that the Wagner labor act is unconstitutional. Another was the offer of James M. Beck, speaking for the committee of league lawyers, to defend any impoverished citizen against unconstitutional acts by government.

Beck Is Assailed.

Mr. Beck, it was learned in Washington today, was referred to in the informal report of the New Deal lawyers as "a vociferous bug on the constitution." Frank J. Hogan, another of the league legal staf, was called "big business' chief legal representative at the national capitol."

One of the big New Dealers asked if he was responsible for the attack on the league before the bar association was Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

"No," he said, "I am not. But I'm glad some one had the sense to do it."

Previously the secretary had criticized the "impertinence" of the league counsel and had referred sarcastically to "Justice Jouett Shouse and his 57 varieties of lawyers."

LABOR OPPOSED TO ANY WAR, ASSERTS GREEN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The American working man is unalterably opposed to war, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said tonight.

"The workers demand peace," he said. "They cry for peace. They think in terms of peace."

The nation's workers, he said, are alert to the European situation, hope that the Italo-Ethiopian dispute will be confined to those two nations, and never would approve American participation in any European war.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Open Lecture Series Tonight

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will open the Blackstone series of lectures in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel tonight, speaking on "Ways to Peace." She is expected to arrive this afternoon from Washington, D. C. A reception will be held following the lecture.

77-B ACT GIVES LEGAL WORK TO ITS CO-AUTHOR

Ex-Congressman Testifies at O'Hara Hearing.

Former Congressman Tom D. McKeown, a Democrat who represented an Oklahoma district for many years until his defeat last fall, admitted before Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday that he has handled about twenty cases under section 77-B of the amended bankruptcy act, which he helped write, since he became a Chicago lawyer about ten months ago.

McKeown was called to the witness stand in Judge Barnes' investigation of the filing of bankruptcy petitions which began with the summoning of Attorney Barrett O'Hara, organizer of the Circle of the Rebuilders. O'Hara is to appear this morning to report whether he will turn over records of the Rebuilders which Judge Barnes instructed him to produce.

Offered Chance to Testify.

McKeown has been mentioned, along with other attorneys, during the hearings and he was given an opportunity to testify, which he accepted. He declared that most of the 77-B cases he has handled were given to him by other attorneys but that "three or four" were turned over by James H. Benjamin, who has also been hired by McKeown to do research work on bankruptcies.

"Who is this Benjamin?" Judge Barnes asked.

McKeown said that he had met Benjamin in Washington before the passage by congress on June 7, 1934, of the amended bankruptcy act and that Benjamin made some suggestions for amendments, a few of which were adopted later.

Benjamin made his first appearance in federal court here several months ago with the opening of a hearing, before Judge James H. Wilkerson, on the reorganization of the Middle West Utilities company, an Insull concern, under 77-B. At that time he was characterized in open court by Attorney Robert N. Golding, counsel for the noteholders' committee, as "a professional procurer of litigation."

Tells of Making Payments.

McKeown said he had paid Benjamin between $200 and $300 for aid in the reorganization cases he is handling. He added that he understood Benjamin was not an attorney but had been in the manufacturing business and now does analysis work in real estate reorganizations.

The ex-congressman declared he had met O'Hara in Washington and had once been introduced by O'Hara for a radio address. He denied that he had made contributions to the Circle of the Rebuilders.

McKeown told the court that he had to leave for Washington immediately and his further examination was postponed, Judge Barnes suggesting that upon his return McKeown call Attorney James C. Leaton, who is acting as friend of the court in the investigation, and state when he could conveniently return to the stand.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

AN ASSURANCE OF DEFEAT.

Former Gov. Len Small of Kankakee, at the age of 73, is thinking of running again for the Republican nomination. He has been encouraged by some of the pay rollers of his old state organization and has been consulted by candidates for other offices. In spite of his age and in spite of the record of his two terms as governor, the possibility that he might undertake to come back must be regarded as the greatest threat against Republican tickets in the state.

In a broken field of candidates, Small, if supported by men who profited from his administration, might win a plurality. It would undoubtedly require a broken and scattered field with many candidates unreasonably and unfortunately fighting each other, but in such case this political calamity would have to be considered within the outside possibilities.

So much for the primaries and the Republican nomination. With Small as candidate the Republicans in Illinois would guarantee the election of the Democrat. The clean sweep of the state by the Democratic party would be assured. The year 1932 would be repeated. The Republican candidate for President would lose the state, and indeed with such evidence of Republican turpitude in a pivotal Republican state the candidate might lose the country.

The nomination of Len Small in Illinois, whatever combination of circumstances brought it about, would be seized upon by the Democrats as prima facie evidence, and indeed as conclusive proof, that the Republican party the country over was so possessed by an irradicable spirit of evil that it could not be trusted in any position of responsibility and public honor any place in the land.

The possibility that Small will again run for office puts the Republicans of Illinois on notice. If they permit this attempted comeback to take serious form they threaten the entire country with the consequences of it. And for themselves they prepare for political suicide.

INDIVIDUALISM IN CHARITY.

Dr. Johnston Myers was about the last of his kind, at least for many years to come, with perhaps only one other notable individualist in charity left in Chicago, Canon David E. Gibson, whose work at the Cathedral Shelter likely will soon succumb to governmental and other checks on individualized charity. Shailer Mathews, then dean of the University of Chicago divinity school, replied to Immanuel officials, searching for a successor to Dr. Myers on one of Dr. Myers' proffered resignations, that "theological seminaries do not turn out Johnston Myerses any more."

The full significance of the Mathews statement, cryptic then, may now be more plainly discerned as government expands its control over all eleemosynary institutions. Trends in higher and theological education for 25 years have been prophetic of present governmental movements in social institutions which have already gone far toward smothering social consciousness by checking individual expression of social responsibility through acts of charity, etc. With the Myerses and Gibsons no longer produced, and with charitable expression cut off from the individual [a state toward which we now rapidly move], charity is likely to become a governmental monopoly, with political patronage replacing religious motives.

ALCOHOL AND GASOLINE.

Letters to the editor of THE TRIBUNE evidence the widespread belief that the number of automobile deaths in Cook county has increased alarmingly since the repeal of prohibition. The facts do not bear out this thesis. Since repeal the number of deaths in automobile accidents has declined.

From Jan. 1 to Oct. 28, 1935, the number of deaths in automobile accidents in Cook county was 792.

The corresponding figure for 1934 was 1,002.

The corresponding figure for 1932, the last year of prohibition, was 932.

If repeal is to be blamed for the slight increase in deaths last year it must be credited with the much more substantial decrease in deaths this year.

There is no slightest doubt that drunken drivers are a menace. The question to be considered is not whether there should be drunken drivers, but whether repeal has put more of them on the roads than were there during prohibition. There are no reliable statistics bearing directly on this point, but the decline in the accident rate leaves a lot for professional prohibitionists to explain. They will have to concede either that drunkenness is not a very frequent cause of motor accidents or that there is less drunkenness than there was a few years ago when prohibition was the law.

Though there has been a substantial decline in automobile deaths this year, the number is still appalling and the prevention of automobile accidents is still among the most important problems which confront our governments and our people. Plainly the return to prohibition offers no remedy. The proposed remedy which offers the largest hope of a reduction in the death rate is the construction of elevated highways. If the crossings are eliminated, crossing accidents cannot take place. Most automobile accidents take place at crossings.

RAPID TRANSIT IN CHICAGO.

A financial plan for the consolidation of the various street car companies serving Chicago has been worked out by a committee appointed last July by Judge Wilkerson. So far as the car riders of Chicago are concerned, the immediate importance of this event is not very great. The surface line companies have been operated as a unit for many years, with through routes and interchange of transfers. If the financial plan is accepted it will not, of itself, add anything to the service now available. The best that can be hoped of it is that it will make the raising of new capital somewhat easier.

Of considerably greater importance to the public was an article which appeared in Sunday's TRIBUNE, surveying the progress of rapid transit in American cities. Rapid transit is defined as elevated or subway train service, or a combination of the two. Four American cities, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston, have it. In all of them except Chicago the business of the rapid transit lines is growing.

Chicago is the exception. Ten years ago the rapid transit lines here carried a larger percentage of the total business than they do today. In the four cities the rapid transit lines do 43 per cent of the total business. In Chicago they do 18. In New York the rapid transit lines carry 70 per cent of all the passengers, the street cars carry 20 per cent, and the buses 10. In Chicago the street cars carry 80 per cent of the passengers, the elevated lines 18, and the buses the rest.

There is room for improving the quality and the quantity of our surface line service, but, by and large, the great deficiency in Chicago's local transportation is the absence of good rapid transit facilities. It is this lack which accounts for the declining importance of the elevated in Chicago. The other cities have been adding to their elevated and subway lines and equipment. Half a billion dollars has been invested in the last 20 years for the benefit of the car riders of New York. Philadelphia's public in the same period has received 150 million dollars' worth of additional lines and equipment. Millions have likewise been spent on rapid transit facilities in Boston, but in Chicago there have been substantially no capital improvements. It could even be argued plausibly that here there has been a disinvestment, resulting from depreciation and obsolescence.

In the other three cities the public credit has been used in greater or less degree to provide the money for rapid transit services. To the extent that the fares have not covered the annual charges, the taxpayers in those cities have subsidized the car riders. In Chicago precisely the reverse is true. The surface line riders are subsidizing the taxpayers. Here 55 per cent of the net profits of the surface lines have gone to the city. The money has been accumulating as a trust fund since 1907 and now amounts to something like 60 million dollars. The city government has borrowed substantially all of it to pay the running expenses of the city and the schools. The fund has been a life saver during the period of tax delinquencies, but it remains to be seen how much of the investment in tax warrants will eventually be recovered.

Whatever can be salvaged ought to be put to work in providing additional transportation services. As rapidly as possible the fund should be rendered liquid and spent to best advantage. The only way Chicago can ever get better transportation service is to buy it. If we cannot buy all we need, we should not use that as an excuse for not buying as much as we can with the funds we have available.

THE NEW BUDGETS.

The annual report of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency calls attention once more to the fact that, though little progress is being made in reducing tax delinquencies, the pressure for additional spending by many of the local governments is not being resisted as vigorously as before. In the words of the report, "the attitude of the public officials toward these demands and toward the question of increasing taxes of various sorts is obviously much more lenient than in 1933."

This accurate estimate of the situation by the Civic federation is one more evidence of its usefulness to the communities which it serves. For many years the federation has furnished wise counsel to public officials and to taxpayers. At no time has there been greater need for such an organization than there is today, when new budget estimates are being prepared.

Editorial of the Day

WPA SNAGGED.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

There are public works in Rockford and Winnebago county mapped out by local officials and in turn passed on by the district WPA officers which, if undertaken, would give employment to a good many hundred work-seeking citizens and would be of more actual value than the road work now being carried on by WPA funds in suburban territory for which Rockford workers are being carried back and forth daily.

Space does not permit the listing of these proposed works with date of submission to WPA authorities. They have been printed frequently in other columns of the Register-Republic. District WPA Director Mogens Ipsen has not delayed passing upon these projects in his office. They have gone through promptly. State WPA headquarters officials say they have been equally prompt. The delay in works progress is said to have occurred in Washington—the office of the federal controler is suggested—where conditions are entirely beyond the jurisdiction and responsibility of Rockford or Illinois WPA officials.

The explanation may be accepted. But even if it is not challenged it does not alter the fact that WPA is providing but a morsel of work in Rockford and it appears to dispose of the charge that this lack of work is due to some negligence or other fault of local officials.

The fact remains that there are approximately 4,900 employable family heads on the Winnebago county relief roll, that only 600 have been transferred to the WPA pay roll, and all but a few of these are working on projects outside of the city.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office.

HERR HITLER and the Nazis are mad at England because of Winston Churchill's magazine article in which he said horrid things about Mr. Hitler—probably that his mustache looked like something that the cat dragged in; Mussolini is mad at the League of Nations because of the embargo on shipments to and from Italy; the Japanese are mad at Mr. Roosevelt because he wired to Mr. Garner, the w. k. Vice President, that if he didn't want to go in his stocking feet to call on the mikado he might go barefooted. Oh, the great insult! Seven major generals in the Japanese army, five elder statesmen, sixteen princes, and nine rickshaw runners have already committed hara-kiri because of the suggestion that one might walk into the sacred presence of the mikado in bare feet. So it goes around the world. I've noticed it even here in America. A fat woman bawled the head off the conductor of a Clark street car because she didn't know when he yelled "Go-easy street" that he meant Goethe street and she wanted to get off there. "Why didn't you call it right? 'Goat-tie street,'" yelled the woman. "Can't you speak the English language? Go on back to Roosia where you come from."

And I note that tendency everywhere. Everybody seems to be carrying a chip on his shoulder. Everybody flares up and gets mad nowadays on the slightest excuse. I wonder why. There are lots of things to vex our souls these times, but we should try to control our tempers and be perfectly calm and reasonable and not take offense over a harmless pleasantry or some little thing that can be laughed off. But if I ever catch the dastardly cur that soaped a Halloween pumpkin on the windshield of my car last night I'm going to wring his neck and sue him for nine million dollars damages. I'll learn him, gol dern him!

BETRAYAL.

Who will say the face is not
 A colorful map of all our days,
An imprint made of all the hours,
 A chart of all our devious ways?

In the settling of a step,
 In the midnight of a smile,
Is there not a lamp whose light
 Shows the mark of every mile?

In the way a hand is lifted,
 In a word that is not said,
There is all the painful record
 Of a moment that has fled.

Every voice that is forgotten,
 All the promises, the lies,
Stand, a signpost reckoned surely,
 In the shadows of our eyes.

JOHN DILLON HUSBAND.

I THINK IT'S A GAME the dear little school children are playing on the dear, kind teacher and the sad-eyed, can't-see-a-joke school board. The dear little child that gets fired from school the most times in a month for not saluting the flag gets a penny from each of the rest of 'em. When I was a dear little child in school we used to rag the teacher by hurling spitballs around the room, but shucks! spitballs don't sound like near as much fun as getting fired for not saluting the flag. Leave it to the little ones; they are always inventing new games.

A NICE POLITE NOTE from Secretary of State Hughes reminds me that if I want the same number on my car next year that I had last to have my money in Springfield before the first day of December. Which makes me again take up the question as to whether I want that auto number or would it be simpler and less nerve racking to go over and join Haile Selassie's boys and make faces at Italian machine guns. What with likker and carelessness and indifference and lack of experience and just common everyday dumbness the drivers are getting worse and worse. I think I would be safer in the trenches. Anyhow, I never heard of anybody in the trenches being run over by a hit-and-run driver.

VELVET, COBALT BLUE.

I told my conscience that I purchased you
To make a dress; my conscience was appeased,
You seemed so dark and practically blue
And strong of thread and firm and warm of weave.

I view my conscience now with tongue in cheek;
It wonders at the folly of my ways;
I've reveled in your glory for a week
And will not cut you yet for many days.

See, when I throw your length across a chair
The lights fall slantwise and the shadows straight
I drop you in a heap and you lie there
A jewel with a darkly glowing face.

I hang you upside down and you are light
As Chinese larkspur, bright as chicory,
As summer skies between sundown and night.
I drape you, you are ripples on the sea.

You are as bright as flame tips, you are dark
As sunless waters, you are soft to touch.
I rub you wrong expecting you to spark
As cat fur. Oh, I like you very much.

And when I've captured every utmost mood
Of you, you will be mine in every thread.
I'll cut and sew, knowing the pattern good
And velvet, we shall then be truly wed.

P. S. MCDONALD.

AND WHILE THE GOVERNMENT is paying the farmers for all the pigs they don't raise and all the corn and wheat and cotton they don't plant why don't they pay the radio song crooners for every radio song they don't croon? And why not pay the gals who lecture and do parts in radio drama for keeping off the air? I don't know how much it would cost the government, but it would be worth it.

NEURITIS A COMPLICATION OF PREGNANCY.

FOR the most part pregnancy is a normal physiological process. Naturally the resistance of the mother is put to a strenuous test, but nature has surrounded motherhood with so many precautions that things rarely go wrong. We do hear of cases of pernicious vomiting and now and then of eclampsia [convulsions of pregnancy]. But if the prospective mother will keep closely in touch with her physician and insist upon frequent examinations involving the urine, blood pressure, state of nutrition, etc., most of the unpleasant accompaniments will be avoided.

A rather unusual complication is the development of neuritis followed by paralysis. Even this condition rarely appears alone. It occurs occasionally as a result of attacks of pernicious vomiting, which rather abruptly cease on the first sign of paralysis.

The patient may complain first of weakness and numbness in the legs, later in the arms. The heart is rather more rapid than normal, and sometimes mental changes will be observed. The most striking symptom is a paralysis of certain muscle groups of the leg or arm, with inability to raise the foot or hand. On examination, tenderness over the nerve trunks may be detected. If the disease is unchecked paralysis may extend to the abdominal and the chest muscles. Among the nervous reactions are mild excitability, insomnia, and forgetfulness.

The suggestion has been offered, and with reasonable prospect of accuracy, that the condition is due to the lack of some important vitamin in the diet, possibly vitamin B, inasmuch as the symptoms somewhat resemble those of beriberi, which is considered a vitamin deficiency disease. It may be that vitamin B is not the only missing food factor, and that the supply of other vitamins is inadequate. This is understandable when we consider that the appetite of the pregnant woman is occasionally finicky or capricious and that loss of food through vomiting, unless promptly replaced, may account for the absence of indispensable food elements.

The treatment necessarily is dietary. This means a well balanced diet, plus large quantities of vitamins, chiefly vitamin B. This latter element may be supplied by yeast or yeast vitamin tablets. Foods such as butter, fresh vegetables, orange juice, and even cod liver oil should be given on the assumption that vitamin B may not be the only deficiency. Most of these women show some anemia and hence the use of liver and iron may be required. If severe pain accompanies the loss of nerve function some hypnotic will be found useful.

Recent reports indicate that relief has followed the use of brewer's yeast. The case is cited of a severe neuritis complicating pregnancy, in which the paralysis increased steadily until the patient was placed on one ounce of brewer's yeast three times a day. Orange juice, cod liver oil, and calcium gluconate were also given. Within a few days marked improvement was observed. The mental condition cleared, the pulse rate dropped, and the patient gained strength rapidly. Pregnancy progressed to a normal termination.

We may infer, therefore, that the feeding of generous quantities of vitamins—particularly vitamin B—during the entire pregnancy period will prevent the onset of neuritis and probably influence favorably excessive vomiting. Fortunately this complication is not common.

GLANDS.

"Glands and Efficient Behavior," by Florence Mateer, Ph. D. [Appleton-Century, 1935, $2.50], attempts to set forth the relation between gland deficiency and behavior problems. She has given some clear cut cases that are of interest particularly to those who are dealing with subnormal children.

These are days in which glands are blamed for almost everything including the state of the nation.

Beginning with the early work of Brown-Siquard, knowledge of endocrine glands has grown apace. However, as with many new remedies, certain glandular extracts have proved disappointing. Numerous cases have been benefited by the employment of extracts of the thyroid, the pituitary, the pancreas [insulin], and the adrenals [adrenalin].

Behavior problems in children may have a glandular basis. More often than not, however, the difficulty lies in lack of parental control or failure to establish confidence and respect between parent and child.

WALPOLE'S LAUGH.

A few months ago we received several inquiries relative to a miracle working remedy for arthritis recommended by Mr. Hugh Walpole, an account of which was published in a weekly magazine.

Inquiry of the British Medical Journal brings the information that Kleno is a cleanser and disinfectant recommended for use in "sick rooms, offices, residential houses, etc." It is guaranteed "to remove corrupt matter from drains [not brains], sinks, pipes, etc., and at the same time destroy the bacteria that thrive in these places."

A British correspondent suggests that Mr. Walpole must have had a good laugh at the gullible reporter of the weekly in question.

CARDIAC SPASM.

T. M. writes: If a person deep in the sixties has cardiac spasm, does this mean that the heart is weak? Can a person live long with this ailment?

REPLY.

The "cardiac spasm" you refer to may be due to heart disease. By living carefully, avoiding overexcess and excitement, eating moderately and sensibly, you may have many years of comfort. If the pain is true angina, carry a few emergency tablets that your physician can provide.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Peotone, Ill., Oct. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A and B own a tract of real estate lying in Minnesota. The deed is made out to A and B, "joint tenants and not tenants in common." Now A and B are both married, each having a wife and minor children. 1. In case A should die how can Mrs. A secure the same rights to the property that her husband now has? 2. What difference would it make as to the rights of Mrs. A in case the above clause, "joint tenants-common," were not inserted? 3. In case there is no will left, does the property of A become the property of his wife in above case? 4. If the property of the husband does not become the property of the wife upon his death, as in above case, how could a deed be made out so that it would become the property of the wife without probate proceedings?

L. D.

1. No steps taken after the death of one of the joint tenants could prevent the property from going to the survivor.

2. In such case the one-half belonging to the one who died first would go to his heirs.

3. See preceding answers.

4. As to property which your husband owns with an inheritable estate it would be enough to place such property in joint tenancy with husband and wife, but this would not be true as to the husband's interest held in joint tenancy with a third party.

To create a joint tenancy in real estate the conveyance should expressly declare that title is to pass not in tenancy in common but in joint tenancy. [Illinois Revised Statutes, chapter 76, section 1.] If title is already in one of the parties it should be deeded to a third person who is not subject to judgment liens. He should then deed back to the two, using a joint tenancy form, which can be secured from a stationer.

To create a joint tenancy in personal property the "will or other instrument in writing" should express "an intention to create a joint tenancy . . . with the right of survivorship" [Section 2]. Under the statute we consider it advisable not to rely on the wording of a stock certificate, nor on the fact that the parties have joint access to a safety box. The intention should be expressed in a writing by the owner or owners.

On the death of a joint tenant the property passes to the survivor without necessity for probate and to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first. The one-half that thus passes by survivorship is subject to inheritance tax.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROBATE PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there a specific time in which the will of a person who is dead, and which disposes of real estate and personal property, must be probated, and if so, what is that time limit? 2. What would be the effect if it were not done in that time? 3. In case there is a mortgage on a piece of real estate named in the will, is it possible for the holder of the mortgage to foreclose before the estate is completely settled? 4. Am I right in thinking that an estate cannot be completely settled for one year?

C. E. P.

1. No; if all parties are satisfied, probate can be dispensed with and the only question will be whether you can find a future purchaser who will be satisfied with affidavits as to the absence of creditors and who are the heirs.

2. See 1.

3. Yes.

4. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A YEAR TO CLOSE ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In the event of one having been left a legacy [1] should one be notified immediately after the will is read? 2. In Illinois, does it always take a year to probate same? 3. Does it take a year before the heirs can come into any of their possessions?

J. D.

1. Not necessarily.

2. Creditors are allowed a year in which to file claims.

3. Ordinarily there is no distribution until after the expiration of such year.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—An announcement just made here indicates that the Irish government has achieved considerable success in its efforts to obtain protection for Irish nationals who may be interested in legacies or other property in the United States.

That there are many such is inevitable in view of the enormous numbers of Irish born people, or people of Irish descent, who have made their homes there. Many of these have been thrifty and accumulated fortunes; many have died leaving no heirs; many did not even let it be known what part of Ireland they originally came from.

This secrecy was not altogether unaccountable. Most of the earlier emigrants were probably illiterate; they would have a natural hesitancy to confide their affairs to others, and the result was that when they died there was no information available as to their relatives. In this way oftentimes substantial sums of money as well as property reverted to the state because of the absence of a properly authenticated claimant.

It is perhaps not surprising that in such circumstances a new occupation known as "heir chasing" has developed in America. No doubt the efforts of agents to trace the legitimate heirs to property in the United States have been very successful and gratifying to people in this country, but there have been many instances in which it was the agents and not the heirs who reaped the greatest advantage.

Notorious scandals have been exposed, with the result that the Free State government was obliged to take serious notice of them. The usual procedure was that as soon as the legitimate heir to a property was found through advertisments in the Irish newspapers the American agent secured power of attorney to administer the estate, stipulating for fees in many cases as high as 50 per cent of the total value. In some instances they were even higher. Agents who specialized in this work had little difficulty in securing assistants in this country to aid them in their efforts to fleece the beneficiaries on this side.

The Free State government now has its consuls in New York, Chicago, Boston, and San Francisco to interest themselves in these matters with the result that already the old practice has been largely abolished. From one consulate alone a sum of $100,000 has been sent to heirs here in the present year of which, were it not for the consul's efforts, not more than half would have been realized. The consuls have been instructed to see that in all these cases in the future none but legitimate lawyers should be employed.

FROM HAMILTON FISH JR.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—A number of articles have appeared in the press recently stating that I was a candidate for the Republican nomination for President. I have never stated that I was a candidate, nor have I authorized any one to throw my hat in the ring.

I have been hoping for the last year that some one of the type of former President Theodore Roosevelt would come forward as a candidate. He represented those qualifications that appeal to a majority of the people, such as courage, capacity for hard hitting, national experience, Americanism, and a political record based on constructive liberalism and a square deal for labor, the farmer, the business man, and private property, within the confines of the constitution.

Whether I shall become a candidate depends largely on the type of candidates that are trotted out by their backers. Unless a candidate comes forward who has some national training and experience and has the knowledge and capacity to present the national issues squarely to the people, I reserve the right to become a candidate later on. If so, I will carry the fight into the primaries, and promise to discuss the New Deal policies without evasions or gloves.

I am unalterably opposed, in this crisis in our national affairs, to the promotion of favorite sons without training or knowledge of the workings of the federal government for the indirect purpose of either making political trades or permitting a half dozen Old Guard national committee members to pick a candidate in a back room. Any such antiquated and reactionary folly will mean the doom of the candidate and oblivion for the Republican party. I hope all candidates who have any qualifications or issues to present will enter the presidential primaries in every state where they are to be held. In this way a candidate may be developed who has some popular support and who can be elected.

HAMILTON FISH JR.

SEATS FOR CHICAGOANS.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—We are wondering when the Chicago Rapid Transit will start accommodating Chicagoans instead of the residents of Wilmette and Evanston. Imagine boarding a train at the city limits, Howard street, and finding every seat occupied by our suburban neighbors, necessitating the Chicago people standing all the way to the loop! Is there any good reason why every other Loyola express train, during the morning rush hours, cannot be started from Howard street? Isn't it just as easy to make up an express train in the Howard street yards as it is to start all the locals from there?

ESTHER JACKSON.

VOTES FOR SANTA CLAUS.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Now that the farmers, who received benefits for not producing under the AAA, have expressed themselves 6 to 1 in favor of the plan, it is time to canvass the flophouses of Chicago and other large cities and find out how the nonproducing Patchmores stand on the proposition of giving each one of them $2 a week until the warmth of the early spring again lures them away.

J. A. WEBER.

TARIF AND PROCESSING TAX.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 28.—I have heard the statement that the processing tax is the same as the protective tarif tax; that the processing tax is for the benefit of the farmer and the tarif tax is for the benefit of the manufacturer.

A few honest people may believe that statement, but it is used by the trickster and the demagog to befuddle the farmer.

A protective tarif is paid by the foreigner to the government to pay its legitimate expenses, and is to enable the home producer to pay fair wages and then sell his goods in competition with those produced by cheap foreign labor.

The processing tax is paid by the American miller or packer to be ultimately paid by every American citizen who eats bread and meat.

The money—what is left after a horde of federal employés are paid—goes not to the government, but to a special class of citizens—the farmer—not for service given, but for not giving service, for not producing the corn and hogs that his own judgment dictates.

The farmer is not a child that needs a paternalistic government to direct and control his business. He will average in intelligence with his fellow citizens and is no more entitled to an unearned gratuity than the coal miner, the worker in a factory, or any other good citizen.

Our county agricultural agent is greatly rejoiced over what he calls an almost unanimous decision in favor of the corn-hog guardianship; in favor 445, against 25. But if he would think that there are more than 1,800 farmers in his county and that less than one-third are in favor of a Washington dictatorship, even though it is sweetened with an unearned government check, he will have a small crumb over which to rejoice.

The farmers are our most dependable class of citizens and if they are given time and not coddled into parasites they will come out of this depression along with other lines of business.

M. F. WHELAN.

A RAID.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—On Monday afternoon I wanted to bet $1 on a certain horse. I was in a commission room in the vicinity of Randolph and Dearborn streets when the police squad came and boldly chopped down all the doors. They searched everybody, but I must say they were polite enough not to take anybody to the police station except the owners of the place.

When I go out to the race track and bet my money I am treated with respect and given every comfort. Why am I treated like a criminal when I want to do the same thing in the loop?

S. C.

IF SO, THEY'RE WRONG.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—John McCutcheon should read a history book. In his cartoon of Oct. 17 he states that the Americans slain in all the wars of our history from 1776 to 1935 number 244,357. I wish to state that the total number of lives lost in the civil war alone numbers 6,100,000, or so the history books used in the Chicago high schools say.

SWEITZER JURY TOLD HOW 'R.M.S. GOT $200,000'

Ex-Aid Testifies on Book Juggling Order.

luctant to give any testimony he thought might be detrimental to his relative. After considerable objection by defense attorneys Higgins was withdrawn from the witness stand. He may be recalled later as a witness.

Financial Statement at Issue.

The financial statement at issue was the one in which the prosecution charges Sweitzer gave Flynn an untruthful report as to the location and disposition of certain funds controled by the clerk's office at the time Sweitzer left the office. This money was designated in the statement, it is charged, as having been on deposit in banks that now are closed.

The prosecution hopes to get the statement before the jury as evidence this morning when Flynn, who is expected to be the main prosecution witness, is called to testify.

Keevers, who kept the books in the county clerk's office from June, 1911, to October, 1923, was the only important witness yesterday.

Keevers' Direct Testimony.

On direct examination the former bookkeeper, a man over 70 years old, identified an entry of the $200,000 item in the books of the clerk's office, which had penciled after it a single notation: "R. M. S. has." This entry bore the date of March 4, 1922, and showed merely that the money had been received by the clerk from the county treasurer as a regular fee for extending taxes.

The witness also identified a number of exhibits, which the state presented as being monthly trial balances of the office during the period Keevers was the head bookkeeper. These statements, Keevers said, were submitted to the county clerk and to the cashier each month. On these balances, he said, the $200,000 item was carried with the notation: "With Robert M. Sweitzer, general fund, county clerk."

Fund Balanced in 1910.

The only other testimony Keevers gave on direct examination was that the tax redemption fund—from which the prosecution charges Sweitzer "took funds every time he needed money"—was in balance when Sweitzer took over the clerk's office in 1910.

Attorney Levinson then began cross-examination of the witness by showing that Keevers had not seen the books and records for 12 years and that he had obtained his job through the recommendation of the late George E. Brennan, Democratic boss.

The questioning which ensued was as follows:

Q.—From what source did you obtain your information about the $200,000 item? A.—From Mr. Sweitzer.

Q.—How was that? A.—He called me into his office and gave me that information.

Q.—When was that? A.—Sometime in March, 1922.

Q.—Did you ever check with the county treasurer's office to see if this money ever came to the county clerk? A.—No.

The "Sweitzer Admission."

It was at this point that Attorney Levinson asked the question, which, according to witness' reply, definitly put the money in Sweitzer's possession—and by his own admission.

Sweitzer, who had been dozing in his chair at the attorneys' table, woke up and listened intently as Levinson put the question.

Q.—Then you don't know whether the county clerk ever received that money? A.—Only from what Mr. Sweitzer said. He said he got the $200,000 from the county treasurer and he was going to make a special deposit of it.

Q.—Is that the only time Mr. Sweitzer directed you to make an entry in the books? A.—I cannot recall any other.

The smiles of the prosecution attorneys showed their satisfaction at this point as Attorney Levinson went ahead in his examination, bringing out what they considered further damaging admissions.

Where Did the Money Go?

Q. [By Attorney Levinson]—When is the first time you thought of this so-called conversation with Mr. Sweitzer after you say it occurred? A.—I have thought of it many times since. I wondered where the money was deposited.

Q.—If you were so concerned about it why did you not ask Sweitzer where it was deposited?

A prosecution objection to this question was upheld and the attorney then started to question the witness about the amount of money handled in the clerk's office in a year. This type of testimony also was not allowed, and again he returned to the $200,000 item.

Q.—Did you ever talk about this matter with any one? A.—Yes, I had one conversation with Jerry Mayer, the then cashier, some two months after it occurred. Jerry asked me if I knew where the money was deposited and I said "no." I asked him if he knew and he said "no."

The defense then asked for a recess, and afterward announced they did not wish to question the witness further.

Prosecutor Leslie Salter confined his re-direct examination to reëmphasizing the testimony Keevers gave on cross-examination. He was constantly hampered by defense objections. It was then that Higgins was called to the witness stand.

POLICEMAN SEVENTH TO DIE AS RESULT OF GULF DOCK STRIKE

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The seventh fatality in the prolonged gulf ports strike of the International Longshoremen's association occurred here today with the death of Policeman Ed Deford. The policeman succumbed to wounds suffered in an exchange of gunfire with a picket who was slain.

The picket, Ernest Dukes, colored, was killed when the shooting started last night as a worker was being escorted by police through picket lines to the docks. The escort had been provided after the worker reported threats had been made against his life.

As a result of the fatal fight the city police today curbed activities of the pickets and rounded up scores of men for questioning in connection with the attack.

One of those arrested, Willie Parker, colored, was fined $500 or sentenced to serve a jail term of 140 days on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

DICKINSON VIEWS AAA AS LADDER TO G.O.P. VICTORY

Cites Defects; Outlines Substitute Policy.

should go to the country with a plan for curing its defects. What are the defects? Well, principally they are these:

"1. Dependence on production allotment control for price stabilization which is not effective.

"2. Lack of an adequate system of financing.

"3. Loss of foreign markets for cotton, wheat, and pork products. This is due to the adoption of conflicting methods of control of crop production on the one hand and on the other a lowering of tarif barriers resulting in imports of competing products detrimental to farmers.

"4. An artificial stimulus that benefits any particular group of producers may confer temporary benefits, but in the end it usually subjects such producers to severe handicaps resulting from discrimination against the product. Why, my dear sir, it took us fifteen years to overcome the effect of the propaganda for meatless days during the world war."

Outlines Constructive Program.

Senator Dickinson paused and reflectively smoothed his shock of wavy white hair.

"Now those are the principal defects to be cured if the AAA receives a new lease of life from the Supreme court," he resumed. "But if the Supreme court knocks out the AAA, and I believe it will, the Republican party should proffer a program in lieu therefore and that program, in my opinion, should be built around a few principles which I will summarize as follows:

"1. Segregation of the farm product surplus from domestic consumption under the theory of the old equalization fee, functioning through coöperative organizations of producers—essentially the provisions of the old McNary-Haugen bill.

"2. Financing of products on the farm by some type of government loan until banking facilities can be restored to supply the need.

"3. Amplification of the warehousing act to permit sealing on the farm and make warehouse certificates eligible to rediscount by banking institutions.

"4. A land utilization program involving conservation, erosion control, and soil conservation."

Appears Year Younger.

Dickinson, who is now 62 years old and looks ten years younger, was born and bred on an Iowa farm. As a small town lawyer until he went to congress 18 years ago, he was in close contact with farmers and became a student of the agricultural problem. He was a pioneer for farm relief in the house a decade ago; "Hell Roaring Dick," they called him, because he roared the cause of the farmers till the rafters shook.

As to running for office, Dickinson says he is, most assuredly, but it is for renomination next year for a second term in the senate. Nevertheless there is little doubt that the Iowa delegation to the Republican national convention will present his name for the nomination for President and from what I have heard in Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, and Wisconsin, there will be numerous friends of the senator in those delegations.

If he should be nominated, the party would have in its candidate a man thoroughly conversant with the affairs of the federal government—[he recently checked in detail the expenditures of every bureau at Washington]—and a man who would make an energetic, hard hitting campaign. He is famous for his exposures in the senate of weaknesses of the New Deal.

Dickinson is identified not only with farm relief but with ample tarif protection for farm products. He was a leader in getting increased protection for farmers in the present tarif act.

CAPT. SAMMIS RESIGNS LINCOLN PARK POLICE COMMAND ON TUESDAY

James U. Sammis Jr., head of the Lincoln park police since January, 1931, yesterday handed his resignation, effective next Tuesday, to George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the Chicago park district. Sammis, who has been in charge of the north division of the park police since the park consolidation, said he wishes to reënter the business field and is considering several offers he has received recently.

CAPT. SAMMIS.

Sammis, who has the rank of captain in the park police force, is a major in the Illinois National Guard. He served as a private on the Mexican border in 1916 and went overseas in the world war as a first lieutenant. Under his direction the Lincoln park police force was known for its discipline. In January, 1933, he was commended for preventing a serious riot when his men controled a communist demonstration directed against the Japanese consulate.

CITY'S SCHOOL CHILDREN PAY HONOR TO FLAG

Children in every public school room in Chicago yesterday saluted the American flag, sang the national anthem and recited the oath of allegiance.

An order that this be done, issued by the board of education, was carried out, it was reported, enthusiastically in all sections of the city.

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, said that he had received a number of messages approving the school board's order, and added that the teachers also seemed to be pleased with it.

BETTER LIGHT—BETTER SIGHT

greater production · less spoilage

fewer accidents

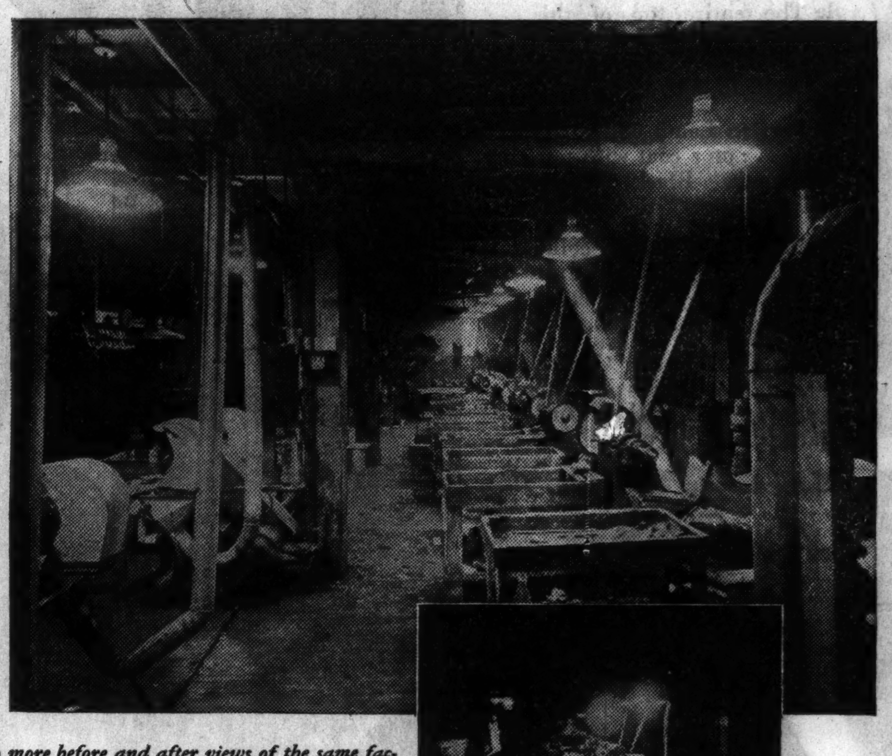
PROFIT BY THE EXPERIENCE OF THIS CHICAGO ORGANIZATION. ASK FOR OUR FREE LIGHTING SURVEY NOW!

Two views of the Colonial Premier factory—before and after proper lighting. Note the remarkable improvement. No deep shadows, no direct or reflected glare. Soft, pleasant, ABUNDANT light that helps, not hinders, the worker.



Two more before and after views of the same factory. What a difference in lighting! Glare, reflections, dark shadows—all have been eliminated. Easy to see how good light cuts down accidents, speeds production.

POOR light costs American industry millions of dollars every year. Twenty per cent of all industrial accidents are traced to this cause. Poor light handicaps workers. Under constant strain, they cannot work at normal efficiency. Production lags. Spoilage is frequent and costly. The experience of the Colonial Premier Company is extremely interesting. Read what Mr. Meyer says:

"For a long time our lighting was typical of many factories. Drop cords were used and not always properly spaced. Some bulbs had shades, some did not. The result was very poor, uneven lighting—and a marked difference in the production efforts of our night and day forces. Worst of all, accidents were numerous."

But after installing improved lighting equipment Mr. Meyer reported: "Now we seldom have an accident. Our production has speeded up. We have fewer rejects. The night force works with the same efficiency and speed as the day force. We have been able to make use of space that stood idle before."

Check your lighting now

Adequate light can work wonders in increased production, better work, fewer accidents. It leads to greater profits, yet is perhaps the lowest of all operating costs.

Find out now how your lighting compares with workers' needs. Ask for a free lighting survey that does not obligate you in any way. It takes but a few minutes to prove how efficient your lighting really is. Telephone Randolph 1200, Local 159.

A "Sight Meter" will tell at a glance whether lighting is adequate. Upon request, a lighting engineer will make a free "Sight Meter" test of your light.

VALIDITY OF NEW LABOR RELATIONS ACT QUESTIONED

Dean Spencer of U. of C. Analyzes Law.

The constitutionality of the Wagner national labor relations act, a New Deal measure which was passed at the last session of congress, is questioned in an analysis made by Dean W. H. Spencer of the school of business of the University of Chicago. The analysis has been published by the University Press.

Dean Spencer found the act, on the whole, a sound piece of legislation in spite of "some ill advised provisions and certain serious omissions." He characterized it as "not as bad as some employers seem to think it is."

Discussing legal aspects, the dean declared the law is vulnerable to constitutional attack on several grounds. "The Supreme court," he wrote, "may declare one or more of the clauses governing relationships between employer and employés unconstitutional on the ground they are unjustifiable interference with freedom of contract guaranteed by the fifth amendment.

Invasion of State's Rights.

"The court may also decide that certain other sections offend against the due process of law because they do not provide for adequate judicial review of the board's decisions.

"Although it is unlikely the court will declare the whole law unconstitutional on the ground it invades the sphere of state control over local affairs, it is possible the court may so far limit the application of the law as practically to nullify it."

Turning to the philosophy engendering the legislation Dean Spencer observes:

"It is somewhat premature to assume we have come to the end of the competitive régime and that we are permanently committed to a régime of economic planning . . . and that a return to competition is unthinkable."

Calls New Deal Inconsistent.

In somewhat stronger terms, the dean continues:

"Inconsistency is scented, if not demonstrated, when the President at the same time advocates higher taxes as a means of decentralizing large industrial units and signs the labor act which will undoubtedly tend to the solidification of workers into large economic pressure groups."

Still criticizing the spirit of the New Deal law, Dean Spencer writes:

"No one denies that many employers—but certainly a minority—use their economic power to exploit their employés. It does not follow that the proper remedy is to place all employers under the yoke of collective bargaining."

Of the economic soundness of the act, the dean asserts:

"It has not been demonstrated that the equality of bargaining power between employer and employés will increase the total purchasing power of employés in the form of increased wages."

CITY POSTS BOND IN FIGHT TO BAN 'TOBACCO ROAD'

A $10,000 surety bond was posted with the clerk of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals by the city yesterday pending disposition of litigation resulting from the closing of the play "Tobacco Road" by Mayor Kelly. Should the court rule against the city and assess damages in behalf of the play's producers, the bond guarantees payment.

The court of appeals on Wednesday issued a writ of supersedeas an hour after Judge William H. Holly in the federal District court granted a temporary injunction to the producers of "Tobacco Road" which would have permitted the play to reopen at the Selwyn theater.

The hearing on the city's appeal from Judge Holly's order will be heard by the Court of Appeals Monday.

VOICE RECORDER DEMONSTRATED AT BAR MEETING

An electrical voice reproducing machine for reporting court trials and other proceedings was demonstrated yesterday before about 500 attorneys and judges at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Bar association. The demonstration was sponsored by Dean Edward T. Lee and alumni of the John Marshall Law school.

A sketch of a court trial was presented and then reproduced almost instantly by the electrical device. Lawrence C. Mills, master of ceremonies, said the machine would be valuable to reviewing courts because it records the voice inflections of witnesses. He said it was hoped the device eventually would be installed in all courtrooms here at county expense. The cost of operation would not exceed the present system of reporting, Mills said.

HUGHES REFUSES TO INTERVENE IN COAL LAW TEST

Receives Company Plea as Appellate Judge.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes refused today to intervene as an appellate judge in the Guffey coal control law test case which is being bitterly fought here in two courts.

Chief Justice Hughes was appealed by to James Carter, president of the Carter Coal company, who has asked the District of Columbia Supreme court to enjoin his company against compliance with the Guffey law. The District Supreme court, in granting the request, ordered Carter to post bond of $15,000 a day to indemnify his company against penalties it would suffer if its attack on the constitutionality of the law fails.

Appeals to Hughes.

Carter appealed the order for posting of bond to Chief Justice Hughes in the latter's capacity as Circuit court judge in relation to the District Supreme court. The chief justice declined to issue an order against the posting of bond, thus forcing Carter to wait until the next session of the United States Supreme court on Nov. 9 when he can petition the full court to act.

Carter also plans to appeal to the United States Supreme court a second preliminary order handed down by Justice Jesse C. Adkins yesterday in which he refused Carter's request that the coal company be restrained from paying the 15 per cent "compliance" tax which the Guffey law imposes. Justice Adkins refused to enjoin collection of the tax although he did enjoin compliance by the company.

Arguments Continued.

Meanwhile, counsel for Carter continued their arguments before Justice Adkins, asking that a permanent injunction be granted against compliance by the company. Carter, who is suing in his capacity as a stockholder to prevent compliance by his own company, sought to show on the witness stand that the Guffey law would cause the company heavy losses.

"Under price fixing provisions of NRA the company was forced to sell some of its coal at prices far below the cost of production," Carter said, adding that the same situation would arise under the Guffey law.

TWO WISCONSIN MEN ARE FOUND DEAD IN PLANE

Student Flyer Dies at Controls of Ship.

Baraboo, Wis., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The bodies of two flyers, who had been missing since Sunday when they took off from Lake Delton, Wis., in a fog, were found dead today in the wreckage of their plane on the Baraboo bluffs, five miles south of here.

Searchers found the body of Marvin Padley of Lake Delton at the controls. Within a few feet of him was the body of John North, 37, a farm hand from near Randolph. North had only a student's license.

The fate of the two was discovered by William Magli, proprietor of the airport at Prairie du Sac, Wis., who had been teaching North to fly. When he returned to the airport, after being absent since Sunday, he began a search and saw the wreckage from the air.

Inquiry Is Hampered.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Officials investigating the wreckage of an airliner in which a four man crew was killed when it struck a hill and exploded last night, were hampered today by the absence of instruments. It was said the instruments either had been carried away by souvenir hunters or were destroyed in the blast.

The plane in which the four men died was a twin motored Boeing which had been used only for test purposes.

The victims were Chief Test Pilot M. T. Arnold of the United Air Lines; "Abe" Cohn, veteran pilot of the Wyoming air service; Edward Yantiss of the United Air Lines instrument crew; and Harold Kaufman, apprentice instrument man of the air line.

Liner Lands on Fence.

Nelson, B. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Stormy weather drove a Northwest Airlines plane far off its course to a forced landing astride a farm fence here last night, but seven persons aboard were uninjured. The plane was westbound from Helena, Mont., to Spokane, Wash., and Seattle.

Search Bay for Flyer.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Search for the pilot of a navy plane wrecked in Chesapeake bay near here was spurred today by an oysterman's story to naval authorities that he heard a plane crash off Greenbury Point early yesterday.

Four Men Recovering.

Dayton, O., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The condition of four men injured in the crash yesterday of America's largest bombing plane was reported promising today as an investigating board continued its study of the accident in which Maj. P. P. Hill, chief of the flying service at Wright field, was injured fatally.

Blame Pilot for Crash.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—An error in judgment by the pilot caused the mysterious airplane crash near Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 7, in which 12 persons were killed, the accident board of the bureau of air commerce decided today.

The pilot misjudged his altitude or his distance from the airport, or both, and crashed into the top of a small knoll when in the midst of a power glide to the landing field, the accident board concluded after an examination of the wreckage and the scene of the crash.

Three Chicagoans, John F. Cushing, president of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company; C. H. Miner and Helen Warren, were killed in the accident. The pilot, co-pilot and stewardess were killed with nine passengers.

AUDUBON HEADS DEBUNK FAKERS; PLAN EDUCATION

Declare Eagles Never Kidnap Babies.

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Who says that eagles kidnap babies, owls can't see in the daytime, and porcupines "shoot" their quills?

Whoever they are, they're "nature fakers."

So said officials of the National Association of the Audubon Societies tonight as they initiated plans to educate the public to all the foolish fallacies about bird and animal.

Yarns Get in His Hair.

"Those 'yarns' get in my hair," said John Baker, executive director of the society. "Which reminds me of another fallacy:

"Every one who doesn't know says that bats get in your hair. Well, they don't. Bats are of great benefit — they're insectivorous — and they don't care for hair. But watch people duck if a bat ever gets in a room with them."

Definitly in a debunking mood, Baker and his assistant, Warren Eaton, scored those who say that eagles can carry off children, sheep, pigs, or deer.

"It has been shown that no eagle can lift more than, roughly, its own weight of 10 to 12 pounds," they agreed.

Mountain Lion "Coward."

And here's a list of half a dozen nature "truths" that the Audubon society passes on for those "who'd really like to know":

1. The mountain lion is the "biggest coward" of the woods. He won't attack man.

2. The porcupine doesn't shoot quills. It sinks its barbed "arrows" by contact only.

3. Birds never hibernate; they migrate. An occasional chimney swift will duck in for the winter in a hollow tree, but birds don't hibernate in trees or bury themselves in mud.

4. Snakes don't swallow their young to protect them.

5. "A good hawk is a dead hawk"—a frequent fallacy of intelligent farmers.

No "Hoop" Snakes.

6. "Hoop" snakes and "glass" snakes are nonexistent. The mythical hoop snake is the one that sticks the end of his tail in his mouth, then "hoops" along. And the glass snake is the fellow that allegedly breaks to pieces when you start to talk it over with him.

And, says the Audubon society, the bald eagle isn't bald, pigeon hawks don't feed on pigeons, all owls can see in the daytime, the milk snake doesn't take the place of the human milker, and—big birds don't carry little birds on their backs.

Russia Executes 2 Bandits Guilty of Jailbreaking

ROSTOV-ON-DON, U. S. S. R., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Two bandits named Treguboff and Tierkin were executed today by order of the Rostov Provincial court, which found them guilty of jailbreaking and holdups in which one person was murdered.

Among those said to be at the Florida resort are Johnny Torrio, one time lieutenant of Al Capone in Chicago; Charles [Lucky] Luciano, wanted for questioning in the Schultz murder and gang activities in general, and little Augie Pisano of Brooklyn.

Eight Women in Gang.

There also are eight gang women in Miami, and all are in one big party, Valentine said.

There are four or five in that party that New York police would like to see.

"But they probably wouldn't tell us anything," Valentine said.

He said he thought Schultz's slayers were "northwestern gangsters from around Chicago or that section."

Miami Roundup Fails.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 31.—(AP)—An order went out today to round up eastern gangsters reported to have moved on this winter playground, but so far as could be learned the first day of police activity failed to bring results.

A. J. Kavanaugh, Miami safety director, said he did not believe there are as many as 31 New York gangsters in Miami, as Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine of New York said.

Reports that night club proprietors had been approached by an unidentified out-of-town syndicate and warned "they would not open this year" unless they let the syndicate supply waiters and guards spurred Miami officials in the roundup.

Threaten Quick Seizure.

"Gangsters cannot stay in Miami, right or wrong," said Acting Police Chief W. J. McCarthy and Sherif D. C. Coleman. "They will be picked up on sight and placed in jail under heavy bond."

It was recalled that both Miami and Miami Beach recently passed ordinances requiring persons convicted of felonies to register with police within 24 hours after arrival.

Neither John Torrio nor Charles Luciano, mentioned in connection with the slaying of Dutch Schultz, and reported from New York to be here, was on this register, however.

RADIO PLANT BLAZE ROUTS 30.

Fire drove thirty employés from the plant of the E. Toman company, radio and phonograph specialty manufacturers at 2621 West 21st place, yesterday and caused damage estimated at $10,000.

JUDGE SENTENCES MRS. MADOIAN TO PRISON IN KILLING

Overruling a motion for a new trial, Judge John C. Lewe in Criminal court yesterday sentenced Mrs. Suzanne Madoian to 14 years in prison for the murder of her husband, Leo. The penalty was fixed by a jury which recently found Mrs. Madoian guilty.

Judge Lewe remarked that she was fortunate in receiving such a light sentence and it would be the best policy to accept the penalty rather than ask a new trial. He allowed a stay of mittimus until Nov. 21 so that the defense might consider an appeal.

Mrs. Madoian shot her husband three times during an attempted reconciliation after the couple separated last spring. Her defense was that she meant only to frighten him. Her three children by a previous marriage are now with their father, George Merijohn, at 433 South Leavitt street.

FAKE POLICEMAN FINED.

Andrew Patewski, 38 years old, 2112 Division street, was fined $25 by Municipal Judge Joseph B. Hermes yesterday on a charge of impersonating a policeman.

EPSTEIN TO HEAR CROWE LAW FIRM ACCOUNTING CASE

Two suits for accounting of the assets of the former law firm of Crowe, Gorman and Savage were referred to Master in Chancery Samuel B. Epstein yesterday by Circuit Judge John R. Caverly. The master will hear evidence and then make his recommendations to the judge.

The suits were brought by Former State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, who was one of the partners in the firm, and by Mrs. Marguerite E. Gorman, widow of George Gorman, another partner. A third accounting suit had been filed in the Superior court by Joseph P. Savage, the other partner. This suit was dismissed, however, after Savage said he was willing to abide by the rulings in the other actions, in which he is a defendant.

Crowe's and Mrs. Gorman's suits first were assigned to Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski, but were reassigned to Judge Caverly after Savage charged that Klarkowski had received election campaign funds from the law firm.

Baldness Starts at These Three Points

HEED THESE WARNINGS

When your hair begins to recede at the (1) temples, (2) crown, or (3) frontal, Nature is painlessly warning you that some serious scalp ailment is attacking your hair, and baldness is surely approaching. WALKER GREETING SOCIALLY WARM, POLITICALLY ICY

Playboy Ex-Mayor Back After Long Exile.

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Jimmy Walker, the city's former playboy mayor self-exiled in Europe since he resigned under fire of the Seabury graft investigating committee, came home today to a discreet welcome, socially warm, politically frigid.

He played up to it in a brief radio speech, broadcast from the Liner Manhattan at quarantine. Felicitous, as usual, he responded to a suggestion by Senate Majority Leader John J. Dunnigan that he might be mayor again by saying:

"I am not a candidate but I won't be discourteous about it—I'll just turn it over to you."

He was happy but humiliated, he said: "I've had my day and that day is done." But he added that his record would be his eulogy.

Plain "John Citizen."

"Tell the folk I have a deep affection for them and just to call me Mr. John Average Citizen," he concluded. Then: "I love every cobblestone of New York."

The "greeter" mayor was greeted at quarantine by a dozen chartered boats carrying committees and banners, and in many cases kegs of beer to celebrate the return of the native.

A crowd of 5,000 watched the Manhattan as it passed the Battery. Whistles blew and some torn paper fluttered in the wind as the liner nosed up the North river.

Another 5,000 gathered at the United States Lines pier to see the song writer-playboy-ex-politician set foot again upon the streets of New York after three years' absence.

Band Plays His Song.

A band hired by Jimmy Kelly, night club proprietor, played "The Sidewalks of New York" and "Will You Love Me in December as You Did in May?" on the pier while a silent crowd waited as the Manhattan was warped into her berth.

On the whole, while it was far from wildly enthusiastic, the reception was cordial and friendly enough.

But except for close friends from the old days, mostly men who realize that they are near the conclusion of their public careers, the political fraternity stayed away.

This, many sought to explain, was at the request of the former mayor, who did not wish to embarrass men who had supported him until he resigned while facing trial before Franklin D. Roosevelt, then governor, on charges which, had they been found justified, would have resulted in his removal from office.

"Happy, But Humiliated."

The Manhattan reached Quarantine at noon and was met by the third largest delegation of reporters and photographers in the harbor's history. A lighter was waiting with a welcoming committee of 150 representing Broadway, business, sports, and the politics of bygone days.

The Grand street boys had a beer-equipped boat with 125 passengers and the Lambs club and the Friars were well represented on others.

"I thought I knew something about reception," Walker said, "but I find now that I could give them better than I can take it.

"I'm happy but abashed. I'm happy but humiliated. But I've done my best. The record must tell the story."

COMMUNITY FUND GETTING PLEDGES OF NEW DONORS

Many groups of workers who never before have contributed to the Community Fund of Chicago are making pledges this year as a result of indorsement of the 1935 fund by the Chicago Federation of Labor, officials in the campaign of the fund for $3,200,000 reported yesterday.

The federation's endorsement pointed out that 147 well established welfare agencies, which perform "helpful and necessary services in the community," will benefit from the fund and urged its members "and those of all affiliated unions, as well as all other citizens of Chicago to contribute to it in proportion to their means and to induce others to contribute to it to the end that these helpful services of the various welfare agencies shall not be curtailed because of lack of funds."

The individual gifts division of the campaign, of which James D. Cunningham is chairman, will meet at noon today at the Chicago club.

Gov. Curley and Party Here on Way Home from Hawaii

Gov. James M. Curley of Massachusetts was a visitor in Chicago last night. He arrived yesterday and will leave today for the east. The governor is homeward bound from Honolulu with his daughter, Mary, and her husband, Edward C. Donnelly of Boston, and Dr. Martin J. English, the family physician. Gov. Curley and Dr. English recently went to Honolulu to meet Mrs. Donnelly, who was stricken with appendicitis while on her wedding trip.

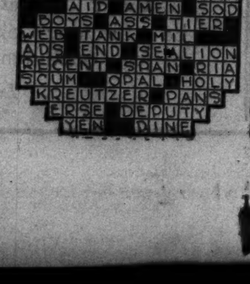
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



BUMPS ON HEAD MOST DANGEROUS AT 40 TO 60 AGE

Auto Accidents Reveal New Surgery Fact.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Forty to 60 in the dangerous age for bumps on the head, the American College of Surgeons was informed today in a report on the growing number of accidents due to high speed.

"Each year," said George W. Swift, M. D., of Seattle, "approximately 125,000 injuries involving the head and spine occur in the United States, and the number is mounting because of increased [automobile] speed and mass production."

The death rate from the head injuries, he said, has been brought down from around 60 per cent to 20 in the last 10 years by better surgical and medical care.

Susceptibility Explained.

This care brought out also a new fact, he explained, an unexpected susceptibility of persons between 40 and 60 to head injuries. Their heads are neither softer nor more brittle. The trouble is that brains are likely to be "wet" beginning at 40.

Wet brain means a little more water than average in the cavities in and around the brain. Nature, Dr. Swift explained, uses the bony cavity of the head to store a small reserve supply of water, ready for instant use in emergency, when the blood needs it.

Being at the top of the body this water reservoir is in the best place for quick tapping under the physical laws of hydrodynamics, he said.

The water is stored, not in one place, but in various small cavities, connected by narrow channels, suitable for slow flow from one to the other.

A blow on the head, Dr. Swift held, may produce a hydrostatic pressure in one or more of these cavities, a pressure that forces water through the narrow channels into some other cavity.

This pressure, he said, often destroys brain tissue, is more dangerous than hemorrhage, and is not so well recognized. Its effects are mistaken for those of hemorrhage. Recognition of water as the cause of damage facilitates treatment for recovery.

Results of water damage he described as including maniacal outbursts, changes in the eyes, and long continued mental disturbances.

A new instrument for discovering painlessly whether women have certain prevalent types of cancer was reported by Lucius E. Burch, M. D., of Vanderbilt university medical school. He said it may save numerous major operations by showing that the growth suspected to be cancer is something not needing surgical treatment.

Cancer Treatment Lauded.

Authors of the Coffey-Humber cancer treatment, which six years ago caused one of the greatest controversies in American medical history, told the meeting today that they believed their system had "benefited a larger number of patients than any other method."

The authors, Drs. W. B. Coffey and John D. Humber, of San Francisco, said they had treated only hopeless, inoperable cases, totaling 7,513. Of these they said 3,872 died before they could be given the minimum amount of treatment needed.

Of the others they said that a selected list of 1,040 showed today 108 known survivors and 50 believed to be alive but not counted because of incomplete records.

Of the 108 they said 53 are free of any signs of cancer. The others still have growths which have become inactive.

Wife of John C. Allen Sues for Maintenance

Mrs. Bertha M. Allen, 7130 Cyril avenue, filed in Superior court yesterday a suit for separate maintenance against John C. Allen, sales manager for the J. W. Butler Paper company. Mrs. Allen charged desertion and nonsupport. According to the bill, the couple were married in 1927 and separated several weeks ago.

LAW KEEPS HIM FROM MARRYING MOTHER-IN-LAW

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Because Massachusetts law says a man cannot marry his wife's mother, even when the wife has died, Joseph W. Symes, 42, and Mrs. Harriet Saxon, 62, abandoned their wedding plans today.

A marriage license issued to Mrs. Saxon was returned to a policeman on request of City Clerk Rudolphus A. Swan, who explained that the relationship of the couple was discovered after the license was granted.

"That settles it," Mrs. Saxon said today. "If the law says we can't get married, that's all there is to it. I could have tried to cheat by going to Rhode Island or some other place, but I don't intend to."

Symes' wife, Florence, a daughter of Mrs. Saxon, died in 1919. Four children who were born to them continued to live in her home with the father, Mrs. Saxon explained. She said she was "not a bit disappointed."

"I'm still continuing to live here and so is he," she said.

Miss Morton Is Engaged to E. A. Hamill

Friends Are Told at Silver Wedding of Parents.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE guests who attended a dinner-dance given last night at the Casino, expecting to congratulate the hosts and hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton and Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton, on their silver wedding anniversaries, found that a young couple who will be married late this year were in line for good wishes and congratulations, too.

The couple are the Mortons' only child, Suzette, and Ernest Alfred Hamill, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ernest Hamill. Their engagement to be married was announced at the party. The affair had been planned by the Mortons and Cartons to observe their twenty-fifth wedding anniversaries, that will occur, respectively, tomorrow and Dec. 1, so all but one table were occupied by contemporaries of the hosts and hostesses. Miss Morton and Mr. Hamill, always called "Pat," had invited only about thirty of their friends, including the Cartons' daughter, Mrs. Paul Swett, who came from her home in Hartford, Conn., especially for the affair.

The wedding, which is planned for the last week in December, will unite members of two of Chicago's old and well known families. Miss Morton is the granddaughter on the distaff side of Mrs. Heaton Owsley, who attended the dinner, and on her father's side of the late Joy Morton. Carter H. Harrison is her maternal great-uncle, and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy is her paternal aunt.

Member of Daisy Chain at Vassar.

Miss Morton is one of Chicago's most brilliant young women and has great charm of manner as well as a distinguished appearance. She made her debut in 1930 and was graduated from Vassar in 1934, having prepared for college at Dobbs Ferry.

In 1932 she was chosen to carry the daisy chain at Vassar. She spent her junior year at the Sorbonne in Paris. Since finishing college she has been interested in many things, particularly fine printing, which she has taken up seriously.

Her fiancé is brilliant, too, for he was awarded a Phi Beta Kappa key at Yale, where he also was a member of Zeta Psi. He was graduated from Yale in 1931, having prepared at the Hill school. He had one year at the Yale architectural school, but then went into business in Chicago. He has a sister, Clarice, who is a debutante this year, and a brother, Corwith, who is a senior at Yale. His father's library is one of the famous ones of the country, so Miss Morton undoubtedly has spent and will spend many hours in it. The senior Mr. Hamill has his rare collection of books, some of them al-

A THEATERGOER who went to see "Dodsworth" a few evenings ago discovered with tremendous excitement that Ethel Jackson, the actress who plays the rôle of Mrs. Pearson, was the original "Merry Widow" when it opened at the New Amsterdam theater, New York. It turned out that he was correct.

Merry Widow— Party— Names— Follow-up.

Older theatergoers remember the red haired beauty who was the toast of Broadway when she appeared in "The Merry Widow" in 1907, playing opposite Donald Brian. [Lina Abarbanell played the rôle on tour.] The late Charles Frohman brought Miss Jackson to America to play Elsie Crockett in "Little Miss Nobody," and previously, after studying for a musical career at the Vienna Conservatoire, she had made her stage debut at the Savoy theater in London.

A POPULAR Chicago bachelor celebrated his fortieth birthday anniversary a few days ago and the occasion was the reason for a small dinner in his honor, given by one of his friends. "Come as something in Walter's life," the hostess told her guests. One of them came as a girl with whom he once had been desperately in love. Another came representing his childhood, with a haircut modeled after a youthful photograph, wearing short pants, and a little boy blouse, with the string hanging out, a remembered characteristic. There were other reminders of his business and events of his life. One charming creature was reminiscent of his Paris years and of Quatres Arts balls, wearing a black net gown, long artificial eyelashes, and a most wonderful hair do. They drank champagne and toasted him in humorous verses. He probably thought the party was worth being forty for.

KELLOGG FAIRBANK JR. recently motored Mrs. Fairbank to Galena, the charming old Illinois city that is the locale of his mother's book, "The Bright Land." Returning on highway No. 11 they passed through Julesburg and took note of the names of the streets, after observing that the monumental sandstone school and church were on Judgment street. Other streets were named Charity, Happy, Peace, Pious, Goodness, and Faith.

REMEMBER the story printed in this space early last summer about the mother and boy riding on the Lake street elevated, he with a brown paper sack over his head, into which holes had been cut for him to see through? He kept pleading with his mother to take it off, and she kept refusing, then, at a sudden lurch of the car she lost her balance, and he seized the opportunity to pull off the sack, revealing a china pot on his head. That was the tale. A girl named Adeline Perlman makes a correction and passes on the rest of the story.

It seems it was a granite utensil, instead of a china one. The little boy had been playing with it and somehow got it stuck on his head. His infuriated mother could not pull it off, so she decided to take him downtown to have it taken off. Hence the sack to cover it up.

At one of the loop department stores it was suggested that this was work that should be done under a surgeon's instructions. The worried mother then took her child, still wearing his unique headpiece, to St. Luke's hospital. There, under the supervision of medical authorities, the operation of cutting through the granite pot was performed. A St. Luke's nurse verified the story.

Selected Students Given Preview of Chicago City Opera

Seventy Chicago high school students, a boy and a girl picked for musical aptitude from each of the city's high schools, yesterday were given what was termed a "preview" of the Chicago City opera. The season opens tomorrow night.

The students were taken on a tour of the opera house and opera and its background was explained to them in talks by Coe Glade, opera star; Miss Gladys Easter, supervisor of music for the board of education, and Robert Venables, assistant stage director.

Sports Outfits Are Swank for Any Occasion.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Sports clothes that can dash about town as well as decorate the countryside, stunning, very different clothes with a decided foreign accent are the suits, topcoats, gloves, and hats to be found in a well known shop that devotes itself to the swankiest of timely sports clothes.

These tweed and woolen affairs are breathtakingly new, the material is American tweed and wool from the mills in North Carolina, but the effective designs are by the great Austrian designer, Lanz of Salzburg.

There are high hats of coarse felt, a modified version with a reasonably sized crown, and the original big crowned creation. The crowns are neatly sliced off at the top and encircled with colored cord around the head. The topcoats look like they might have been borrowed from the Emperor Franz Joseph collection, for they are tight and snug around the high collar, have notched medium wide revers and the oak leaf appliqued on each lapel in the same contrasting color as the material that is used for piping the seams in jacket, skirt, or coat. Buttons are discs cut from the horns of mountain goats and if that isn't according to the fitness of things, nothing ever will be.

Other suits and top coats, piped with contrasting colors and fitted as to streamline so that you feel like a female version of a good Tyrolean mountain climber, have money buttons, some of the clever coin buttons we told you about last week.

The colors are gorgeous, rich golden brown, hennas, forest green, and knockout mixtures.

On your hands go one of two new styles of gloves, also designed by Lanz—ginger brown suede combined with beige kidskin or the clever brown suede numbers with the small, almost hidden, insides of the fingers done in the blood red of the suede hearts that are appliqued on the gauntlet cuffs. For the shoppers who are tired of ordinary tweeds and rather pluggy looking clothes and top coats, this is the new showing to inspect. You can change your personality completely with any of these outfits.

Fashion photograph . . . a hat that is just about a cleverly tied bow and that's all. However, there is a sufficient amount of back crown to hold it securely on the top of the head. The material is dull black felt. It is available in a Chicago shop.

Good Morning!

A title introduced at the end of "Man of Courage" essays to take the curse off the film for those who have no sympathy with Mussolini and his works.

It avers that the production is not shown for the purpose of glorifying Il Duce but merely to demonstrate what wonders can be accomplished through the loyalty of a people to their leader. It beseeched its readers to uphold the head of this country and see what happens.

As for the picture—Mussolini wrote the scenario and, presumably, presided over the direction of the movie, which is Fascist propaganda, haltingly presented and poorly photographed.

The first parts are concerned with conditions leading up to the Black Shirt era, and a narrative follows the fortunes of a peasant family from 1914 through the war to 1932. After that, news reels, depicting the benefits of the Mussolini régime, take up the tale.

Considerable footage is devoted to scenes featuring the signing of the concordat between Pius XI. and the dictator, and the voice of the pope is heard.

There are English subtitles and somebody speaking off screen puts English words into mouths that are unquestionably uttering Italian.

BORDER BREED

By William MacLeod Raine

SYNOPSIS.

Young Dan Clifford is driving a mule team carrying freight when he meets and befriends 17 year old Milly Sutherland. She and a young brother and sister are en route to Los Pinos, wild border town of the untamed west. Their father died on the way. In Los Pinos, Dan, through Polly Doble, gets Milly work washing, and Ah Sin, a Chinaman, to help her. Jasper Ford, gambler and killer, forces his attentions on Milly. Dan publicly humiliates him. Ford swears revenge. Trouble brews between the gambling element and Mexicans. The salt lakes, long public property, are claimed by one Zack Black, representing the gamblers. Black, Lou Stone, and a group of gamblers are besieged at the salt lakes by Mexicans. Dan and his friend, Sam Jones of the rangers, act as peacemakers and accomplish their rescue. Lou Stone breaks with Ford. Milly and Dan become engaged, but when Dan is appointed sherif Milly refuses to marry him, fearing he'll become a killer. Jonathan Edwards Hart, a famous killer, who was sent to prison 15 years before because of Ford's testimony, arrives in Los Pinos. He holds up the Last Chance. Dan, unarmed, arrests Hart. While Hart is out on bail, Ford shoots him, claiming self-defense. Because of Hart's record Ford is not prosecuted. Dan has an encounter with two outlaws.

INSTALMENT XLI.

"BEST MARSHAL EVER BORN."

Dan read the outlaw's mind. Knew he was waiting for the moment to strike. Presently the guns would roar. Dan, too, was ready. An officer of the law, he could not shoot until one of these men made the first move.

Awakened by the cessation of noise at the poker table, the man on the bench sat up and blinked back to consciousness of his environment. At sight of the three at the bar his eyes popped. "By granny!" he yelped.

"Keep yore shirt on," Curly advised warningly.

Taking advantage of the distraction, Cooper made his error. He snatched at his gun and dragged it out.

Dan fired across the shoulder of the shorter outlaw. So close was the margin of time that Cooper's gun roared twice before his lank frame collapsed. Buckling at the knees, the man slid to the floor along the front of the bar. One of the bullets from his gun struck the window jamb, the other plowed through the ceiling.

Johnson tried to draw. Before his hand had fallen to the weapon in his belt, Dan's pistol whipped him across the temple. He went down like a poleaxed steer, rolled over on his back, and lay still.

For a moment the others in the room did not move. The climax had leaped at them with paralyzing swiftness.

The man slid to the floor along the front of the bar.

From a pocket Dan took a pair of handcuffs and fastened them to the wrists of Johnson. He confiscated the weapon of the man and made sure he had no other gun concealed about his person. The .44 of Cooper's he also recovered.

"Take care of these guns, Curly," he said. "They will be wanted for evidence."

The cowboy came forward, eyes big with admiration and amazement. "Never saw the beat of it. You were that quick, that sure. Drilled Cooper right through the head."

"You saw him reach for his gun before I fired?"

"Y'betcha. I'll swear to that till the cows come home."

The marshal leaned against the bar. A sickness ran through his vitals. It was in his mind that he must not let these men know he was close to prostration.

The room was filling with men. They crowded forward to see. Dan gave a curt command.

"Stand back everybody."

The crowd left an open space, the center of which held Dan, the handcuffed prisoner, and the body of the dead man.

The eyelids of Johnson fluttered open.

"What happened?" he asked presently.

Four or five began to tell him, all talking at once. The gaze of the handcuffed man fell on Cooper, slowly shifted to the marshal.

"You rubbed him out," he said. Presently his eyes found a man he knew. "Go tell Jas Ford," he said, in sulky despondency.

"Tell him what?" the man asked.

"That this wolf here—Sure Shot—has killed Tom and got cuffs on me." Dan added, quietly, "and that I mean to keep them on him."

The marshal caught sight of Sam Jones coming through the door and called to him. "This way, Obigod. Here's a prisoner for you—wanted at Fort Smith under name of John Peterson to keep a date for his own hanging. Take him off my hands, will you?"

Ranger Jones pushed to the front. "Sure I'll take care of this blackbird. Has some one gone for the coroner?"

The coroner bustled into the place. He was an important little man and liked to be in the public eye. At the instigation of Jones, he held an inquest on the spot. The witnesses were heard. Dan told his story.

The jury brought in almost immediately a verdict that the deceased had come to his death by getting in the way of a bullet propelled from a pistol held in the hand of Daniel Clifford in the rightful discharge of his duty.

Jasper Ford sat motionless, his frozen eyes fixed on a half empty bottle in front of him. He did not see the bottle and scarcely felt its former contents within him. The spirits had given him no warm glow. He was busy thinking, and his thoughts were a curse. Events were not going in a way to suit him. The world had turned sour for him.

From Lieut. Page of the rangers he had just heard disquieting news. Sam Jones had ridden in from the salt lakes with word that there had been a clash between the company workers and a small group of Mexicans in which two of the latter had been killed. The trouble had arisen so unexpectedly that the rangers had been unable to forestall it. Ford supposed that the town would soon be buzzing with angry natives.

He needed all the strength he could summon, and just at this time that damned marshal had killed Cooper and started Johnson on his road to the gallows. Of all the infernal luck.

It might be wisdom to fall in line with public opinion and give orders to his followers to cut out the rough stuff. There always came a time when a frontier town swept out the riffraff. Why not join in and direct the clean-up? No need for it to include legitimate business such as reputable saloons and gaming houses. If he went into a law and order movement vigorously he might recover lost ground. Some of the thugs and prostitutes allied to him would be furious, but he counted that negligible. Of course when the proper time came he would rub out Clifford, without risk to himself if possible.

He poured out another drink, swallowed it, and corked the bottle. With a rag he flicked the dust from his shiny boots. Before a looking glass he straightened his black tie and brushed his hair. Into the latter was coming a sprinkle of gray. He did not like that, for he had reached an age when youth was slipping away. For such a man age held no compensations.

As he stepped out on the sidewalk he saw that darkness was falling. One by one the street lights began to shine. He stood a moment, uncertain which way to go. It was his intention to take a leisurely walk before reporting at the Last Chance for duty. He decided to stroll past the house of the Sutherland girl. She might perhaps be in the garden. It still irritated him that his attentions had been so politely, but firmly declined. That a slip of a girl, fresh from the backwoods of Arkansas [or Tennessee, he was not sure which] should repulse him was an annoying absurdity.

DUTCH OVEN IS ADAPTABLE TO VARIED COOKERY

These Recipes Illustrate Its Many Uses.

The booklet, "What for Dessert? Thirty-two Answers," is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

The thrift and convenience of a Dutch oven are virtues beyond question. However, occasionally we get a letter (as we did the other day) asking some pertinent questions about its actual workings, and exactly what it can be used for.

Cooking on the top of the stove with a Dutch oven, a substantial, deep utensil with a tightly fitting cover is in most cases an excellent substitute for all kinds of real oven cooking. It cooks pot roasts and all kinds of braised meats to perfection, and can be used as well for baking potatoes, cakes, pies, casserole dishes, or for steaming vegetables.

In the bottom of the Dutch oven is a small rack or trivet which keeps the cooking foods raised above likelihood of scorching. With the trivet in place and a low heat (hence the economy) this piece of equipment requires practically no watching during the cooking process.

One of the questions of this recent letter had to do with the use of the trivet and the making of gravy. When a roast is cooked in the Dutch oven, it first is browned right in the bottom of the oven, with the trivet out. Then, after the outside of the meat is attractively browned, it is lifted up, the trivet inserted, and the rest of the cooking continued. When the meat is cooked, it is removed to a hot serving platter, the trivet again removed, and the gravy made right in the flavorsome brownness in the bottom of the oven.

When baked foods, such as casserole dishes, cakes, or pies, are turned out of the Dutch oven, they are baked in insert pans set right on the trivet. Baked potatoes need no extra pan, nor do steamed vegetables, as they are placed directly on the rack.

Special Pot Roast.

4 pound larded chuck or rump roast
Salt, pepper
3 tablespoons lard

Brown the meat well in the bottom of the Dutch oven, in which the lard has been melted. Season with salt and pepper. Lift the roast, place on the trivet, and add a small amount of hot water to the bottom of the oven. Cover, and cook over a very low heat for about three hours. Make a gravy by adding to the liquor in the bottom of the oven:

⅛ teaspoon allspice
½ gingersnap, crushed
¼ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon catsup
4 tablespoons caramelized sugar
Pepper, paprika, and salt to taste
Flour

Bring all ingredients except the flour to a boil, add the flour smoothed in cold water, and cook for 10 minutes to thicken.

Cherry Cobbler.

3 cups flour
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
6 teaspoons baking powder
Milk
½ cup sugar
2 cups pitted red cherries

Sift together the flour, salt, and baking powder, cut in the shortening, and blend with enough milk to make a soft dough. Pat half the dough into the bottom of a greased pan, cover with the sweetened drained cherries, and top with the rest of the dough. Place pan on trivet in Dutch oven, cover, and bake over moderate heat for 20 to 25 minutes. Serve warm with cherry glaze.

Cherry Glaze.

2 tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1½ cups cherry juice

Mix cornstarch, sugar, and salt. Pour the hot fruit juice over the dry ingredients, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and clear. Remove from heat and add lemon juice and flavoring.

BAKE DATE MACAROONS 20 MINUTES

These date macaroons are made by beating 4 egg whites until stiff. Then gradually add 1 1-2 cups of sugar and fold into this 1-2 pound dates, cut fine, 1-2 pound almonds, cut fine, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-8 teaspoon almond extract, and a few grains of salt. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased baking dish, decorate with a nut meat, and bake for 20 minutes in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees F.).

WOMEN AGREE AS EXPERT CHIDES HUSBAND COOKS

Cleveland, O., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Husbands with a flair for amateur cooking, who think they can rattle a frying pan with just as good results as the women, came in for a liberal roasting today from women who ought to know something about it.

It wasn't just some of the wives who were talking, it was some of the women members of the American Dietetic association.

"Men are just headline cooks," said Miss Edith Barber of New York, director of the association's department of information.

"Worse than that," she added, "the men never want to wash the dishes."

Some of the other women nodded knowingly about this, and Miss Barber went on to assert:

"Men who say they are awfully good cooks always have one dish in their répertoire. Once in a while you'll find a man who has two, and occasionally you'll find a man who has a whole meal."

All of the members of the association, which is holding a convention here, are women except two.

ONION ONE OF MOST USEFUL OF ALL VEGETABLES

There is no vegetable that can be used in more ways that the onion, according to dietiticians at Massachusetts State college. It is good not only as a vegetable, in an escalloped main dish for luncheon or supper, but it is useful also in many meat and vegetable dishes.

The onion is particularly valuable when the food budget is limited, because it adds flavor and variety to otherwise uninteresting meals. Cooked, it adds bulk, minerals and some vitamins, and when raw, it is an excellent source of Vitamin C.

ONIONS WITH BACON.

4 onions
½ pound bacon
¼ cup bread crums
1 tablespoon bacon fat
3 tablespoons hot water
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

Peel the onions and cook them slowly until tender, but not too soft, in boiling salted water. Then drain them. Scoop a small section out of the top of each onion; place the onions in a baking dish, then fill the cavities with chopped, uncooked bacon, and also lightly cover the tops of the onion with the bacon. Sprinkle with the salt and pepper and add the bread crums. Pour the bacon fat and the hot water around the onions and bake at 450 degrees Fahrenheit until the onions are lightly browned—about 40 minutes, according to the size of the onions.

IOWA'S STUFFED CARROT RECIPE IS WORTH TRYING

Stuffed carrots prepared according to a receipe from Iowa State college are appetizing both in appearance and in flavor.

The method is this: Wash and scrape four carrots, cook until tender, and split in half lengthwise. Mix together 1-3 cup ground boiled ham, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, 1 cup cooked rice, 1 tablespoon butter, and salt and pepper to taste. Pile this stuffing on the halves, sprinkle with buttered bread crums and brown in a moderate oven.

How to Make Whipping Cream from Canned Milk

It doesn't take a magician to turn one-third cup of evaporated milk into one cup of whipping cream. Any one can do it in this way: Scald the milk in a double boiler. Add to each cup of scalded evaporated milk one-half teaspoon of granulated gelatin softened in one teaspoon of cold water. Chill thoroughly in the refrigerator and whip in a chilled bowl with a cold beater.

MISSING MOMENTS

Cartridges! Where are they? Missing! Nothing can take the place of cartridges in a spot like this!

FACING a cup of coffee that has something missing in flavor, day after day, is a predicament that too many people are experiencing.

Perhaps you are enduring this situation and wondering why the coffee you use never seems to taste right, regardless of your care in making it. Nothing can take the place of flavor in coffee.

When your coffee turns up in the cup with something missing in flavor, it is because something was overlooked in the blend, or the roast, or the grind, or the pack, or all four. And since all the care you take in making the coffee won't correct the trouble, the thing to do is change to Hills Bros. Coffee. It is a never-changing BLEND of the finest coffees grown. This blend is roasted by an exclusive process—CONTROLLED ROASTING—that insures uniform flavor in every pound. This rich, matchless flavor is completely protected by Hills Bros.' VACUUM PACK. And the GRIND of Hills Bros. Coffee gives perfect results in any coffee-making utensil.

PRICES OF PORK REDUCED; SOME BEEF IS LOWER

Bacon 10 Cents Cheaper Than a Week Ago.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Consumer resentment against the processing tax on hogs and a general reluctance to pay high prices for pork have aided in forcing the price of pork loin down several cents a pound and lowering the price of bacon 10 cents a pound this week compared to last in many city and suburban retail butcher shops. These lower retail prices are in line with the falling off of live hogs since Oct. 17.

Fat hogs are now from 35 to 50 cents a hundred pounds less than a week ago. The supply of fresh pork is in excess of demand. Packers have lowered their prices of light pork loins $4 and $5 a hundred pounds since last week and heavy loins are $2 to $3 a hundred less.

Sirloin Steak 2 Cents Lower.

In most retail shops low grades of sirloin steak are about 2 cents a pound lower. High grade pot roast of beef is slightly lower. Dressed beef prices are reported tending downward, reflecting prices on the live stock market, where the better grades of steers are 25 cents a hundred pounds under prices a week ago.

In contrast to lower prices for pork, bacon, and some beef cuts, leg of lamb has jumped up as much as 5½ cents a pound in some butcher shops where special bargains were offered last week. Choice dressed lamb, however, is 25 cents a hundred pounds lower on the wholesale market, and fat lambs are reported slightly lower than last week.

Fish prices are bobbing up and down, as shoppers will find today and tomorrow. In several stores haddock is 4½ cents a pound higher, and halibut is up 2 cents a pound. Perch is 3 cents lower and pike has declined 3½ cents a pound.

Some Vegetables Cheaper.

Unseasonably warm weather during the last several days has had a tendency to hold prices down on most kinds of vegetables. Green beans and spinach are lower than last week and some stores have marked down their price tags on dry onions, fresh peas, sweet potatoes, turnips, and fresh tomatoes. Liberal supplies of spinach now are coming from Michigan and Indiana, with wholesale prices lower than a week ago. Fresh tomatoes are being shipped from hothouses in Illinois and Ohio in addition to those coming from California. Prices vary greatly according to quality.

Eggs have dropped 2 to 4 cents a dozen since last week. The lower priced brands of evaporated milk will be offered at special sale prices in practically all stores today and tomorrow, and some merchants will feature flour on their bargain counters.

Butter Prices Go Higher.

Butter took another price jump this week. Leading brands are 1 cent a pound higher than a week ago. Lard also is higher, having regained the cut in price made by most stores last week, when it was put on sale as a week-end bargain. Head lettuce is higher in the retail stores, but wholesale prices have dropped during the last few days. Market reporters expect this price change soon to be reflected in the stores.

Cauliflower of unusually good quality is coming in liberal quantities from nearby sources. Prices are slightly lower than last week. Wholesale movement of cabbage, apples, celery, cranberries, grapes, and sweet potatoes has been slow this week, with slightly lower prices paid for most of these commodities.

Roast Loin of Pork Is Economical Buy

The committee on marketing information of the Meal Council of Chicago yesterday issued the following report for the guidance of housewives purchasing meat in Chicago retail meat stores: "Declines in the prices of roast loin of pork have been noted recently in most Chicago meat stores, and this cut of meat is recommended as an economical meat buy over the coming week-end. Most cuts of other meat also have declined somewhat."

DAINTY SNACKS SHOULD BE RULE OF TEA MENUS

Dinner Appetites Need to Be Guarded.

When you're serving refreshments of an afternoon, it's better to err on the side of having them a little too light than a little too heavy. Remember, in planning such a party, that your guests will be returning home to dine with their hungry families.

Afternoon teas are the answer. Accompaniments for the tea may be simple or elaborate, but still light and dainty. There are pointers on serving teas, menus, and twenty-eight toothsome recipes in Mary Meade's new booklet, "Tips on Tea Parties."

SWEET POTATO BOTH VEGETABLE AND A DESSERT

Food Specialist Offers These Recipes.

Sweet potatoes are a versatile vegetable, for they may be served as a vegetable or used in making desserts and breads. Katherine Lanier, extension specialist in food preservation and utilization of the Georgia state college, recommends these recipes for their use.

Sweet Potatoes on the Half Shell.

Bake potatoes which are uniform in size, cut lengthwise in halves and scrape out the centers, being careful not to cut the skins. Mash the pulp, season with salt, sugar, butter and either raisins, shredded coconut, pineapple or pecans. Place in the potato shells and brown in the oven. Marshmallows added and browned on top give a festive appearance.

ORANGE CANDIED SWEET POTATO.

1 cup orange juice
½ tsp. grated orange rind
1 cup water
1 cup sugar
¼ cup butter
½ tsp. salt
6 medium sized potatoes

Peel and slice uncooked potatoes in one-fourth inch slices, arrange in a buttered baking dish. Make a syrup of the first six ingredients and pour over the potatoes. Cover and bake in a moderate oven until tender, baste occasionally and remove the lid the last ten minutes to brown.

SWEET POTATO DELICIOUS.

1 can sliced pineapple
3 cups mashed sweet potatoes
½ cup sugar
½ cup cream
½ tsp. salt
4 tbsp. butter

Saute the pineapple in the butter. Season the mashed potato with the sugar, salt and cream. Place the slices of pineapple in a pan, arrange a serving of mashed potato on each slice of pineapple, garnish with pecans or marshmallows, place in a moderate oven and cook until golden brown. Pecans, raisins or coconut may be added to the mashed potato.

SWEET POTATO PIE FILLING.

2 cups mashed sweet potato
1 cup sweet milk
3 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
2 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. salt
Nutmeg if desired

Beat the yolks of the eggs into the cooked mashed potatoes, add the melted butter and the other ingredients. Pour into a pie pan lined with pastry and bake in a moderate oven until the pie sets. Make a stiff meringue of the three egg whites and six tablespoons of sugar, spread over the top of the pie and bake slowly until delicate brown. The meringue may be omitted. Whipped cream is used to top the pie when ready to serve if the meringue is omitted.

Tribune Recipes

CASSEROLE OF CHILI.

2 cups dried kidney beans
3 cups water
1 pound chopped beef
1 chopped onion
4 tablespoons fat
1 can tomatoes
¾ cup rice
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons chili powder

Soak the beans overnight. Drain and cook for 1 hour with the 3 cups of water. Brown the meat and onion in the fat. Add this with the remaining ingredients to the beans and bake for 2 hours, covered, in a slow oven.

CALL POTATOES BEST ITEM FOR LOW COST DISH

Have High Food Value and Are Tasty.

"Serve potatoes once or twice a day," says the New York State College of Home Economics. "No other vegetable priced so low is so good for you."

Potatoes are urged, especially in low-cost diets, because they supply energy and, when eaten in large amounts, they are important for their iron and vitamin C. Outbreaks of scurvy which have followed potato crop failures are good examples of the importance of potatoes for vitamin C which is commonly called the scurvy-preventing vitamin.

Fits Well Into Diet.

Other reasons cited for the potato's popularity are: because it lacks a too-pronounced flavor, it blends well with any meal; it has and can hold enough moisture for cooking; and it can be baked or fried in hot fat, which adds to its flavor and texture when cooked.

One authority on cooking says that, in general, fried and baked vegetables taste more like the original product than those cooked in water, as many of the parts which are leached out by water or boiled away with steam are held within the vegetable when it is baked or fried.

Many Recipes for Use.

Its popularity in the past as well as the present is shown by the many potato recipes, the college says. Because potatoes blend well with many different combinations of other foods, ways to prepare them never need be monotonous.

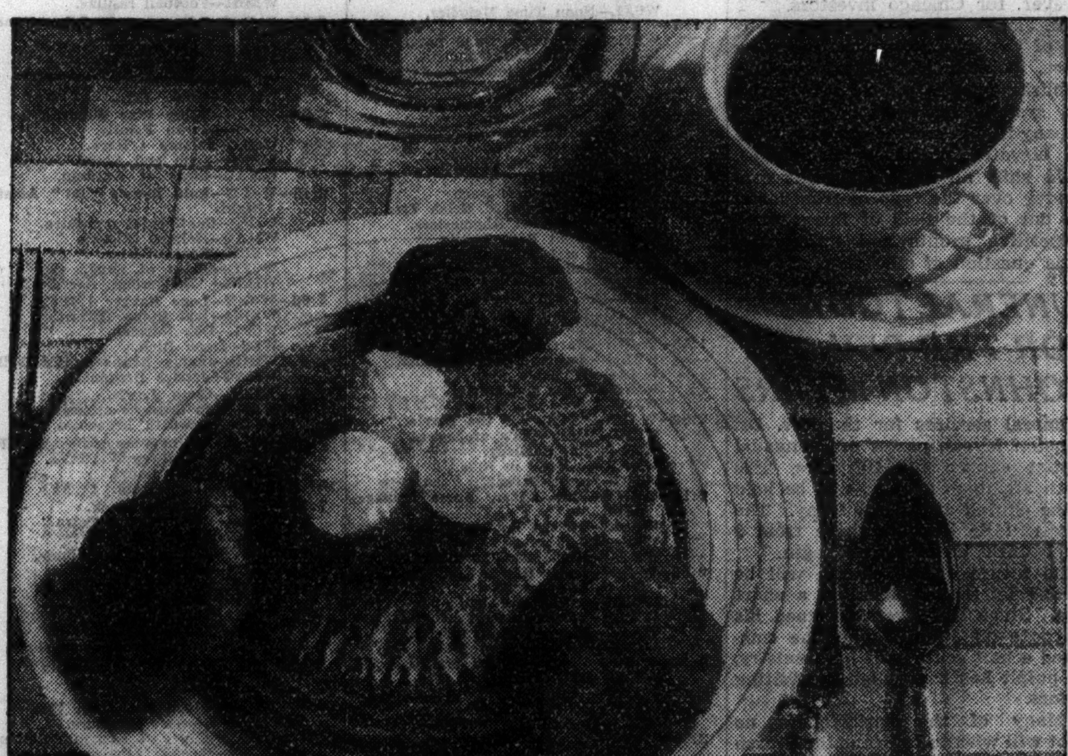
AUNT JEMIMA'S MAGIC MENU

BUCKWHEAT CAKES AND SAUSAGE SUPPER



Menu for Buckwheat Cakes and Sausage Supper

Hot Tomato Soup — Cheese Wafers
Aunt Jemima Buckwheat Cakes — Butter — Syrup
Fried Sausage Cakes — Buttered Peas — Coffee

Directions for making Aunt Jemima Buckwheat Cakes

1. Mix milk or water with equal amounts of Aunt Jemima Buckwheat. In a twinkling batter is ready.
2. Have griddle or skillet just hot enough. To test, put a drop of water on griddle. If it goes right up in a puff of steam, griddle is too hot. If it bounces around a second before evaporating, griddle is hot enough.
3. Grease griddle very lightly. Don't pour grease on. Spread it thinly with pad.
4. Pour batter into griddle. Let each side bake until golden brown.

One order to your grocer brings everything for this marvelous low-cost meal. Complete with printed easy directions. Wonderfully quick to make with the special buckwheat blend that guarantees far more fluffiness.

THEY were the talk of the Old South! They're all the rage today! Aunt Jemima's pancakes—light, fluffy, with an Old Plantation flavor that only Aunt Jemima's secret recipe can yield.

It's easy for you to get them light and well-done because Aunt Jemima's special pancake blend guarantees far more fluffiness than ordinary bread or biscuit flour. For Aunt Jemima's contains only about half the amount of gluten of ordinary flour. And gluten is the taffy-like substance in flour that resists heat and slows up the baking process.

That's why, with about half the gluten of ordinary flour, Aunt Jemima's pancakes come out so perfectly done, so tender, fluffy and light in the few short minutes pancakes are on the fire. And note this, ladies, a stack of three Aunt Jemima pancakes, a square of butter and 1½ ounces of syrup are only 365 calories. Yet standard diets permit a total of 2,000 to 4,000 calories in the three daily meals.

Your grocer will deliver any of the ingredients you need for the Aunt Jemima menu above. Order now.

Any ingredients for the Magic Menu shown above, with printed, easy directions are supplied by all grocers showing this display.

CITY WELCOMES TROLLEYS' PLAN TO REORGANIZE

Officials See Step Toward "L"-Surface-Bus Unity.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

City officials yesterday viewed the consolidation of Chicago street car companies, if it be accomplished without undue delay, as a distinct aid to a comprehensive solution of the city's local transportation problem.

A committee headed by W. Rufus Abbott, chairman of the board of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, has prepared a proposal for the financial unification and reorganization of the four street car companies which already have unified operation as the Chicago Surface Lines. This plan is to be presented this morning to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, before whom the companies are in receivership.

Delay Transit Unity Suggestions.

Pending discussion and approval of the reorganization proposal the street car officials have notified the city of their inability to comply with the request of the city council committee on local transportation for their idea of a comprehensive, unified transportation system for Chicago. For the same reason the Chicago Rapid Transit Lines and the Chicago Motor Coach company have delayed submitting their suggestions for a trolley-bus-"L" setup. Originally these plans were asked by today.

Mayor Kelly said yesterday, however, that the delay would be well worth while if it resulted in a reorganization of the street car properties. If that is effected the city will be able to deal with a single company instead of with the score of committees representing security holders in the present companies.

Revaluation and Home Rule.

Mayor Kelly mentioned two other factors which he deems essential to solution of the transit problem. The first is a revaluation of the existing properties, which he holds are now put at too high a figure. The second is passage of the home rule amendment at the referendum in April.

"We have to have that power," said the mayor. "If it weren't that it was in the offing we wouldn't even get the nibbles that we have had already.

"From the engineering and technical standpoint this is a most opportune time to plan a modern transportation system for the city. We are fortunate that the franchises have expired. We can go farther toward modernization in planning a new setup than we could working with companies which had long term franchises.

City Would Have a Choice.

"When we get our home rule powers we will not have to deal solely with the present companies. The financial situation is such that capital may be available for some other group to negotiate with the city."

He assured favored consideration, however, for Chicago investors.

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the local transportation committee, pointed out yesterday that establishment of a unified transportation system, operated by a single company in place of the present street car, elevated, and bus companies, would shift all of the present controversy over the type of transportation out of the field of finance and competitive profits and make it a single question of efficiency.

FUNERAL TODAY FOR THE REV. DR. JOHNSTON MYERS

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church for 40 years, 2320 South Michigan avenue, will be held in the church at 2 p. m. today. The body will lie in state there from 9 a. m. until the services begin.

The future of the church will be decided by the members in a short time. Since Dr. Myers resigned his pastorate on June 9, when he completed a half century of his ministry, the pulpit has been filled by visiting pastors.

"Many of the parishioners no doubt will wish to continue the church in its present location," said Dr. A. M. McDonald, secretary of the Baptist executive council of Chicago. "The decision must rest with them, not with this council."

Immanuel church was built in 1881, on the site of the old Michigan Avenue church. When Dr. Meyers became pastor in 1895 he had the building moved southward a short distance to get better lighting on the north side. Fourteen years ago the steeple fell, demolishing the front of the structure. The church was rebuilt in its present form in 1922.

FUNERAL SERVICE CONDUCTED FOR EX-JUDGE FETZER

Funeral services for Attorney William R. Fetzer, 62 years old, former Municipal judge, who was shot to death by a crazed gunman on Monday in his twelfth floor office at 155 North Clark street, were held in the Midway Masonic temple at 6115 Cottage Grove avenue yesterday.

Approximately 1,000 public officials and friends attended the services, which were conducted by Fred De Witt, reader of the 18th Christian Science church, and Albert C. Nicholson of Woodlawn commandery No. 76 of the Knights Templars. Burial was in Oakwoods cemetery.

RADIO WARNED TO 'REFORM' ITS ADS, PROGRAMS

Threaten Private System, Says U. S. Official.

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—George Henry Payne, federal communications commissioner, today warned commercial broadcasters that they would have to improve their programs and change their advertising methods if they desired to maintain the present system of privately owned radio stations.

In an address at Columbia university Mr. Payne said:

"If there is evident on the part of the broadcasters an intention to increase the educational and cultural qualities of the programs, if there is observable a desire to reform the advertising methods and inundations with which the public is afflicted, the present system will be maintained, I believe.

Warns Against "Lobbying."

"On the other hand, if there is an arrogant assumption of political power, if there is, instead of reform, increased lobbying activity, the indignation that now is unspoken, except by educators and publicists, will spread.

"Now when we come to the question of the 'political status' of radio it would not be necessary to get into any discussion of the subject were it not that the idea has been advanced that it is an independent political state.

"The advocates of commercial broadcasting have gone so far as to declare that they consitute a 'fifth estate'—a new political power in the government.

Can't Be "Fifth Estate."

"The suggestion to create a 'fifth estate' of the radio broadcasters would, in view of the ignorance of our political and social development, be trivial if it were not for the fact that simultaneously with this suggestion there is in progress an obvious, practical, pragmatic endeavor on the part of those controling commercial broadcasters to make the federal communications commission a subservient instrument to commercial radio."

Mr. Payne asserted radio could not be classified as a "fifth estate," as the newspaper profession is called the "fourth estate," because broadcasting channels are limited, and if any unauthorized person, seeking freedom of speech, were to set up a station, interference would result.

With newspapers, Mr. Payne said, it is different. A person desiring to give his views can establish a newspaper in any city or town without interference.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Victor Herbert died just about the time broadcasting was getting started. In the intervening years radio, particularly popular orchestras, have used Herbert's melodies often, but seldom is his name heard on the airways. This fact gave Richard Himber the idea of putting on a Victor Herbert testimonial week with the aid of band leaders throughout the nation.

The observance is to be launched by Himber during his Champions' broadcast at 9 tonight over WBBM-CBS. Throughout this week Chicago orchestra leaders will honor the composer's memory by playing favorite Herbert selections.

Himber tonight will present Fritzi Scheff, the prima donna of Herbert's "Mlle. Modeste," who will sing "Kiss Me Again," the best known song of this operetta, which she introduced.

Seymour Simons will present "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Falling in Love with Some One" at 10:30 Sunday evening, on WBBM. Orville Knapp will play "A Kiss in the Dark" and "Kiss Me Again" at 10:30 Tuesday, on W-G-N. Billy Mills will play selections from "Sweethearts," "Indian Summer," and "Souvenir" at 9:45 Tuesday, and George Olsen will play "A Kiss in the Dark" on his WBBM show Wednesday evening.

Horace Heidt has arranged several Herbert medleys which he will present throughout the week on W-G-N. Jan Garber, Herbie Kay, Shep Fields, and Len Keller are others who are reported planning to join in the Herbert parade.

The Northerners will dedicate half of their program at 9:30 Monday over W-G-N to Herbert compositions.

Robert L. Kaufman, formerly director of special events and publicity for CBS's western division, yesterday was appointed program director. He succeeds Holland Engle.

It was a big day yesterday for Amos 'n' Andy, that is, Freeman Gosden and Charlie Correll. Charlie made his first solo flight over the loop. He circled the Palmolive building where he and Gosden have offices, waving to Louise Summa, their secretary. On their broadcast last night Andy realized an ambition he has long cherished—playing the piano on the air. [Aside to James C. Petrillo: There's a man for the union!] A few bars was all that Amos could stand. He soon dragged Andy away. Looks like the team might part company. Amos revealed his plans to marry Ruby Taylor on last night's show.

Twenty singers from the University of Illinois Glee club, directed by Leroy Hamp, former W-G-N artist, will sing a medley of college songs, saluting Northwestern on Bob Elson's sports hour at 6 tonight on W-G-N. Wendell [Weenie] Wilson, assistant to Coach Bob Zuppke, will be interviewed by Elson. Harold Turner will play for the singers.

Walter Pancoe, 11 year old soprano of Glencoe, is to sing over WCFL from 6:45 to 7 tomorrow evening in the interest of the benefit dance to be given by the Mt. Sinai Hospital Service club on Nov. 27 at the Stevens hotel. Dr. Frank Laird Walker will accompany the child on the piano.

Holy Communion services at St. James Episcopal church at Hyde Park, N. Y., known as the President's church, are to be broadcast over CBS from 10 to 10:30 a. m. next Sunday. The President plans to attend services, according to CBS announcements, and his entrance is to be described by Bob Trout, regular presidential announcer. The services, thereupon, are to be broadcast.

most priceless, housed in a special building on the Hamills' Lake Forest estate and his friends consider it a very great privilege to be asked to visit it.

Lloyd Kellys Will Entertain Buds.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kelly have planned a party for his three debutante nieces, Miss Nancy Bastien and the Misses Marjorie and Patricia Kelly, for the evening of Dec. 23. The Kellys will entertain their young guests at dinner at the apartment of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Wetten of 209 Lake Shore drive, and then take them to the Princeton Triangle club performance. The Kellys are living this winter in an apartment at 202 East Walton place.

Many Social Events on Tonight's Calendar.

Tonight will be a busy one and the choice of entertainment is wide and varied. Of interest to the young people and to the older ones whose young ones are in it is the annual Service club revue at the Civic theater.

To those interested in promoting Japanese-American relations the dinner at the Army and Navy club for five distinguished Japanese visitors will be of paramount importance. The lecture that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will give in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel will be the most attractive to others.

Last but not least is the opening of Crockford's new clubrooms in the Blackstone hotel to which the governing committee has issued several hundred invitations.

The debutante set will dance and sup tonight at the Attic club where the Stanley Keiths and the Arthur Cables will be entertaining for Miss Nancy Ryerson, debutante daughter of the Edward L. Ryersons. The Cables' sons, Peter and Arthur, are flying from Cambridge today to be in the stag line and to spend the week-end with their mother and father. They both are students at Harvard. Miss Betty, sub-deb daughter of the Keiths, will be at the party, too, for she does not leave until Nov. 16 to spend the winter traveling abroad with Miss Stout's school. Spain has been substituted for Italy on the itinerary this winter. Miss Anne Winston, the Farwell Winstons' daughter, and Miss Annie May, younger daughter of the Huntington B. Henrys, also will be with Miss Stout this winter.

Japan-America Society Dinner.

The dinner at the Army and Navy club is being given by the Japan-America society for the Japanese ambassador, Hirosi Saito, and Mrs. Saito; Count Aisuke Kabayama, delegate from the house of peers to the Interparliamentary union meeting of 1935, and Baron Ino Dan, director of the Society for International Cultural Relations, and Baroness Dan.

Charles G. Dawes will be toastmaster at the dinner and Mr. Saito will present to John H. Wigmore, dean emeritus of the law school of Northwestern university, the Order of the Sacred Treasure, recently conferred upon him by the emperor of Japan.

The others at the speakers' table will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Chandler, Mrs. Dawes, Mrs. Wigmore, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lautmann, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne and Dr. and Mrs. William McGovern. There will be about 400 at the affair, which will be formal with the Japanese women in their loveliest kimonos, the men in full dress and wearing their decorations, and the army and navy officers present in dress uniform.

Hizi Koyko, Japanese prima donna of the San Carlo Opera company, will sing during and after dinner, and there also will be dancing.

Count Kabayama to Speak Today.

Count Kabayama will speak on "The Internal Situation in Japan" today at 12:30 o'clock at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at the Palmer house. The Saitos, who arrive today by airplane from Washington, and the Dans will be the luncheon guests of the John Alden Carpenters who later will take their luncheon party to the symphony concert.

Mrs. Roosevelt's lecture on "Ways to Peace" will be the first of the Blackstone series. Miss Grace Abbott, prominent in social service fields and a personal friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, will preside at the lecture, which will be followed by a brief reception. Mrs. Roosevelt will arrive late this afternoon by airplane and will leave late tonight to fly to her home in Hyde Park, N. Y.

The Service club revue will be repeated tomorrow night and the curtain will rise both nights at 8:30 o'clock. The proceeds of the revue will be distributed among the several Chicago charities.

Buffet Supper at Crockford's.

Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson, Count Guilio Bolognesi, Mrs. Vincent Healy, Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Mrs. Charles S. Pearce, Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Darrow Fulton, Edwin L. Brashears, Owen D. Gilman, George T. Leach, Albert H. Morehead, Eugene Pike, Raymond S. Pruitt, Oren E. Taft and Charles Deere Wiman are on the governing committee of the new bridge club that is opening in the Blackstone.

Guests tonight are invited for 8 o'clock and a buffet supper will be served at 11:30.

The Curtis B. Munsons left for their Edmonton, Can., home yesterday after a visit with her mother, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, in Lake Forest.

Charles Breasted was in town for a few days last week on his way from the west to the east coast for the New York première of the Oriental institute's film, "The Human Adventure," in Carnegie hall this week. He will go west again shortly to rejoin his wife and young son at Williams, Ariz., and bring them back to Chicago. Mrs. Breasted, who spent the summer with her husband and baby in Santa Barbara, is at Williams recovering from an attack of the flu.

Dr. and Mrs. James H. Breasted will return to Chicago from a trip to Egypt the middle of December.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

These being the days when you court vim and vigor, you'll be especially enamored of an inexpensive, excellent pine soap that recently made its appearance. People who react well to pine swear that the very scent of this soap is a great promoter of pep.

What we're more interested in is the fact that this pine soap is of a blandness not often found in pine soaps of the inexpensive class. You can depend on it to be gentle to your skin—and that's one of the first requisites of a soap choice, especially in winter weather. There's plenty of coconut oil in this one, so, you see, it isn't one of those soaps that has only a fine fragrance to recommend it.

Pine is such a popular odor that a lot of manufacturers who catch it well are apt to concentrate on the scent rather than the quality of the product to which they give it. This is a good soap plus an excellent trimming in the shape of really good interpretation of pine—cool and tangy and just as pine should be.

This soap lathers in hard as well as soft water, too, which should count as one of its virtues.

It has a companion in the shape of a liquid shampoo about which we're equally enthusiastic. This is a very efficient hair cleansing agent that leaves the scalp feeling simply swell. Then, too, it leaves the hair with a faint fragrance of that always clean scent of pine.

The cakes of soap come three in a box at a nicely low price. The shampoo is equally inexpensive.

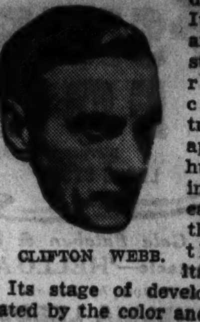
Timidity May Reach State Held Courage

Development Is Indicated by the Eyebrows.

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

Timidity is an emotional tendency which affects different individuals in different degrees. It may approach an emotional state which is recognized as courage. The trait is mostly apparent when human beings are in contact with each other, and then it gives to the association its dominant tone.



CLIFTON WEBB.

Its stage of development is indicated by the color and growth of the eyebrows, with some modifications caused by the formation of the eyelids. These two parts serve as protection for our most valuable sense organs, the eyes. While a feeling of safety follows a good protection, a feeling of being exposed to danger results from poor protection.

This naturally leads to difference in conduct—in one case characterized by suppressing, in the other by fortifying other fundamental traits seeking an expression.

A young man with a strong salesman's mouth received a technical education and had the choice of the manufacturing or the business end of his line. His extreme shyness, indicated by his light and scanty eyebrows, made him decide on the former, but, lacking certain other qualities, he lost out after a few years. Apparently the failure prevented him from obtaining another position and he was unemployed for a long time.

His wife asked me to find work of some kind for him and I advised selling. This he would not do. He was more interested in money than in anything else, and he knew it, but would not admit it for fear of having to conquer his shyness in contact with strangers. As an escape he built up a conviction that sales work was degrading to a gentleman, that he would lose caste in the eyes of his friends by taking it up.

Light eyebrows also denote a free-running imagination and he is still letting it work, keeping down the one real ability he has, making money.

The only thing necessary to get out of this disastrous state of mind is to face the issue squarely. We all have handicaps one way or another, but we can condition ourselves to ignore them in favor of some natural advantage we have in the struggle of life.

Clifton Webb never is afraid of people. His eyes are well safeguarded by heavy, dark eyebrows and he would feel perfect freedom in any company, no matter how rough or dangerous. His heavy, well-rounded nose tip indicates an ability to size up any stranger and he would look him straight in the eye. This natural understanding of human nature is mostly concerned with its bad points, and to prevent a discomforting pessimistic attitude the possessor idealizes life. His short upper and lower lips indicate an altruistic tendency, which his superior efficiency can well afford.

According to CULBERTSON

TRAPPING YOUR PARTNER.

The laws of the land are full of punishments for ordinary misdemeanors and felonies against civilized society, but there's an aching void in them. What about the crimes of the bridge table? Beheading not only would be too good—it wouldn't help. Bridge criminals wouldn't even miss their heads. Certainly not those who perpetrate that most atrocious outrage which occurs so often, "trapping one's partner." Yet this incredibly stupid action arises constantly. Such bidding as North, "one club"; South, "one heart"; North, "three hearts"; South, "four hearts"; North, "five hearts!" is as commonplace as it is terrible. Let us analyze such a chain.

South's heart response may have been pretty weak. He may have held ♥Q J x x x x and nothing much else, possibly a singleton somewhere. His partner's jump raise to three strongly urges him to go to game, and he is not to be blamed if he takes a deep breath and makes the plunge. So, what is his dismay, while having strained to bid four, to hear his fatuous partner scuttle the ship with a "feeler" of five, and worse, accompany it with a beatific smile. "Why," South groans inwardly, "couldn't the consummate ass bid his own game when he knew, if I held a really respectable hand, I would have been fully capable of going to a slam myself?" But it's too late. The trap has been sprung.

Other chains of bidding, even among good players, reveal similar flaws or traps, perhaps not so flagrant, but none the less stupid. I once played with a young "expert" who proudly produced the following atrocity:

HE.	I.
1 club	1 diamond
2 clubs	2 no trump.
6 clubs!

Not only that but, when I put down this very fair hand: ♠K J 10, ♥10 8 7 4, ♦A Q 10 9 8, ♣3, he glared at me for having bid no trump with only one of his suit.

This sort of thing is painfully common. A partner first stills your fears with a minimum response [which happens to be a terrific underbid] and leads you to believe a slight liberty on your part can do no harm. Then, proud of his previous restraint, he hoists anchor and sets full sail for Never Never land. Back to the jungles with "trappers."

An Extra Chance.

When your opponents hold five cards of a suit probably they will be divided 3-2; when they hold six cards, the probable division is 4-2. This is valuable knowledge when playing many hands.

♣A 2

The bidding [North-South vulnerable]:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♥	1♠	2♥	Pass
4♥ [final bid]

West opened the king and ace of spades. He led a third spade and South ruffed. South could afford to lose only one more trick. If each opponent had three diamonds he could not lose but one trick, but if South drew out all of East trumps, then found four diamonds in one hand against him, he would lose two tricks. South expected a 4-2 diamond division so he led the ace and king of diamonds, then a small diamond. West won and led another diamond, but dummy trumped with the heart king. Then South drew trumps with the ace, queen, and jack, and won the remaining tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Partner bids one spade, second hand passes, and you hold ♠K97632, ♥86, ♦954, ♣J7. What do you bid?

Answer: Bid two spades. It is a common error to give a jump raise simply because of great length in partner's suit. With no singleton the ruffing power of this hand is not great, and unless partner can freely bid again there is no hope of game.

TERRA COTTA MAKE-UP

Gives New Appeal to Lips, to Eyes, to Skin
Latest Color in Powder, Rouge, Lipstick, Foundation

BY HELENA RUBINSTEIN

MY RED RASPBERRY lipstick and rouge, my Red Geranium and Red Poppy are glowing, exotic colors which transform your whole face.

Throughout the world—in London, Paris, New York—my make-up shades set the fashion. Imitators try to reproduce my original colors.

Now, I have a new sensation—Terra Cotta-Light—the first use of bronze tones ever introduced in powder, rouge, lipstick and foundation.

It is different, utterly new. What you have learned to expect of the House of Rubinstein.

Terra Cotta-Light—the Make-Up Sensation

Just as Red Geranium, Red Raspberry and Red Poppy set the style in their own rich, red color tones, so Terra Cotta-Light is setting the style in make-up today.

How shall I describe this new Terra Cotta-Light? It is young, exciting. It has warmth—but natural warmth, not artificial.

Complete Ensemble

I have developed my Powder, Rouge, Lipstick and Make-Up Film in this new glamorous color, that you may have a harmonized make-up.

Terra Cotta-Light Powder casts a warm, youthful glow over your skin. Like all my powders, it is blended in two distinct textures: one for the normal and oily skin, another specially prepared for the dry skin.

But fine-textured though it is, my Terra Cotta-Light Powder clings... for hours. And when you use it you know you are using a safe powder. For coarse powders clog the pores and can ruin the health of your skin.

Terra Cotta-Light Lipstick gives rich, young color, gleaming lustre to your lips. A new biological ingredient definitely corrects dryness and chapping. Terra Cotta Rouge is the rouge of youth for all ages!

And my new Town & Country Make-Up Film, the perfect foundation, comes in Terra Cotta, too ... so that your color ensemble may be flawless.

The New Make-Up Film

Town & Country Make-Up Film marks a new trend in beauty foundations. Tissues drink in this essence thirstily. It preserves the dewy freshness of youth, conceals tell-tale lines and casts a mat finish over the skin. It keeps your make-up fresh, vivid, the whole day long! It is the make-up base you have been longing for. In two smart and becoming shades: Terra Cotta and Peachbloom.

Finally, add that mysterious, indefinable depth to your eyes—use my Persian Mascara. It will not run or smart.

CAUTION: Before you ever apply make-up, be sure your skin is clean. Purify it with my Pasteurized Face Cream, which softens and smooths the skin as it cleanses.

This mellow-textured cream is soothing to the most delicate skin. It penetrates deeply to the very tissues, where lines and wrinkles begin. There, it nurtures and revitalizes the tissues... The tired, drawn look is lifted from your face, and in its place comes the radiant glow of health.

Strong Sense of Security Vital to Every Child

Confidence in Parent Is Basis of His World.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Until your baby or your small child is old enough to depend upon himself, he must be able to depend upon you.

The sense of security is vital to a child.

In his early life this sense of security must come through you.

Your love that is always there, spoken or unspoken, your real kindness, your understanding, your protection in the face of danger, your loyalty when the outside world is hostile, your actual presence, your comfort in the face of hurt, your reassurance in the face of fear, your physical care, your seriousness about the things which are important to him, your interest and responsiveness—all these strands wound together make the rope to which he clings in this complex world—make the stones which build the house of life in which he lives happily—make a solid foundation on which he goes serenely forward eventually to meet with confidence life, and a bigger world.

It is in your power to create a sense of securtiy in your child. When he is little you create it in a thousand ways—small ways usually. The way in which you bathe him—even the regularity of his routine tends to give security in his life, because it creates order and rhythm.

When he is older you create the sense of security, in bigger and more intangible ways, by your ability to understand and meet his changing needs.

And even later, you give him a sense of security of a different kind by being willing to set him free and let him go out "on his own." At this more mature time, it is not things like your physical care of him, but rather intangible things, like your loyaltiy and understanding added to your confidence in him, that represent security.

What we hope to be to our children is expressed in "A Mother's and Father's Litany," a specially printed folder, which is sent out on receipt of postage—no envelope in this case, please.

Hair of Middle Age Requires Special Care

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Let's talk hair beauty this morning. Everybody else is talking it, observing, and diagnosing it. I don't mean coiffures. I mean the beauty of the locks themselves.

A woman came to me about six weeks ago begging for advice on what to do about her hair. Hers was one of those sad looking heads with the original color well faded, the faded hairs blended intermittently with lifeless looking gray strands. She wasn't a young woman, but, nevertheless, an employed woman who suddenly realized that in these stressful times she'd better perk up or she'd be out on a limb with some younger woman filling her office chair.

Well, I sent her off for hair treatments. She might have given them to herself at home, but I had a feeling she wouldn't, that she'd arrived at a point of discouragement at which an outsider's interest would restore her faith. Besides, she would not give a solid half hour to scalp manipulation and brushing and rubbing in of pomade, which I knew her head needed. She had the money for the treatments, so she signed up, paid in advance for a month so that she'd be sure to keep the appointments.

An extreme case of hair neglect hers, so three treatments a week at half hour intervals were decided on. Saturday of each week her hair was set and waved at the end of the scalp treatment. In my time I have conducted quite a few experiments in the beauty line, but never have I seen anything that responded with such conviction as this woman's head. The coloring in the hair was not touched. But somehow the former faded strands became alive with the treatment, and the silvery threads came up silver instead of the dirty ash gray they were in the beginning. I'll wager ten years were taken off that head.

And, as always, when a woman concentrates on a new hair beauty, or a new silhouette beauty, there develops a great pride in other items of appearance. In this particular woman's case she had excellent skin. She needed only better makeup coloring and instruction about its application, and got it. She really looked as attractive as can be at the end of six weeks, and she's still keeping up the hair treatments, now reduced to one a week. I would like to plead for more of the professional scalp and hair treatment, especially for the hair that is beginning to turn.

There are countless women who can well afford such treatments, but who simply do not think of having more than a wave. They won't and don't give themselves home treatment, so why not invest a little in this rewarding hair beautifying plan?

Girl Attracted to Man's Wealth May Become Sincere

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Word got back to the man that the girl said that when she had met him it was his money that attracted her. But now, she has learned to care deeply. His question is whether the money influence still isn't affecting the young woman, and, if so, should he lose his money, would he find himself out on a limb?

She was 21 when they met. He was, 24. His father had left him a fortune. Her family had just been through the depression, emerging penniless. He was in a position to get the girl's dad a job, and her brother started in on something. Everything was sailing along smoothly, an engagement ring talked about, when one of the girl's "confidantes" took it upon herself to enlighten the man about the girl's confession. He's homely, he reports, and perhaps unduly sensitive. This is the reason, he feels, that it was his money that first attracted. He figures it out that he won't get any better looking as time goes on, and, if the money should disappear, as fortunes have been known to fly overnight, where would he stand with the girl?

The tale bearer's motive, to begin with, was a vicious one. Undoubtedly the girl's comments were twisted about to make them appear at their worst. But suppose the revelation were based on truth. It's more than possible that a young woman might first be intrigued by a car, the night clubs to which a man of means could take her, the attentions he could afford.

But it is just as possible for her to become extremely fond of the person who supplied her with these pleasures. Indeed, did said young man take a kindly and helpful interest in her dad's financial plight, and that of her brother, there might easily blossom a genuine affection. Then, the behavior of the man himself toward the girl, always kind, considerate, and generous, could easily enmesh her deepest emotions. It is not difficult for a man to detect a spurious affection for the real thing, unless he chooses to wear blinders every minute. If money were the sole attraction, he girl would show her hand plainly enough.

So you, young man, are in the sole position to judge.

John McCormack Refuses to Sing the Irish Anthem

CORK, Irish Free State, Oct. 31.—(AP)—By scorning "A Soldier's Song," a national anthem of the Irish Free State, John McCormack, famous tenor, has created high feeling in many districts.

"It's strange," declared McCormack here, "that a country which can boast of glorious music should adopt 'A Soldier's Song' for its national anthem—a song which has nothing but its associations to commend it to the Irish nation."

The noted singer then offered a suggestion of his own for a national anthem. His voice rang out in the famous Irish war song "Bright Sun Before Whose Glorious Rays."

"There's our national anthem for you," he said.

"Or you have this," he continued. Once again his voice rang through the room, this time in the strains of "Remember the Glories of Brian the Brave."

"There's a marvelous martial song," he declared. "And yet, with songs like that we still hold 'A Soldier's Song' as our national anthem. It's unworthy of us—it's very unfortunate."

Concert Marks 75th Birthday of Paderewski

Symphony Program Wins Audience.

BY HAZEL MOORE.

The third program of the Chicago Symphony orchestra presented at Orchestra hall last night under the direction of Dr. Frederick Stock, was played in honor of the seventy-fifth birthday of the distinguished statesman and pianist, Ignace Paderewski. It also introduced the first soloist of the season in Ernest Schelling, former pupil of Paderewski and one of the ranking American pianists and composers.

The second half of the program was devoted to two compositions by Paderewski, which afforded most interesting contrast. The first, the Symphony B minor, opus 24, first introduced at these concerts by Dr. Stock in 1909, is a nationalistic concept by the Polish statesman of the martial soul of his country. It is a composition of the utmost sincerity, but as a unified musical expression falls far behind the Polish Fantasie, for piano and orchestra which Mr. Schelling later played with the orchestra.

The Fantasie is a well knit and brilliant piece of pianistic writing, and Mr. Schelling gave it a sparkling performance. His success with the audience was so great that he was forced to add two encores; the second movement of Paderewski's Piano Concerto No. 2 and the Scherzo from his own Fantastic Suite.

Schelling has made eight previous appearances with the orchestra, and his compositions have found frequent place on Mr. Stock's programs. His "Victory Ball," is perhaps the best known item, and has recently been made into a ballet which the composer conducted at the Hollywood Bowl. Mr. Schelling has followed in the footsteps of his famous master as a great personality in music.

The first part of the program was made up of a magnificent performance of Beethoven's tonic Fifth Symphony, and one which showed all the years of solid building which have gone into the making of this year's fine orchestra. A performance such as this is an evening's program in itself, though the playing time seemed short.

Wagner's youthful "Polonia" Overture opened the program and was doubtless included because of its Polish significance. It is mainly of interest as musical prognostication of the nineteen year old Wagner. The same program will be repeated this afternoon.

Collective Safety Only Hope of World, Declares Angell

If some collective method of law enforcement and mutual protection is not worked out western culture will not continue to exist. This warning was given last night in a lecture at Thorne hall on the McKinlock campus of Northwestern university by Sir Norman Angell, Nobel peace prize winner for 1933, author and British statesman.

"If you will not defend others," he said, "it is quite obvious that you cannot protect yourselves. We tolerate conditions and actions between nations that we would not for a minute tolerate between individuals."

The speaker emphasized that he was not speaking for the league of nations nor advocating any particular method of this collective law enforcement.

"It can take a dozen forms," he said.

Sir Norman detailed the commonly accepted causes of war, now being given by Italy, and derided each one. The cry that war is a search for raw materials, he said, is erroneous, because if a nation or individual has money he can buy raw materials anywhere, and if he has no money he cannot obtain them even if they are produced in his own country.

Italy's cry of increasing population is "pure poppycock," he said. In the colony of Eritrea, he said, Italy has now only 85 colonists, although she has possessed the colony for a number of years.

Institute Opens World Exhibit of Lithographs

England and Russia Gain Special Notice.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Fourth International Lithograph exposition opens today in the print galleries of the Art institute. There are 325 lithographs and wood block engravings in the show and they represent a number of countries.

Russia, in particular, has sent an interesting group, rather extraordinary in character because they are chiefly illustrative—and illustrative [of all things!] of Dickens' stories. Those Russian lithographs which are not illustrations are as demure as early wood cuts and as charming. It is amazing that such work should have come from the U. S. S. R.

England has, as usual, contributed a notable group. "The Cuckoo in the Nest," by Blampied, is amusing—a little dog sits sadly aloof while a cat plays with his dish of bones. Cats are rather plentiful in the show. Agnes Miller Parker [English] has two of the most delightful felines, each in a bower of flowers. Her technique is brilliant.

John Copley [English] gives us a strong scene in "Lac Leman," a Swiss interval with sturdy peasants walking a path along a lake encircled by high peaks. Claire Leighton, another English artist and one who invariably is worth watching, has a vigorous print: "Washing Clothes, Corsica."

Turning to the work in color, Jean Hugo, whose things are usually difficult to secure, has sent four exquisite tiny prints. They are delicate in composition and delightful in color. One must return to Great Britain, however, for perhaps the most striking lithograph in the entire show, John Chadwick's "The Introduction."

The United States is ably represented. Rockwell Kent has a lonely moment in "Communing with Nature," undoubtedly a Greenland episode. Stefan Hirsch gives us an amusing family of donkeys. Minetta Good, famous for her marvelous clarity and richness of drawing, is represented by "Dahlias."

Raphael Soyer, one of three brothers who were born triplets and artists and whose work is scarcely distinguishable the one from the other, shows a nice drawing of a woman's back in "Hair Shampoo."

Those countries which are represented are Argentina, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, Holland, Hungary, Italy, Mexico, Switzerland, Poland, the United States, White Russia, and the U. S. S. R.

Only one prize is to be given in the show this year and it will be announced this afternoon. The jury of selection for the exhibit included Henry G. Keller, William Borach, and Morton Zabel. The exhibit will continue to Jan. 6.

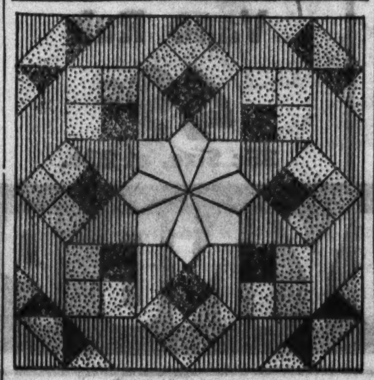
Eight Point Star Pattern Basis of Old Quilt Block



Pennsylvania Hex.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Pennsylvania Hex" is an old quilt block based on the familiar eight point star pattern with a slight elaboration. As is seen in the block, from the eight pointed star there follows a series of eight pointed overlapping figures. All print, all plain, or a combination of both materials may be used for this block. Blue, yellow, and white form a delightfully fresh combination, but practically any mentionable arrangement of shades is suitable for a block of this type.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

National Gallery Given 630 Prints by Chicago Society of Etchers

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Six hundred and thirty prints, the gift of the Chicago Society of Etchers, have been placed on exhibition by the National Gallery of Art.

The prints, many of them by artists of world fame, have been hung in the Natural History building. They include etchings, dry points, lithographs, aquatints, engravings, and block prints.

The gift, according to officials of the National Gallery, has lent impetus to their aspirations for the establishment of a great print division.

Mrs. Bertha W. Jaques, secretary and treasurer of the Chicago society since its formation, is credited with having brought the collection together.

She is represented in the collection with "A Sunny Corner in Villefranche." Of this a Washington critic wrote that it "employs a delicacy of line and softness of lights and shadows which not only make it one of the most interesting but one of the most attractive etchings in the exhibition."

Ralph Fletcher Seymour, who recently won the Chicago society's $500 prize with "The Wine Shop," is represented in the exhibition with five etchings.

Mrs. Lehman Makes Peace Plea to Clubs

Opens Regional Conference in Chicago.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

An urgent plea for world peace was made yesterday by Mrs. Edward J. Lehman of Sidney, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, before a gathering of 700 federation members in the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Lehman was addressing the opening session of the annual northern regional conference.

"If it is up to women to bring present conditions back to normalcy, it is time women were organizing more effectively and striving together to put an end to war," she said. "God forbid that it come again to our shores and may it soon end in other countries. Women can win if they keep faith with themselves and get behind their jobs believing in courtesy, kindness, generosity, good cheer, and friendship."

Part time university courses for clubwomen are one of this year's objectives for the federation, Mrs. Lehman said. These courses will offer several days of schooling each month through which housewives can keep abreast of current affairs. Another project discussed by Mrs. Lehman was the installation of books for the blind in libraries throughout the state.

Other speakers at the opening meeting were Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, second vice president of the General Federation, and Mrs. William F. Farrell, General Federation director for Illinois.

Following luncheon in the Sherman grand ballroom the afternoon was devoted to departmental conferences through which federation members heard authorities in education, politics, legislation, conservation, philanthropy, press and publicity, and other subjects in which the organization is interested.

Richard Shirrmann, a German and founder of the youth hostel movement, told the American home department that a total of 7,000,000 boys and girls hiking and bicycling through Europe and the New England states have stopped at the 4,000 supervised lodging places established by the hostel movement.

The American citizenship session applauded Mrs. W. W. Ramsey of the Cook County League of Women Voters in her appeal "not to support any candidate who does not promise to vote for a permanent registration bill in the next session of the legislature." The permanent registration law should remedy the whole system under which dishonest elections are possible, Mrs. Ramsey declared.

Adoption of the drivers' license law in Illinois was another measure urged in this meeting. The license law will be studied by clubs, Mrs. Carl H. Bartling, chairman of the group, said.

Prompt Action Held Chief Hope in Cancer War

The secret of curing cancer is to receive treatment immediately, Dr. James P. Simonds, professor of pathology, Northwestern university medical school, told members of the Chicago Woman's club yesterday. He spoke under auspices of the special cancer committee of the club.

"Many cases of cancer can be cured if they are discovered and treated without delay. Delay is always dangerous and may prove fatal. If the general public can be educated the death rate can be materially reduced, even before science discovers the actual cause of cancer," Dr. Simonds said.

The statistical evidence of an increase in cancer was explained by the fact that cancer is primarily a disease of later life and, due to modern hygiene, the percentage of aged people is growing larger.

While science as yet does not know what causes cancer, it is known that any chronic inflammation may result in a tumorous growth. Syphilis was cited as one of the sources of cancer, while cancer of the mouth was attributed largely to bad teeth and excessive use of tobacco.

Illustrating his lecture with lantern slides, showing the harmless or benign tumor and the malignant cancerous growth, Dr. Simonds warned against using "radio-active" products without professional supervision.

Studios Face Big Losses in Illness Wave

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Movie illness has written approximately $1,000,000 on the red ink side of studio ledgers within two weeks.

The major points were:

Loretta Young—Out for a year; four films canceled.

Freddie Bartholomew—Out for two weeks.

Adolphe Menjou—Indefinitly on the sick list; one picture delayed, one canceled.

Simone Simon—Recuperating; one picture delayed.

Frances Paxton—Recuperating; one picture delayed.

Verree Teasdale—Recuperating; one picture delayed.

Studio business offices estimated it cost about $2,000 a day to delay production on a major feature. No fewer than five were either canceled entirely or delayed by illness of the players recently.

The expense on others was partially circumvented by the costly process of rearranging shooting schedules.

Hardest hit was Twentieth Century-Fox, which lost Loretta Young. The star's salary touches $200,000 a year. Thus her value to the studio probably is several times that figure. Executives said her removal from active duty for a year would cost in the neighborhood of half a million dollars.

Menjou and Miss Teasdale, his wife, were working in Harold Lloyd's new picture, "The Milky Way."

Freddie Bartholomew, working in "Professional Soldier," sprained his ankle playing soccer last Friday. Work stopped on the picture and was scheduled to be resumed this week. Sunday Freddie was trying to see how fast he could run down stairs on crutches. He fell, skinned his nose, and will be unable to appear before the cameras for another week.

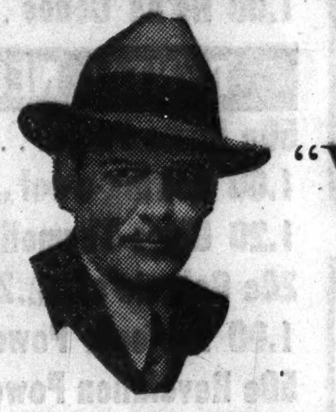
Walter Winchell Tells You



"Why to go Where!"

To leave the comforts of home these Fall nights, the place has to be good—and these are—oof'ly.

THE CASINO . . . . (7500 So. Halsted St.)

Belle Howard is the thrusher at the Casino—which features Rocky Ellsworth, Charlie Garfie, Agnes Daniels—plus others. Herb Redells' Continental Band provides the music—and the mirrors near the Silveroid Bar have applaudience appeal—they're grand.

G & W Bottled-in-Bond Whiskies—produced in Canada—are "special occasion" whiskies . . . aged 6 years in the wood, they are the kind that men of discrimination are quick to lay in and slow to bring out . . . made by the oldest distillery in Canada, with 103 years of skill added to the distilled quality of the ingredients . . . smooth with decades of knowledge and mellow with eras of Time.

BALL OF FIRE Restaurant & Cafe (5027 Broadway)

The Ball of Fire goes in for dancers—who are oof'ly good—and the musik'l revue is changed each week—but Carl Lorain and his band stays—and plays—and plenty. Pipple say the bar is the longest in North Chicago—and that the steaks and chops are too okay.

G & W Star Blended Whiskies are established as the first choice of people who want blended whiskies rich in body, pleasing in aroma and palatable in taste. One sip tells the story—whether you try Two Star, Five Star or Seven Star . . . they are the best sellers wherever people know the best! "Judge Your Whiskey by the Stars."

GALLERY'S . . . . (4833 No. Western Ave.)

There's no music at Gallery's—but there are slews of pictures to look at on the walls—of celebs—and big time foofies—and Grade A food, frinstance, chili—and chicken—and a menu full of stuff cooked German—and well.

G & W Primrose is a 100 Proof, 100% Straight Rye Whiskey that hits the spot for flavor without putting you on the spot as to price . . . it makes instant friends and lasting friendships because it is always smooth, always mellow and satisfying all the time!

CHICAGO RACING SEASON ENDS; $34,250,000 BET

Wagers $10,000,000 More than in 1934.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The most amazing race meeting of the year in America came to an end at Sportsman's park race track late yesterday afternoon, and when it ended Chicago's 158 day turf season was ready to be written into the turf history books.

It was an astonishing meet—that 22 day session at Sportsman's park—because it was half mile track racing with scarcely a stake horse of any prominence going to the post from the opening day until the curtain rolled down.

Yet approximately 132,000 customers passed through the turnstiles during these 22 days and they wagered approximately $2,900,400. No half mile track which has operated in this country ever has enjoyed such prosperity.

Betting Is Up $10,000,000.

Official betting figures for the season in Chicago were not complete last night, but George Foster, secretary of the Illinois racing commission, estimated that the wagering at all tracks that have operated in Illinois between May 1 and Oct. 31 was $34,250,000. This is $10,000,000 more than was wagered on Illinois tracks last season.

The Endurance purse was the final big race of the year and, after twelve distance runners had wheeled past the stands five times, Nasslyn, a son of Nassak-Lynmouth, was a galloping winner by eight lengths. Dr. Potter, grouped in the field for the wagering, finished second, and Fair Prospect was third.

Nasslyn galloped to the front soon after the start and never left the result in doubt until he reached the winning post. At times he appeared to be running so fast it hardly seemed possible he could keep going at the steady pace he was making.

Nasslyn's time for the two and an eighth miles was 3:53, two seconds slower than the track record. In the betting he paid $7.80 to win.

Just One Happy Family.

It was a happy gathering that took the one last fling at the horses in Chicago for the year. The crowd numbered 12,000, and packed the tiny park to a point where there scarcely was breathing room. It was as hard to make bets before some of the races as it is at Churchill Downs on Derby day.

The losers and the winners all appeared to be in fine humor. Even the closing day spirit of the occasion reached the back stretch. Some of the stable hands started celebrating early. Shortly after the long shot Pan Toy captured the fourth race, Cicero's noted Black Maria was called out.

The boisterous stable hands were loaded into it and hauled off to the jailhouse.

The $1,200 Great Lakes handicap was the most valuable offering on the final program. It engaged the fleetest sprinters left here and it brought a stirring finish when Busy Spain came up with a great rush in the stretch to beat popular Mr. James by a half a length.

QUIZ RACE STEWARDS

State's Attorney William R. McCabe of Will county yesterday issued a subpena for Christopher J. FitzGerald, presiding steward at the Chicago district race tracks, to appear before the grand jury next Tuesday. McCabe issued the subpena following a conference with several horsemen who said they had received "unfair treatment" from FitzGerald at the Lincoln Fields track at Crete in Will county.

McCabe declined to disclose the names of the horsemen and also a list of questions which he said he would ask FitzGerald to answer.

FitzGerald last Wednesday was named in a $250,000 slander suit filed by Jay D. Mikel of Carlock, Ill. For two season he has been the steward representing the Illinois racing commission.

GO AFTER TIPSTERS

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 31.—(AP)—New York state's investigation into race track racketeering appeared likely tonight to lead the way to similar inquiries throughout the nation.

"From evidence we have uncovered," Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr. said, "it appears that the practice is national in scope."

He offered New York's coöperation with officials from any other state who desire to make similar inquiries.

New York's investigation thus far has dealt solely with tipster services, but Thomas F. Ward Jr., chief of the state law department's anti-racket bureau, indicated "it might develop into something more far reaching."

Meanwhile the postoffice department entered the inquiry to determine whether postal laws were violated by the sending of fraudulent racing tips through the mails. Investigators already have discovered that a New York City group, operating last August at Saratoga Springs, received money for tips distributed through the mail.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

EDDIE WEDGE of Detroit, a member of the 1932 Olympic speed skating team, Monday night married Goeta Ljungberg of Sweden, soprano with the Metropolitan Opera company, who has been appearing as a guest artist with the San Carlo Opera company at the Auditorium. . . . The couple, who have tried to keep their wedding a secret, were married by the Rev. Werner Wickstrom of the Elim Swedish Methodist church, 1015 Barry avenue. . . .

When Dizzy Dean appeared in Los Angeles for an exhibition game recently an effort was made to sign Larry French of the Cubs to oppose him. . . . Apparently there is no love lost between the two, for this is what they had to say when a financial hitch developed: French—"I'm not pitching for my health and I'm not giving my services for nothing just to let that big fathead Dean make a lot of dough. I'm looking out for L. French and not J. Dean, and if they want me to show Diz how to pitch they have to pay me." . . . To which Dean replied—"Where does that French get off popping off about how good he is. I hope he does pitch, because if he does I'll hit one over the wall off him. Hell, French couldn't even beat those Detroit Pussycats." . . . . Maybe the boys were only fooling, but they did not pitch against each other. . . .

Mae West has donated a water buck wagon to the Loyola football team in Los Angeles. . . . The rooters have dubbed it "Mae West's water wings." . . . Tuck Stainback of the Cubs is going to invest $4,000 of his world series check in government bonds. . . . The University of Portland has a back named John L. Sullivan. . . . Dave Strong, Illinois freshman quarter back from Helena, Mont., breaks horses in the summer. . . . He gets $50 or his choice of one of the wild nags for taming three. . . . Strong weighs only 150 pounds, but they say he'll be heard from next season. . . . Walter Eichenberger, Marquette guard, was born in Karlstadt, Austria. . . . Donald Ross, manager of Pinehurst, where the 1936 pro golf meet will be held, was apprentice to a carpenter in Dornoch, Scotland, but the lure of golf was too much and he never served out his time, taking a professional's job in the town. . . . On his 63d birthday last year Mr. Ross shot a 66 at Pinehurst. . . . Dick Pratt, Navy back, was bemoaning his luck after the Notre Dame game Saturday. . . . "Here I last for 60 minutes against Notre Dame's football team," he said, "and on the last play Referee Friesell steps on my hand with his cleats." . . . The accident cut Pratt's hand in several places, but will not keep him out of tomorrow's game with Princeton. . . .

The Los Angeles club has prohibited members of the team from playing soft ball this winter. . . . Babe Ruth's annuities will pay him $200 a week the rest of his life. . . . Joe Williams, Ohio State's brilliant ball carrier, says that as a basketball player in his first year at high school he was bashful about appearing on the floor with those short trunks on. . . . Omar Fareed, who is pushing Ned Bartlett for the right half back position on the University of Chicago eleven, is Bartlett's closest friend. . . . They were high school chums at Glendale, Cal., where Fareed's father, a Persian, is a neuro-psychiatrist. . . . Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech players say that Fred Carideo, Notre Dame full back, is the hardest driving back they have met. . . . Nick Kliskey, Pitt center who has played against Stan Kostka and other great backs in his three years of college football, says none has given him as much punishment as Carideo. . . .

In the old days it wasn't necessary to steam up a prize fight in the public prints for several weeks. . . . Hen Pierce, the Game Chicken, made a match, fought the fight, and retained his championship all within an hour. . . . It happened at Bristol, England, on Aug. 11, 1803. . . . The Game Chicken went down to Shooters Hill to attend the fair. . . . Sport fans were gathered at the pubs talking fights and toasting the men of skill and might. . . . Joe Berks, a rough outspoken butcher, who was a pretender to the championship, also was there. . . . The Game Chicken and Berks had little regard for each other, but Berks alone voiced any open contempt. . . . Later in the evening they met again at Fives Court in St. Martin's lane and after the Game Chicken had retired Berks again got to bragging. . . . He continued to show offensive insolence toward the Game Chicken's friends and when he became too abusive in his threats some one slipped upstairs and awakened the champion. . . . He came down stripped for action. . . . A well lighted room was picked and Pierce announced he was ready to defend his title. . . . The fight lasted 20 minutes, in which 15 rounds were fought. . . . The Game Chicken gave Berks a sound licking and when he was unable to come to scratch for the 16th round the champion stalked off to his room to finish his sleep. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—A crowd of 20,000 greeted the victorious Illinois team home. . . . Joe Sternaman kicked two field goals to give the Bears a 6 to 0 victory over Rock Island. . . . Paddy Driscoll's kicking enabled the Chicago Cardinals to beat Duluth, 10 to 6. . . . Michigan, Iowa, and Chicago were tied for first place in the Big Ten football race. . . . Nick Kutsch of Iowa was leading the Big Ten in scoring with 49 points.

Lewis Hammers Olin; Wins World Title in 15 Rounds

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 31.—(AP)—John Henry Lewis, colored boxer of Phoenix, Ariz., outpointed champion Bob Olin, New York, to win the world's light heavyweight championship tonight.

Eight thousand fans, a disappointment for promoters, who expected 20,000, saw Lewis batter his way to a title in a smashing 15 round bout.

It was Olin's first formal defense since he won the championship almost a year ago from Maxie Rosenbloom and his second loss to Lewis, who won a nontitle bout from him last spring.

Olin Dazed in Third.

As early as the third round the challenger from the west had Olin dazed and shaky, and for nearly all of the rest of the fight the champion was a human punching bag, an iron man without the slightest chance of winning.

Olin took the first two rounds by a slight margin, but Lewis swirled out of his corner at the beginning of the third with a powerful two fisted attack that had Olin backing up.

Preliminary results were:

Joey Parks, St. Louis, beat Marty Sampson, New York [6].

Hollman Williams, Chicago, beat Andy Bundy, San Francisco [8].

UZCUDUN ARRIVES

THERE'S NO JOY AT N.U.; REASON: ILLINI PASSES

Waldorf Sees Illinois as Big Ten's Fastest.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Gloom is thicker in Evanston than the smoke of burning leaves, and not without reason. Northwestern's Wildcats, who live there, have lost three straight conference football battles. And just around the corner, ready to spring into Dyche stadium tomorrow, is the Illinois eleven, coached by the foxy old Bob Zuppke, who, when the plays work, delights in talking of such offensive master strokes as the California special, the flying trapeze, and the razzle dazzle.

There was a time when the grinning, wise cracking Zupp also had a flea flicker in his répertoire, but he seems to have tired of that, although the original flea flicker strain appears to run through the up to date variations with which he is endeavoring to baffle current opponents.

Mr. Waldorf Is Unhappy.

Directing the chorus of Purple gloom dispensers is none other than the coach himself, Lynn Waldorf. He sees the Illini as the speediest aggregation in the Big Ten. He is certain they are deadly passers and excellent on defense. He believes his scouts reported truthfully when they said that Illinois was better against Iowa than the score indicated. And he's inclined to suspect his boys aren't as reliable as they should be in the art of tackling.

Zuppke probably could chant a far better funereal tune if anybody'd give him a chance. The Illini strategist would start off by pointing out that any team which could rush the ball 174 yards and pass for 138 yards against the powerful Gophers as the Wildcats did a week ago, must be tough. After getting that far Zupp probably would break down and weep over what he fears might happen to his youths tomorrow.

Swisher May Not Start.

Some of Waldorf's gloom can be attributed to the fact that Bob Swisher, his first string left half back, is not in the best of physical shape and may not be able to start. It is possible, of course, that this is merely Mr. Waldorf's way of easing Mr. Zuppke's worries.

Swisher raised Ned with the Gophers last Saturday but suffered an injured foot in the first period and had to retire. He's been ailing since then but, no doubt, one of those remarkable football recoveries will occur before tomorrow afternoon.

If Swisher should be in bad shape it really would mean something. He's the fastest of the Purple backs and just about their choicest item in defensive work against passes such as the light stepping Illini are going to turn loose. In the event Swisher can't start, the job will go to Don Heap, who contributed to the annoyance of the Gophers last week-end.

Lindberg Recovers Fully.

Another uncomfortable thought for the Purple is that the Illini will have Les Lindberg, their triple threat half back, at his best physically. Against Iowa he was carrying marks of an early season injury but has fully recovered. He's the No. 1 man in Illinois' passing game and also skilled in the running game. The Wildcats can testify to the latter. It was his runs last fall that led the Zuppke charges to their 14 to 3 triumph over the Purple. Illinois also won in 1933 by 3 to 0 on Dave Cook's field goal.

Tomorrow's battle will mark the fiftieth anniversary of football at Northwestern and also the annual homecoming. The customary campus bonfire and pep meetings will take place tonight.

ILLINI POLISH PASSES.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Illini brushed up their passing attack this afternoon preparatory to leaving for the Northwestern game at Evanston Saturday.

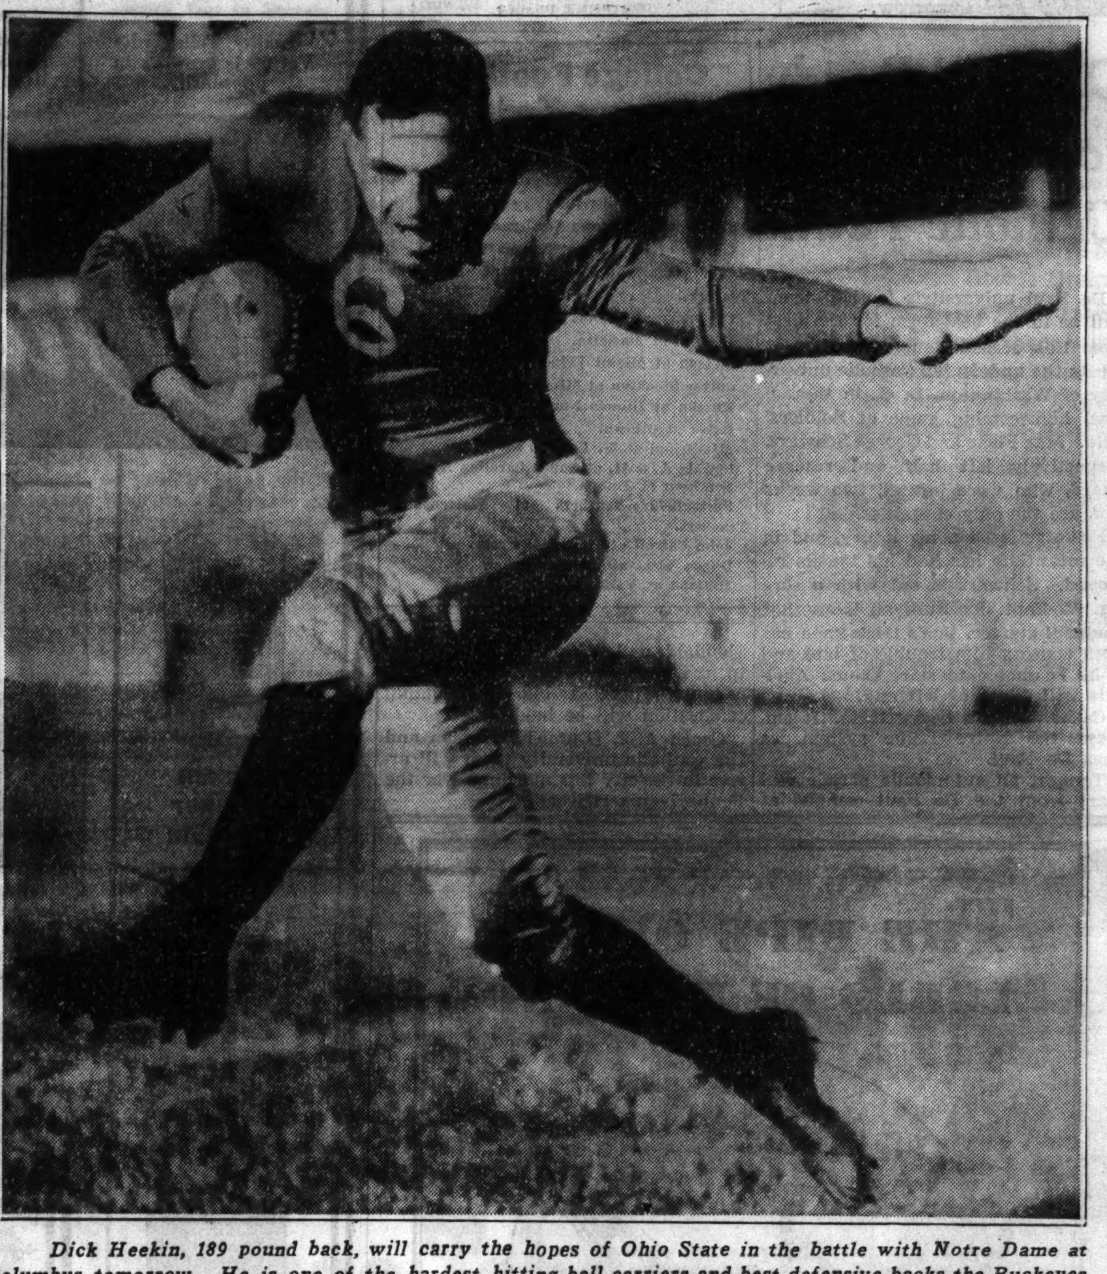
TROUBLE FOR NOTRE DAME



Dick Heekin, 189 pound back, will carry the hopes of Ohio State in the battle with Notre Dame at Columbus tomorrow. He is one of the hardest hitting ball carriers and best defensive backs the Buckeyes have had for years.

FANS TO SEE WHY CARDINALS HOLD PRO LEAGUE LEAD

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

What manner of a football team are these Cardinals who return home to Wrigley field Sunday almost total strangers to their own partisans after seven weeks of wandering about the National Professional league?

Who are these men who could take the lead on the road, fall to third place, then fight their way back to the top against such opposition as Green Bay, Detroit, and New York?

These questions have stirred more interest in the Cardinals and their home debut against Detroit Sunday than Chicago has shown in the team since the days of Ernie Nevers. Interest, which in many cases amounts to curiosity, has reached such a height that another huge crowd is expected to see Sunday's game in which the Cardinals will attempt to gain a decision over Detroit, which held them to a 10 to 10 tie earlier in the season.

Cards Rely on Defense.

The Cardinals, as their record shows, are a good football team. Their chief stock in trade is defense. They have allowed only 826 yards to be gained against them in five games, three of which they won while losing one and tying one.

Attempting to master the offense of a new coach, Milan Creighton, for three years a regular Cardinal end, who now is the only playing coach in professional football, the team has experienced difficulty in reaching the offensive peak generally associated with championship teams.

Now, who are some of these men, all but three of whom are virtually newcomers to professional football, who have fired the imagination of local fans and produced a formidable threat to the established supremacy of the Bears and New York Giants? By position there are:

Minnesota and Purdue Battle for Big Ten Lead Tomorrow

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 31.—Minnesota and Purdue, unbeaten in 1935 conference competition, meet here Saturday in a contest which will send one of them into the defeated division, practically out of the running for the Big Ten title. It also is the rubber game of seven previous meetings, in which honors are even with three victories each and one tie.

With the Gophers seeking to maintain prestige of their 1934 national championship aggregation, the Boilermakers will be striving to end a sequence of twenty Minnesota games without a defeat. Such is the magnet expected to attract a Dad's day gathering of 45,000 spectators if the current brand of weather, which would be called unusual in Florida or California, ends its cold rainy grip by Saturday.

Poor Old Dad Gets His Day.

Dads present will be of the Gopher species. There are thousands of them in the ranks of privates. The officers, fathers of sons of the varsity eleven, will be introduced to the crowd between halves. Of course, the dads won't score any touchdowns, except by proxy, and therefore will not influence the result, but they add to the pageantry, and, anyway, it is a nice gesture toward the old guys who wonder why it costs so much to educate a son or a daughter. It helps make them think they are worth while.

But while these dads are watching their scions with hope and confidence, there will be another set of sons just as intent on wrecking the Dad's day celebration and with almost even chance of doing it. Popular opinion gives a slight edge to the Gophers. Perhaps that estimate is warranted, but this writer, having seen both elevens in action previously, rates the breaks of the game likely to veer the decision either way.

Consensus is that Minnesota has a stronger line, which remains to be proved. And that Purdue has a more versatile back field, which also remains to be proved.

Nothing convincing may be adduced from comparative scores. Minnesota has beaten North Dakota State, 26 to 6; Nebraska, 12 to 7; Tulane, 20 to 0, and Northwestern, 21 to 13. Purdue has taken Northwestern, 7 to 0; Fordham, 20 to 0; Chicago, 19 to 0, and lost to Carnegie Tech last Saturday, 7 to 0, when the Boilermakers, as good union men, quit at noon and took an afternoon off, a dereliction they are not likely to repeat.

That both elevens have met Northwestern affords no more aid in solving the puzzle. The Boilermakers won through a touchdown run by Tom McGannon in carrying back a punt in a contest otherwise nearly equal, and which might have become so in fact if Northwestern had not fumbled when it had accomplished a first down at the enemy 3 yard line.

Mr. Thompson Changes Things.

Northwestern gave the Gophers the shivers with an early 13 to 7 margin, which was erased when Tuffy Thompson, an unsung sophomore, broke loose with two touchdowns in the second half. Both the Gophers and the Boilermakers in the ultimate had a one touchdown advantage over the Purple.

Both Thompson and McGannon will be in there trying to repeat in this important affair Saturday. They will be aided and abetted by teammates in their season's best form physically.

Here in Minneapolis, one finds diversity of opinion. Coach Bernie Bierman, who belongs to the Gil Dobie school of pre-game pessimism, sees only defeat for the Northmen. Athletic Director Frank McCormick of the cheery smile, always an optimist at heart, foresees a stern struggle in which anything may happen, but leans toward a home team victory, which is a rather refreshing admission from one in authority.

Gophers Have Proper Spirit.

Players are not allowed to talk to reporters before big games. Their

Counterfeit Tickets

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Federal and state agents and city police massed their forces tonight for a war on scalpers of Ohio State-Notre Dame football tickets after receiving a report that 2,000 counterfeit tickets had been brought here from Philadelphia.

Reports of the bogus tickets brought a drop in the asking prices of scalpers. Earlier in the week it was reported they asked as high as $40 for a single ticket, but had cut prices to $8 or $10.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 31.—This town, to employ plain American slang, is daffy, and all because Notre Dame's undefeated eleven meets Ohio State's undefeated eleven Saturday afternoon in the concrete horseshoe which Chic Harley helped build and the university now wishes had been erected on a larger scale.

World series days in Detroit, Fifth avenue parades in New York, and election night in Cleveland are mere ripples of enthusiasm in comparison to the hub-bub and general disturbance of the citizenry in this state capital. Today Columbus realizes, and is self-consciously proud, that it is the center of the gridiron world. If Ohio State defeats Notre Dame the coronation of the Buckeyes as national champions will take place at the corner of High and Broad streets Saturday night with a fanfare and tumult which will make the current Italo-Ethiopian disturbance seem as if a group of small boys were shooting firecrackers in a deserted prairie lot.

Irish on Way.

Even the fact that 47 Notre Dame huskies left South Bend tonight has not served to curb the Columbus enthusiasm. This large squad doubtless will match the man power of Ohio State.

Ohio State today is quoted a 7 to 5 favorite to whip Notre Dame. And Ohio State money finds few takers, since those who may desire to support the Irish cause financially believe they can obtain better wagering odds later. Football is the topic of conversation in bars, hotels, on the street, and wherever people congregate. Francis Schmidt, Ohio State coach, and the people's choice, is lauded. His players are the best in all-time football history.

Williams 2d in Popularity.

Newspapers blaze headlines: "Scourgemen Cognizant of Opportunity," an adaptation of the alliteration of scarlet scourge which has caught public fancy much as Joe Louis as become the brown bomber of pugilism.

Second only to Schmidt in popularity is Joe Williams, Ohio sophomore. Jumping Joe, who quite likely will not start Saturday's game, is said to be the man of destiny. Williams has shown an uncanny ability to thread a path through enemy tacklers. He also has proved ability to kick. Can he pass? The downtown coaches, and a myriad of suburban assistants, answer, "yes." Williams, if you listen to the taxi-drivers, can do anything, which includes ability to break up Saturday's contest and turn the battle of the Marne into a Sunday school outing.

Only 77,000 at Game.

How many will actually see this game? All tickets have been sold, but the paid admission will be only 77,000. Attendance, including all complimentaries — bandsmen, ushers, press, and so on—will bring the maximum to approximately 80,000. This still may be a bit high, for the figures on the Buckeye stadium give the following: Lower deck, 41,000; upper deck, 21,000; and box seats, 3,344. The temporary bleachers, which have been increased to the limit, must be added.

How many will hear the game? Ohio State had sold the broadcast privileges to an oil company, but today it was arranged to permit the NBC and CBS chains to set up their equipment along with the Mutual system, of which W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station, is a member. The Ohio State university and the South Bend Tribune stations also have been assigned booths.

How Many Ohio Plays?

Entering the office of Coach Schmidt, we asked: "How many plays does Ohio State have, Coach? We've heard that your team had been given 300 and that the number was increasing with each practice?"

"We don't have 300 plays," Schmidt answered. "Our system of signals is very simple. With only a slight change here and there in blocking assignments, the same plays may be run from varied formations. If you count these plays separately, the number is large. Actually, the point

MICHIGAN'S LINE PLAYERS GIVEN HARD WORKOUT

Pennsylvania's Smashes Worry Coaches.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Michigan linemen were given individual attention today by Line Coach Franklin Cappon and his assistants — with Director Fielding Yost doing more than just looking on—as the squad ran through its final hard workout for Saturday's game with Pennsylvania.

The type of work usually stressed early in the season, taking out opposing linemen and breaking through, was given the Wolverine forwards. Mel Kramer, right tackle, and Mike Savage, right end, were kept at it by Cappon and Yost long after the others finished.

Valpey Sure Starter.

Head Coach Harry Kipke said today that Art Valpey, the sophomore end, who has been considered alternate right flanker, will start at end Saturday in place of Savage. He announced also that he feared Tackle John Viergever would not be able to start, but Viergever laughed at this pessimism.

Just before the close of today's practice Sol Sobsey, offensive right guard and defensive center, was injured. Sobsey suffered a shoulder hurt, the extent of which will be determined tomorrow. Valpey also was hurt, but not seriously.

Penn will arrive here early tomorrow.

PENN ON WAY.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Coach Harvey Harman and a squad of 31 Pennsylvania players, headed west tonight for an intersectional game with Michigan. The team had done little scrimmaging during the week, the coach seeking to conserve energy that seemed to be lacking in the late stages of games this year.

DELANCEY, CARD CATCHER, SHOWS NO IMPROVEMENT

Danville, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—No change was reported tonight in the condition of Bill Delancey, catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, who is ill of pneumonia.

Delancey's nurse said his condition has remained the same for the last 48 hours. Several pints of pleural fluid, she said, had been drained from his right lung.

Dr. Samuel C. Crispin, the attending physician, said Delancey has taken considerable nourishment despite his protracted illness.

STRIKING BAND RECONSIDERS; TO PLAY AT GAME

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The striking members of the Washington university band have decided to get out their instruments again and will play at the Washington-Creighton game Saturday. The striking musicians, who demanded more equipment and trips with the football team, reconsidered today when university officials said they would appoint a committee to improve band conditions at the school.

Ducks Drop Exhausted in Canadian Storm

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Caught in a swirling snow and sleet storm, ducks were negotiating their southern flight with difficulty today, reports from Winnipeg and northern Minnesota points indicated. In the Canadian city many waterfowl, their wings matted with ice, dropped exhausted and helpless in city streets.

De Paul Ready for Undefeated Catholic Team

De Paul university's football team will be in the best form for the first time this season tomorrow when it meets the undefeated Catholic university of Washington, D. C., in the annual homecoming game at Soldiers' field. Max Fiske and George Schwarz, respectively left half and reserve guard, who were injured two weeks ago, are the only casualties.

Fiske suffered a leg injury, and in the meantime has had his tonsils removed. Schwarz is out with a sore leg. Co-Capt. Joe Sullivan is another doubtful starter. Joe's trick knee has been causing him trouble of late and if he is unable to start Chuck Apolskis will fill in at left end.

Catholic has a heavy team. It employs the Notre Dame system, as does De Paul.

Tonight an automobile parade will start from the De Paul campus at Sheffield and Webster and proceed to the loop and then back to the campus where a big homecoming celebration will be held.

Coach A. J. [Dutch] Bergman and the Catholic university team will arrive in the city this morning over the Pennsylvania railroad.

ATHLETES FAVOR PARTICIPATION IN OLYMPICS

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Not a single athlete has written him approving of a boycott of the Berlin Olympic games because of the anti-Jewish policy of the Nazi government, Brig. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, American member of the Olympic committee and former ambassador to Turkey, said today.

Gen. Sherrill pointed out that the international Olympic committee does not concern itself with internal conditions in any country, but only with the choice of the members for its Olympic team. With that choice the committee insists that race, religion, and color shall not intervene.

Helps Jewish Race.

"It was for that reason," he said, "that when the international committee held its annual meeting in June, 1933, at Vienna, I personally, fearing unfair treatment of Jewish athletes in the selection for the German 1936 Olympic team, made it my business to push the point so far that our committee received from the German ministry of the interior a letter of three short paragraphs, the third of which reads, 'As a principle, German Jews shall not be excluded from German teams at the games of the eleventh Olympiad.'"

The general said he himself drafted that particular paragraph and in doing so felt that he was doing his best for the Jews. His stand, he said, earned him the praise of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Abraham Cohen, executive director of the American Jewish congress; Morris D. Waldman, secretary of the American Jewish committee, and other prominent Jews.

"When you add," said Gen. Sherrill, "that Rabbi Goldstein had me deliver the thanksgiving address in his great New York synagogue, you can imagine my astonishment that now, after all my years of urging a square deal for Jews, they call me anti-Jewish."

Gen. Sherrill said he did nothing this last summer when he found that no Jew was to be selected for the German Olympic team but to make every effort to have the terms of the June, 1933, letter carried out.

"As a result," he said, "the German Olympic committee has not only complied with that letter but also with the international regulations regarding team selection."

Gets Many Letters.

Gen. Sherrill said after he had made possible the invitation to Helene Mayer and Greta Bergmann to participate in the games as German competitors, he was amazed at the number of abusive and threatening letters he has received.

IOWA REHERSES EVERY PLAY ON LIST FOR INDIANA

Hawkeyes Reach Best Condition of Year.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—University of Iowa second stringers went through a long scrimmage today while the varsity squad worked only on signals and charging drill against dummy opposition.

Coach Ossie Solem had the team reherse every play on its list, including several new formations learned this week in preparation for Indiana Saturday.

Satisfied with Line.

Although three hours of rain which continued through the practice slowed the play and caused frequent fumbles, the charging of the Hawkeye line appeared satisfactory to the coach. Practice this week has indicated that the Hawkeyes will be in the best condition of the season so far.

Solem's first string lineup is unchanged since the Illinois game last week. It included Bob Lannon and Homer Harris, ends; Rudy Leytze and Corney Walker, tackles; Bill Secl and Floyd McDowell, guards; Ted Osmaloski, center; Bush Lamb, quarter back; Capt. Dick Crayne and Paul Akin, half backs, and Ozzie Simmons, full back.

The entire squad viewed pictures of the Illinois game, which was followed by a final blackboard talk.

The Hoosier squad was scheduled to arrive at Cedar Rapids, 25 miles from here, tomorrow afternoon and hold its final workout on Coe college field. The players will come here in buses late Saturday morning.

HOOSIERS LOSE CECIL.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Thirty-two Indiana university football players will leave tomorrow morning for Iowa to meet the Hawkeyes Saturday afternoon.

The squad went through a light drill this afternoon, with Coach Bo McMillin taking no chances on more of his players receiving injuries. Leonard Cecil of Somerset, Ky., sophomore center, suffered a ruptured kidney in scrimmage late yesterday, it was revealed today by the team physician, Dr. J. E. P. Holland. Cecil, kicked accidently in the back, did not at first realize the seriousness of his condition, but following a hemorrhage last night he was taken to Bloomington hospital.

Condition Still Serious.

Improvement was reported today in his condition although it was described as serious. Physicians hope an operation will not be necessary. Cecil had been used as a replacement for Capt. Reed Kelso.

The Hoosiers checked over the defense for Iowa, preparing for the brilliant runs of Oze Simmons and the passing attack engineered by Capt. Dick Crayne of the Hawks. McMillin expressed satisfaction with the kicking of Vern Huffman, whose boots in the Ohio State game averaged 39 yards, one yard better than the Buckeye punters. Huffman, Fowler, and Norton rehersed kicking.

Players who will make the trip are:

TEN SPECIALS TO TAKE CHICAGO FANS TO OHIO

Ten special trains, loaded with about 1,500 Chicago football fans, will leave for Columbus, O., over the Pennsylvania railroad tonight for the Notre Dame-Ohio State game tomorrow. E. W. Gould and Senator George Maypole expect to have a delegation of 300 in their party, which will ride in two sections of the Ohioan. Other trains will be conducted by South Shore Country club, with a party of 26; Dr. W. J. McGuire, party of 15; John H. Boyle, party of 15, and R. C. O'Hara.

Leo, St. Rita Will Wind Up Practice Today

Leo and St. Rita prep elevens will wind up practice today for their Loretto benefit game at Soldiers' field Sunday.

Head Coaches Whitey Cronin and John Connelly of Leo and St. Rita, respectively, expressed themselves as satisfied with the conditions of their squads, although some gloom is felt in the Ritans' camp with the report that Pete Thomas, star full back, may be unable to play.

An injury sustained more than a week ago is slow to respond and may keep him on the sidelines. Rob Otten has been groomed all week long to start in his place. While Otten is good, Thomas, who has scored 19 of St. Rita's 34 points this season, would be missed.

The two teams are expected to line up Sunday before a crowd of 20,000. Leo, last year's champion of the Catholic league, wants to win in order to remain undefeated and keep pace with De Paul in the fight for this year's title; St. Rita, likewise, because a victory over their big rivals will make the season a success, no matter how else they fare in the race and also to even up the series with Leo at three and three.

Crane Tech's soccer team maintained its lead in the City league by defeating Tilden Tech, 4 to 2, at Douglas park yesterday. Ted Dobeck led the Crane squad, scoring two goals. It was Crane's third victory.

Only one football game will be played in the Chicago district today. Warren will meet Libertyville on the latter's field in a Northwest Prep conference contest. It will start at 2:30 o'clock.

MOON MULLINS—WILLIE'S IDEA'S ALL WET

SERIES CHECKS SENT TO 3D AND 4TH PLACE CLUBS

Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis yesterday finished his big bookkeeping job on the 1935 world series and mailed checks to the third and fourth place winners of the respective major leagues.

For winning third places, the New York Giants and Cleveland Indians each split pools of $19,868.01. The Giants split their pool into 27 full shares, worth $685.11 each, and into two half and three part shares. The Indians divided their cut into 25 full shares, worth $735.86 and into four halves.

Each Boston Red Sox full share was $380.16, the pool being split into 25 full shares, one-half and three fractions. Each of 24 full Pittsburgh shares was $378.23. The Pirates also voted four half shares.

Minnesota and Purdue Battle for First Place

mental condition, however, is described as satisfactory, which is interpreted to mean they are fearful, but determined to do or die for dear old alma mater. Townspeople and undergraduates, accustomed to victory, anticipate another pleasant afternoon.

Analysis of the Boilermaker brain cells cannot be made, as Purdue does not arrive until tomorrow, after which they will spend the day hearing chalk talks and hold a practice either in the field house, where the Gophers ran signals today, or on the stadium turf, now covered by a tarpaulin, if the moisture takes a vacation.

They'll Shoot the Works.

From the spectator's viewpoint, the contest well may be a thriller. Neither coach can afford to hold back anything. Ohio State's prospect of going through its remaining games against Chicago, Illinois, and Michigan undefeated, which present form indicates it should accomplish, means that any other eleven to have a share in the Big Ten title claim, must win all its games without a tie. Obviously, both Minnesota and Purdue cannot achieve that distinction. A tied issue would vitiate such claim.

Even after Saturday's contest, Minnesota and Purdue still will not be in the clear. Minnesota has Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Purdue has Wisconsin, Iowa, and Indiana. Iowa, since its impressive victory over Illinois, is called a distinct menace to any foe it meets.

Purdue Recalls Iowa.

Boilermakers, in particular, have vivid recollections of an inspired Hawkeye eleven downing their thereto unbeaten eleven of 1933, which gave the conference championship to Michigan.

So Ski-U-Mah and Bully for old Purdue, admixing metaphors a bit, will lock horns in a hand to hand struggle like knights of old for ladies fair.

PURDUE LEAVES

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Purdue's hopes of springing an upset at the expense of Minnesota and retaining a grip on a share of the Big Ten leadership tonight were placed on the shoulders of a squad of thirty-five players who left here for Minneapolis following a final brisk conditioning drill.

Most of the student body turned out for a rousing sendoff, assembling on the campus and marching across the levee in a huge parade headed by the Purdue military band.

Although Coach Kizer did not name a definite starting lineup, it was expected that the Boilermakers will open against the Gophers with Loebs and Guirl at ends; Burmeister and Fehring, tackles; Wayne Sandefur and Dennis, guards; Bell, center; Gift, quarter back; Cecil Isbell, left half back; Drake, full back, and either McGannon or Wright, right half back. Indecision regarding the right half back post is caused by the failure of McGannon's leg injury to round into shape as soon as was expected.

Ends—Guirl, Abbott, Reed, Loebs, Powell, Sines.
Tackles—Fehring, Burmeister, Grant, Schreyer, Scrivnor, Woltman.
Guards—W. Sandefur, Dennis, Voss, Graves, Bush, Dahlbeck.
Centers—Bell, Cody Isbell, Wahl.
Quarter backs—Stalcup, Gift, Purdy.
Half backs—Cecil Isbell, McGannon, Wright, Dailey, East, Medley, Selby.
Full backs—Drake, Decker, R. Sandefur, Klika.

POTPOURRI.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 31.—Football in Hawaii is a recognized and popular sport. One hundred and eighty teams are in organized leagues.

Strangely enough, players on most of these teams play barefoot, also kick without shoes. In a contest last year for barefoot kickers the winning punt was seventy-one yards. Interscholastic, college, and senior league elevens wear the conventional shoes, but the lesser squads avoid that expense.

University of Hawaii's Roaring Rainbows won winter post-season contests last year from University of California, 14-0, and from University of Denver, 36-14, greatly to the surprise of the visitors. With the victorious squad practically intact, Hawaii will meet Southern California at Honolulu on New Year's day. It plays Denver and U. C. L. A. in this country in November.

Along with Michigan's markedly better gridiron showing this fall people up at Ann Arbor are looking for even more in 1936. Freshmen, one of the greatest prep squads since 1930, are said to be pushing the varsity around in practice. Among the lot are numbered thirty boys called varsity caliber.

Helper C. A. K. suggests that Oze Simmons of Iowa be called Ooze Simmons because he just oozed right out of the arms of Illinois tacklers for touchdowns.

Santa Anita race track near Los Angeles will try another innovation at its meeting opening on Christmas day. A special steward will be placed at the start of races to observe actions of jockies and the sendoffs. It long has been the contention of keen turfmen that as many races are decided at the start as at the finish.

Santa Anita last year introduced camera finishes, which furnished quickly-developed negatives to the placing judges to confirm selection of winners in nose finishes.

A Bunkless World.

O, it's right to expose politicians,
For most of their stuff is the bunk;
And it's nice to have some one to tell us
What's honest-to-Pete and what's punk.
And maybe old Darwin was kidding
Us all or the innocent monk.
And maybe the cowardly rabbit
Has in him a parcel of spunk.
And perhaps the great dad of our country
Never butchered a cherry tree's trunk;
And maybe the laws of our fathers
Weren't merely a bookful of junk.
That's why it is fine to have some one
To tell us what's right and what's sunk.
Ah, but who will debunk the debunker
When there's no more bunk to debunk?

Ohio's Backers Confident Irish Will Be Beaten of attack remains the same regardless of the back field formation.

"This is true of our forward pass plays. The quarter back can, by designation of letters with the numerals, indicate whether the receivers go deep, short, into the flat, or in whatever direction he wishes. These are not individual plays. The quarter back merely tries to find the space unoccupied by the defenders."

Work Out in Secret.

Hard work ended here yesterday. This afternoon the Buckeyes spent nearly the entire practice session in formation of defensive tactics to stop the Notre Dame attack. Practice was secret.

Notwithstanding the cumulative enthusiasm of Columbus and the frequent predictions that Notre Dame may hold the score to a low figure, as low as 28 to 7, there are several weaknesses in the Ohio State team. These represent Notre Dame's opportunities and they may be listed as follows:

1. Ohio State's tackles are the weakest point of defense. Slow motion movies of the Ohio State-Northwestern game show plainly that Gilbert Harre and Charles Hamrick are not exceptional. They are particularly weak on reverse plays which strike inside the defensive tackle posts.

2. The right half back is definitly weak in halting forward pass plays. Northwestern found this opening. Moreover, Capt. Gomer Jones, at center, a slow moving, heavy, front line defender, is not active enough to lend help to the secondary against an air attack.

Inferior in Punting.

3. Ohio State's punting so far hasn't been equal to the kicking of Bill Shakespeare. Kicking may play a part in defense and it also may force one team deep into its own territory.

4. Ohio State is reputed to be a slick lateral passing eleven. But lateral passes require trailers, rather than blockers. The desire to lateral and ensuing possibility of fumbles may lead to Ohio State's downfall. Ohio has committed at least five fumbles in every game.

5. The enthusiasm of Columbus and the alumni, their confident belief that Notre Dame can be beaten easily, may be a boomerang. The Bucks cannot help but be impressed with their own importance. Playing before a partisan throng in their first real test of the season may be bad medicine for the State team.

Who will win? It is either team's game. Ohio State seems stronger offensively. Notre Dame's ends haven't been exceptional on defense. The Bucks may race to several touchdowns. But if the battle goes into the second half with the result hanging in the balance Notre Dame may come through.

47 IRISH ON WAY

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—A squad of 47 Notre Dame football players, accompanied by Coach Elmer Layden and Assistant Coach Joe Boland, left tonight for Columbus and the Ohio State game on Saturday.

Student spirit was at a high pitch today. The campus was covered with signs intended to show that the student body is solidly behind the team and confident of victory. Since there are no classes tomorrow because of a holy day, many students left for Columbus this evening and there was no official sendoff for the team.

Players who will make the trip are:

ENDS—Millner, Peters, O'Neill, Zwers, Skoglund, Sweeney, Marr, Thernes, Kelly.
TACKLES—Pfefferle, Kopczak, Stilley, Becker, Steinkemper, Levicki, Belden, Chanowicz, Cronin.
GUARDS—Lautar, Martin, Church, Zenner, Ruetz, Kuharich, Race.
CENTERS—Solari, Pojman, Mundee, Winsouek.

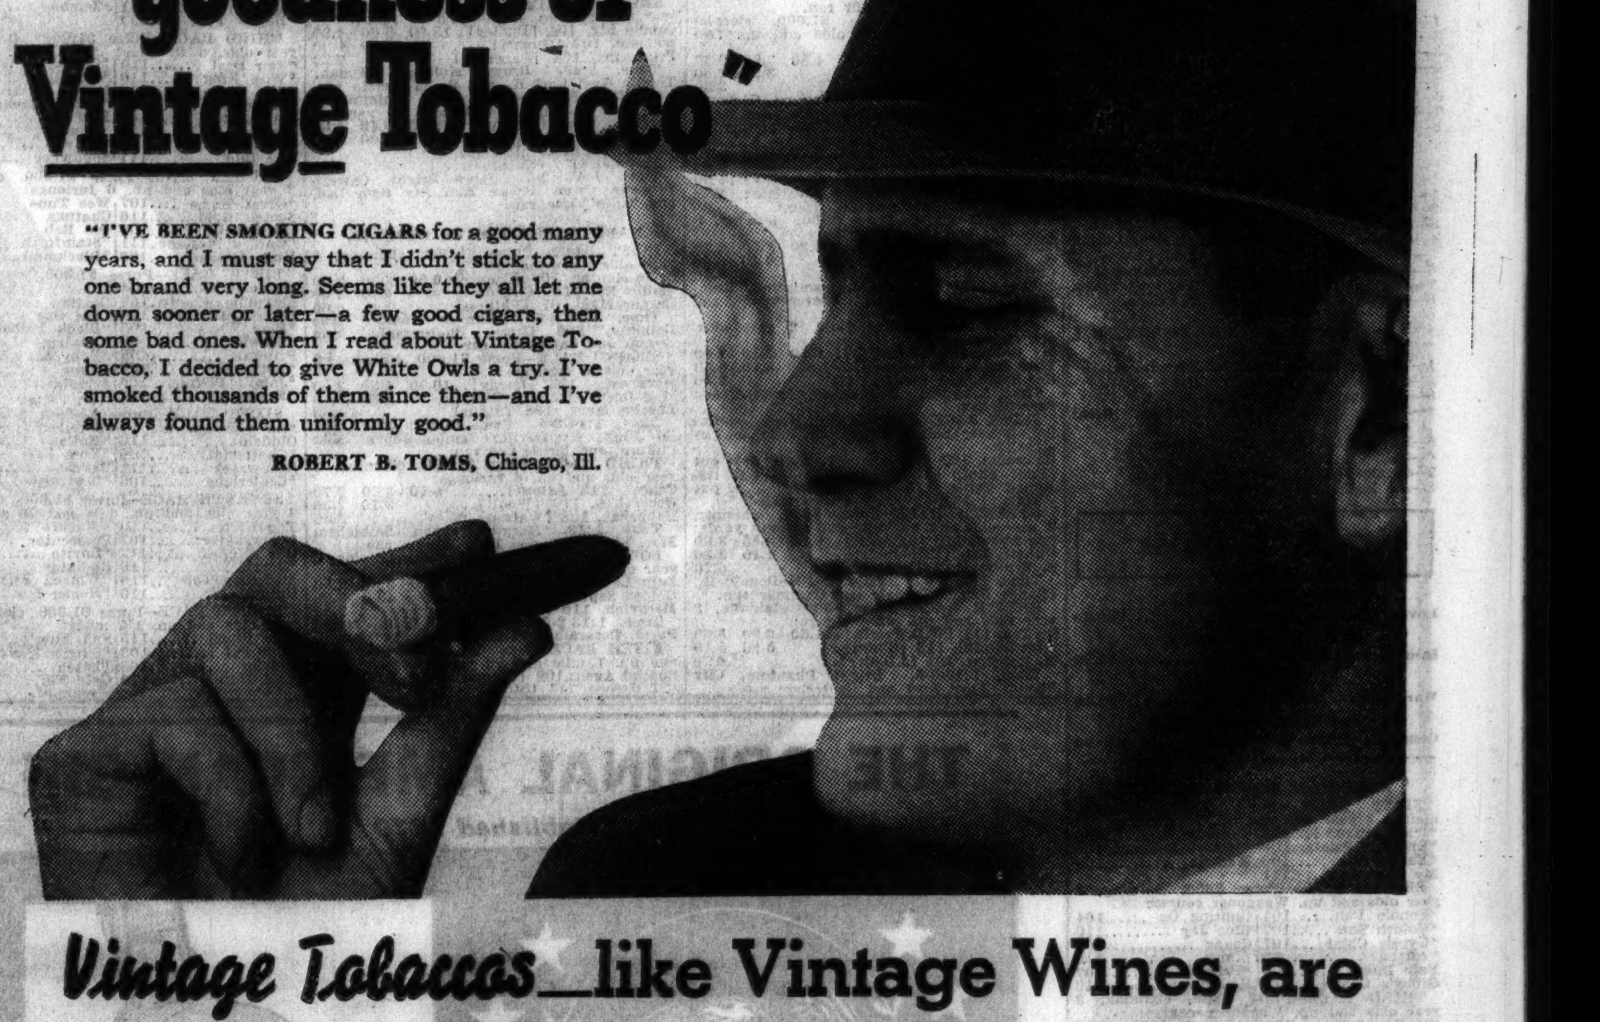
"I quit fooling around when I discovered the uniform goodness of Vintage Tobacco"



"I'VE BEEN SMOKING CIGARS for a good many years, and I must say that I didn't stick to any one brand very long. Seems like they all let me down sooner or later—a few good cigars, then some bad ones. When I read about Vintage Tobacco, I decided to give White Owls a try. I've smoked thousands of them since then—and I've always found them uniformly good."

ROBERT B. TOMS, Chicago, Ill.

Vintage Tobaccos—like Vintage Wines, are richer—mellower

LIKE A FINE VINTAGE WINE—Vintage tobacco is milder, mellower, because it is grown under especially favorable weather conditions.

White Owl maintains a vast crop inspection system, the only known organization of its kind in the world . . . keeps track of the growing tobacco . . . reports soil and climatic conditions. And at harvest time we know when and where Vintage tobacco is maturing. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

All this care is exercised for two purposes: Uniform flavor and mildness. Yet this outstanding cigar costs but 5¢.

SLUGGERS HEAD WHITE CITY RING SHOW TONIGHT

Stanley, Kirchner Paired for Eight Rounds.

Gene Stanley, the Detroit middleweight slugger, will head the boxing show tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. His opponent will be Ernie Kirchner, Chicago's newest resident, who employs a style similar to that of Stanley. Few expect the match to last the scheduled distance of eight rounds.

Six other bouts are carded, each at six rounds. They are:

Al Lewis, Seattle vs. Phil McQuillen, Chicago, 142.
Eduardo Duarry, Havana vs. Ernie Kulasik, Chicago, 147.
Pat Murphy, Terre Haute, Ind. vs. Eddie Stiegal, Chicago, 150.
George Dixon II., Chicago vs. Jack Knight, Detroit, 133.
Harry Smith, Chicago vs. Bob Cook, Chicago, heavyweights.

Joe Louis is expected to be a ringside guest of the promoter, Kid Howard Carr.

Another show, involving amateur boxers, will be held tonight at Madison Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street. George Nelson and Jackie Reed, leading Chicago welterweights, will meet in one of the seven contests. They will box five rounds. Other bouts will bring together Pete Andrews and Lou Varra, and Al Chandler and Charles Richardson.

Fanis Tzanatopoulos, 26 year old Lynn, Mass., fighter, arrived yesterday to begin preparations for an eight round supporting bout to the Davey Day-Alberto Arizmendi ten round windup at Chicago Stadium next Friday. Bill Treest, who has been performing creditably as a professional since he won the 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves middleweight title, will oppose Tzanatopoulos. The boys are light heavyweights. Pat Murphy and Bob La Monte, welterweights, may appear in an additional bout on the card.

James C. Mullen of the Chicago Stadium announced yesterday that Joe Louis' heavyweight foe in a ten round scrap at the west side building Jan. 10 will not be determined until next Thursday. On that day Charley Retzlaff, Leonard, N. D., being given first consideration for the assignment, will accept or decline the issue, Mullen said.

Other prospects for the shot at Louis include Patsy Perroni, Cleveland, and Abe Feldman, New York. Retzlaff's knockout of Art Lasky and his decisive defeat of Ford Smith have placed him first in line. Mullen also stated that the Louis bout will be promoted by the Chicago Indoor Stadium corporation and Mike Jacobs, eastern promoter, will not have anything to do with it. Jacobs, he said, was given a percentage for permission to have the former Chicago Golden Gloves title holder fight at the Stadium.

An amateur boxing show will be held tonight at the 24th ward club, 3242 West Roosevelt road. Hank Newman will meet Russ Ayers and Babe Cormier is matched with Charles Percissiti in two of the six contests scheduled.

Havana, Louis Near Terms for Gastanaga Go

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Oct. 31.—Negotiations which will bring Joe Louis, leading American heavyweight, to Havana between Dec. 15 and 25 to fight Cuba's foremost heavyweight, Isidoro Gastanaga, were virtually closed tonight.

Julio Blanco Herrera, millionaire owner of a brewery, said: "Louis' terms are reasonable and are acceptable. I have asked the national tourist commission to appropriate $1,000 to help defray expenses. As soon as the credit is granted negotiations will be closed—probably next Monday."

Herrera said the match would be over the fifteen round route and not an exhibition. It is to be held at the Oriental race track. Besides the grandstand seating 15,000, there will be 20,000 seats in a bowl to be constructed around the ring. Choice ringside seats, he said, will not cost over $5 and bleachers $1, including the privilege to witness a racing program to take place before the fight.

Gastanaga, a native of Spain, is 24 years old and weighs 198 pounds. He has whipped all Cuban heavyweights, including the champion, Goyo Rico. In recent matches here he won a fifteen round decision over Hans Birkie and from Joe Sekyra by a technical knockout in the seventh round. Peter Donovan will be invited to referee the fight, Herrera said.

NEW YORK RACE TAX REACHES NEW RECORD

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Already exceeding last year's figures, with the returns from Belmont Park and Empire City's successful fall meetings yet to be reported, $288,391.74 has been paid in taxes into the New York state treasury this year by the four metropolitan tracks and Saratoga.

The tax payment to date exceeds last year's amount by $3,515.80. It will likely pass the $300,000 mark when the final returns are made. The autumn report of the Metropolitan Jocky club's meeting at Jamaica, the last two weeks of September, boosted the amount to $19,000.

With Jamaica joining the other tracks in reporting the most successful season in many years, the gross receipts and total attendance for the year also promises to exceed 1934's mark—the best since the sport returned to the Empire state nearly 25 years ago.

Already the figures exceed those for the equivalent meetings of 1934. The attendance total is 956,155 and the receipts $2,488,903.98, as compared to 842,926 and $2,435,603.18. The total purse distribution also has been greater—$1,107,280 this year and $1,026,350 in 1934.

Johnny Dawson's 68 Leads Field in Mexican Tourney

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Johnny Dawson of Chicago clipped four strokes from par over the Chapultepec course today to lead 32 qualifiers for the amateur golf championship of Mexico. The medalist's 68 was one stroke better than the score turned in by Percy Clifford, British resident of Mexico, who lost the title a year ago to Gus Moreland after winning for four straight years. Moreland did not enter the tournament this year.

$25,000 PIMLICO FUTURITY WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

Expect Field of Ten Will Go to Post.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Maryland's richest race—one which will give race fans a line on next year's Derby and Preakness candidates—the $25,000 added Pimlico Futurity, will be run here Saturday with the winner likely to receive $50,000.

Entries for the mile and a sixteenth event for 2 year olds close tomorrow and indications are that a field of at least ten will go the post. If ten horses are entered, the race will have a net value of $49,850 to the winner.

127 Are Eligible for Race.

Attracting the majority of attention in the list of 127 eligibles today was Grand Slam, Bomar stable's chesnut colt by Chance Play out of Jeanne Bowdre. Grand Slam won the Arlington Futurity and the Kentucky Jocky Club stakes.

The list of eligibles includes two of the first three horses in the Belmont Futurity, Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood and Walter M. Jeffords' Jean Bart. Tintagel, Belmont winner, is not eligible. Hollyrood ran second to Tintagel in that stake, with Jean Bart third.

The retirement of Calumet farm's Sun Teddy, Coldstream stud's Coldstream, and C. V. Whitney's Red Rain robbed the futurity of three of its most attractive eligibles.

Saturday's running of the rich stakes will be the first since 1932, when the depression put an end to it for the time being. Adolf Pons' Swivel won it then to collect $62,430 in first place money.

Here Is Probable Field.

Included among horses regarded as likely starters are:

Belair stud's Valse, E. R. Bradley's Bootmaker and Beanie M., Brookmeade stable's Delphinium, Calumet farm's Cross Bow, Greentree stable's Galsac, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Her Reigh, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Ned Reigh, Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Valevictorian, Milky Way farm's Sangreal, A. G. Vanderbilt's Footstep or Re-Election, Wheatley stable's Snark, C. V. Whitney's Tatterdemalion, and William Zeigler Jr.'s Gold Mesh.

CARNERA WILL RETIRE IF NEUSEL WINS TONIGHT

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—They've patched up old Primo Carnera again and will toss him back into the boxing wars against Walter Neusel, rugged German heavyweight, at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Carnera says a defeat will mean his permanent retirement from the ring.

The fight is scheduled for ten rounds. Carnera was a 6 to 5 favorite tonight, but the bout has attracted little wagering interest. It will be the Man Mountain's first ring appearance since he was just about half killed by the devastating left hooks of Joe Louis in Louis' eastern début here last summer.

If Neusel whips Carnera, he has the half way promise that he will be Louis' opponent in the Garden in March.

PRESIDENTS OF FLORIDA SCHOOLS FLAY FOOTBALL

Assail Game and Systems in Big Institutions.

Lakeland, Fla., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The intercollegiate scramble for football glory was indicted by two Florida college presidents today, one of whom said he knew where and how to get a Rose bowl team "but our boys will not associate with some of them."

Dr. John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and head of the Southeastern conference, made the reference to recruiting a Rose bowl team in a speech at Orlando in which he defended his school's graduate coaching system.

In another attack on present day football, Dr. Ludd M. Spivey, president of the Southern college here, said the game was "an intolerable financial burden" upon small schools.

Florida Too Hot.

Dr. Tigert told an Orlando audience: "You can't get a Rose bowl team in Florida. I know. The climate is against us—it is too hot here, and our boys are not foreigners, they are Americans."

He discussed the three year alumni coaching régime at the university which has drawn the criticism of some graduates. The team this year won its opening game from Stetson, but lost to Tulane, Mississippi, and Maryland.

"I'll back the Gators to the limit," the educator added, "they are as fine a squad as we have had in the seven years I have been at the university. They stand high in scholarship and have good morals."

Varsity football was dropped at Southern at the end of last season. An intramural athletic program adopted in September will be retained permanently, Dr. Spivey said.

Academic Program Burdened

"Intramural sports have brought about a new spirit on our campus," Dr. Spivey said. "Every student is being given a chance to compete in sports. That was not the case when we had intercollegiate football. The seasons were a burden on our academic program. Each game disorganized the students for three days, and that is true of intercollegiate football in any college that has an enrollment of not more than 600."

Last season Southern's team, under a professional coach, won but one game. The preceding year a student directed eleven failed to turn in a victory.

In his Orlando address Dr. Tigert praised football as "the greatest developer of character you have," but added:

"When you come to the time and belief that football has nothing to do with the development of character and education, then I will recruit a Rose Bowl team for you outside Florida.

He Cites Pitts.

"It will have many foreigners on it—our boys will not associate with some of them. I know where and how to get such a team."

He said Tulane had "recruited its winning team from the middle west."

"We have a good back field this year, not so much of a line," Dr. Tigert continued. "It's a wonder to me that the boys do as well as they do when stacked up against some of the heavier and older men on other teams.

"Why, you can pick up the Pittsburgh lineup, for instance, and can't pronounce half the boys' names," Dr. Tigert declared.

L. S. U. STUDENTS TO FOLLOW TEAM AS HUEY PLANNED

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Louisiana State university students are going to Athens, Ga., for the Georgia-L. S. U. football game Nov. 16 as the late Senator Huey P. Long planned before his death.

Two special trains, it was announced tonight, will take Louisiana supporters, including the cadet band, to the battle and back. More than 1,000, including Gov. O. K. Allen, will make the trip, a smaller number than the crowd that followed Senator Long last year to the Vanderbilt-Louisiana State contest.

The finance question will confront many students. Last year Senator Long personally poured out the necessary cash. No one so far has announced intention of following the senator's example.

Hunters Flock to Bird Rodeo in S. Dakota

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Huron, S. D., Oct. 31.—It's pheasant time here in the northwest corn country. The gayly colored, ringnecked pheasant now occupies the attention and the time of thousands of sportsmen who like hunting, and hunters from all parts of the middlewest have been streaming into eastern South Dakota to take part in this state's annual bird rodeo. With this state producing millions of pheasants in every normal year, there is an abundance of birds for everybody.

Chicagoland has been well represented by several delegations of hunters who came out to marvel at the huge crop of pheasants in the cornfields and weed thickets. Included in one party was John T. Pirie Sr., who was here last week, the opening week of the October hunting season.

It's Hunters' Paradise.

Hunters who have swept through the fields near Huron had no trouble in getting their limits of birds, because the hardy ringnecks enjoyed a good nesting season this year. A party of hunters hiking through some cornfields can rout 100 or 125 birds without any difficulty.

Pheasant hunters going from Huron into the cornfields today are looking forward to the most ideal shooting conditions of the week, due to a storm which arrived last night bringing a light fall of snow and colder weather. This storm ended the period of dry, dusty weather which made scenting conditions for the hunting dogs very difficult. The snow also brought thousands of ducks out of the north ahead of the drop in temperature along the border, so last night both the duck and pheasant hunters were cheering the favorable weather.

Under present South Dakota laws, one can hunt pheasants only from 12 o'clock noon until dark on each day of the open season. This permits the hunter to have some fun duck shooting in the morning and then go pheasant hunting in the afternoon—a program that is being followed today by one Chicagoland hunting party headed by William Haerther and Stuart Prosser, Lake Forest, Ill.

Plenty Birds for All.

At a dinner last night arranged by Gene Denning, secretary of the Huron Chamber of Commerce, for local and visiting sportsmen, H. E. Frankhouser, chairman of the South Dakota fish and game commission, informed us that the kill of pheasants in South Dakota was around 2,000,000 birds last fall.

Jack Willis Knocks Out Cotey in First Round

Portland, Me., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Cowboy Jack Willis of San Antonio, Tex., knocked out Jack Cotey of South Bend, Ind., in the third round tonight after Cotey had led from the start and dropped Willis in the first round.

Loughlin Gives Hawks Rest in Drill for Opener

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—In the Chicago Blackhawks' practice today at the University o' Illinois rink Manager Clem Loughlin put his official taboo on scrimmaging. A few power plays were executed in slow motion, after which Loughlin had all of the forwards and defense players practice the penalty shot, which is propelled netwards from a point 38 feet in front of the goal line.

The practice ended with 20 minutes of shooting at the nets from all angles. Manager Loughlin stated that the purpose of all the sniping practice was mostly for the benefit of Goalie Mike Karakas, who may have to take Lorne Chabot's place in the nets in the National Hocky league opener at the Chicago Stadium Nov. 7.

Tickets for the opening game of the National Hocky league season involving the Chicago Blackhawks and the New York Americans at Chicago Stadium next Thursday will go on sale today.

16 Bouts End C. Y. O. North Section Trials

North section preliminaries in the fifth annual C. Y. O. boxing tournament ended last night at Loyola university gymnasium.

Winners last night will join boys who qualified for the quarter-final round automatically when their opponents failed to report for competition.

Fans Finally Get Chance to See Cardinals

Bears in the All-Star game in 1934. A former Washington place kicking ace, pass receiver, and by appraisal of Steve Owen, Giant coach, the toughest end on defense in the league.

Bob Neuman—An Illinois Wesleyan graduate, 199 pounds, playing his second year in pro ball. A native of Mendota, Ill., and a crackerjack pass defender.

Tackles.

Lou Gordon—A six year man in the league, five with the Cardinals, one with Brooklyn. A native of Chicago and a former Illinois star, who weighs 235 pounds.

Guards.

Pete Mehringer—Second year man who usually plays tackle, but who has been shifted to guard to replace Howard Tipton, who suffered a fractured arm in an automobile crash last week. Mehringer is a professional wrestler.

Bree Cuppoletti—As wide as he is tall and weighs 215 pounds. Has only one superior at backing up the line, his teammate, Full Back Mike Mikulak. A second year man from the University of Oregon.

Center.

Bert Pearson—Picked up by the Cardinals after his release by the Bears. Couldn't get Bernie Hughes out of the job when he first reported, but when Hughes went out with an injury, Pearson went in and the opposition hasn't been able to get him out.

Quarter Backs.

Paul Pardonner—Old Purdue star, a conservative, studious pilot with a threat in his superb drop kicking ability.

Half Backs.

Ike Peterson — Midget speedster from Gonzaga, who has developed into an accurate passer. Weighs 175 pounds despite his small stature.

Al Nichelini—Star of all-Star game against Bears last August. Former St. Mary's sprinter and best blocker on squad.

Dave Cook—Former Illinois half back, who is used chiefly as blocker, but can run with most any back in the league. Excellent place kicker.

Gil Berry—Illinois star two years ago, who returned to game this fall after being out a year. Exceptional runner and passer.

Full Backs.

Mike Mikulak—210 pound defensive star, who stopped Nagurski in 1934 all-Star game and has been stopping everybody else ever since. So far of little worth offensively.

Gwynn Dowell — Newcomer from Texas Tech.

Record Crowd to See Bears Play Giants Sunday

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The New York Giants and Chicago Bears will meet at the Polo grounds Sunday before the largest local crowd of the professional season.

With the ticket sale running 50 per cent ahead of last year's advance and presaging a turnout of 40,000 fans, Steve Owen sent the Giants through another workout today.

The Giants will go into the game without Red Badgro at end and it is unlikely that the injured Ken Strong, their great kicker, will be available, though Owen said today he had not yet decided whether he would call on Strong to kick in a pinch. Dale Burnett, who has been out for two weeks, probably will start with Corseine, Danowski, and Richards in the back field.

yard line several times and Zuppke seemed satisfied with the result.

In dummy scrimmage against the freshmen using Wildcat plays, the Illini looked better on their aerial defense than at any other time this week.

Francis Cantwell of Depue took over left end, replacing Ken Nelson, who twisted his knee and is definitly out of the Northwestern game. Full back Theodore donned a suit for the first time since the Iowa game and will make the trip but it is highly improbable that he will see much action.

Thirty-three players will make the trip, including the following:

ENDS—Dykstra, Cantwell, Glazier, Wright, Skarda, Bennis, Nelson.
TACKLES — Antilla, Galbreath, Berner, Fletcher, Morris.
GUARDS—Gryboski, Kuhn, Lippold, Tischler, Fay, Knox.
CENTERS—Sayre, Frederick, Robbins.
QUARTER BACKS—Henry, Gano, Charwe.
HALF BACKS—Lindberg, Spurgeon, Grieve, Cole, Jansen, Bradley, Bradley.
FULL BACKS—Wilson, Brown, Theodore.

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Bonds continued a narrow performance today at the reduced pace of activity that has been maintained in the last few sessions. Transfers of $9,053,000, par value, compared with $9,444,000 on Wednesday.

Modest recovery among a group of industrials and utilities in the final hour gave the corporate bond market its only touch of color today. Railroad loans remained aloof from the movement and finished unchanged to a shade lower; U. S. governments were quiet but the trend was upward, and the majority of foreign bonds did little either way.

Motor and motor equipment issues developed a buying following that produced gains of as much as a point. Rubber issues were fractionally higher.

A few really bright spots stood out boldly in the industrial division. Universal Pipe and Radiator 6s moved up 4½ points coincident with strong demand for equities of this company; Murray Body 6½s more than recovered yesterday's loss with a jump of 6 points, and Niagara Share 5½s established a new high for a year or longer at 98½, up 2¾ points. Other issues selling 1 to 2 higher included International Paper 6s, Mead 6s, and Studebaker 6s.

Railroad loans were disposed to ignore the Denver and Rio Grande Western reorganization developments after the market closed Wednesday. Bonds of this carrier were again neglected and showed little change.

Further improvement was made by most of the Italian bonds, and German [Dawes] 7s were again in favor at 41, up 1 point. Styria Province 7s advanced 5¾ points.

San Antonio Public Service.

Investors' Guide: I wish information concerning San Antonio Public Service bonds. Will the company be affected by the "death sentence" clause?—H. F. N.

Answer: San Antonio Public Service company is an operating company controled by a United Light and Power company subsidiary. It operates in a compact section within one state, furnishing electricity and transportation to San Antonio, Tex., and 41 nearby communities. We, therefore, do not believe that it will be directly affected by the death sentence provision of the public utilities act of 1935.

The company has substituted buses for all trolley routes. This has cut operating expenses of the transportation division substantially.

All divisions reported increased revenues in 1934, total revenues having risen about 7 per cent above 1933. Higher operating costs, depreciation, and taxes just about offset the improvement. Lowered interest charges enabled the company to cover fixed charges 1.67 times, against 1.66 times in 1933, 1.81 times in 1932, and 1.86 times in 1931. Prior to 1934 margin by which fixed charges were covered had dropped steadily from 1925.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was not impressive. Working capital deficit was $163,000.

American Chicle.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate very much some information on American Chicle.—Mrs. F. C. S.

Answer: American Chicle company is one of the three largest chewing gum manufacturers in this country. Some of its brands are Chiclets, Black Jack, Beeman's, and Sen-Sen. Since transportation costs are only a small element of expense, production is concentrated in its Long Island, N. Y., plant, whose capacity is more than ample for needs.

During the first nine months of 1935 earnings equaled $4.57 a share, against $3.44 a share in the corresponding 1934 period. Earnings in the full 1934 year were equal to $4.54 a share, against $3.82 in 1933, $3.76 in 1932, $4.28 in 1931, and $4.43 in 1930.

On June 30, 1935, current assets were more than twelve times total current liabilities. Working capital of $4,809,000 was more than equal to $10 per share on the 445,000 shares of no par common stock. There is only one class of stock and no bonded debt.

The stock pays regular dividends of 75 cents a quarter. An extra of 25 cents a share is payable Jan. 2, 1936. Extras paid in 1935 totaled $1 a share, against 25 cents a share in 1934.

The stock is high grade.

PWA TO ENLARGE HOUSING BLOCK FOR WEST SIDE

Allots $5,000,000 More to Jane Addams Unit.

BY AL CHASE.

Plans for enlargement of the proposed west side federal slum clearance project to be known as the Jane Addams houses from 5¼ to 21 acres, through acquirement of 15 acres additional land, were announced yesterday by Public Works Administrator Ickes. At the same time Ickes stated the President has approved an allotment of $5,000,000 for the contemplated extension, which, added to the $1,500,000 already assigned to the project, gives it a total of $6,500,000.

The proposed new area, options for which it is asserted have been taken on practically all property involved, include six irregularly shaped blocks contiguous to the five acres just south of Vernon park, recently purchased from the Jewish People's institute.

Location of Enlarged Site.

These blocks include the one bounded by Gilpin, Racine, Arthington, and Lytle; one bounded by Arthington, Racine, Taylor, and Lytle; the block bounded by Taylor, Racine, Roosevelt, and Lytle; a similar sized block to the west bounded by Taylor, Lytle, Roosevelt, and Throop; the block bounded by Edgemont, Throop, Roosevelt, and Loomis, and the small block formed by Arthington, Sibley, Taylor and Loomis.

The additional fifteen acres to be acquired will enable the housing division of the PWA to increase the Jane Addams houses from the original 305 units to living quarters for 982 families, it was stated.

Open Bids on Nov. 4.

Bids for the foundation work on the original 305 units on 6½ acres will be opened on Nov. 4. Enlargement of the project will not change plans to go ahead as fast as possible on the first section, according to Chester A. Inman, district manager of the PWA housing division.

Originally the PWA contemplated erecting a $12,500,000 housing project on the 160 acres bounded by Harrison, Racine, Roosevelt, and Ashland. Difficulty in obtaining options resulted in Ickes announcing several months ago that the west side project had been abandoned. Later he brought the project to life on a much smaller scale by purchasing 6½ acres for the Jane Addams houses.

'MOST MODERN' REFINERY GOES INTO OPERATION

What is described as the "most modern" gasoline refining plant in the world has recently been placed in operation at the East Chicago, Ind., works of the Socony-Vacuum Oil company, Byron S. Reid, manager of the Chicago district of the big eastern company, disclosed yesterday.

Reid said that installation of this new plant, which cost between $750,000 and $1,000,000, has caused the scrapping of old refining equipment valued at several million dollars. Deliveries of gasoline are now being made throughout the Chicago district, he said. Capacity is about 8,000 barrels a day.

"The placing of this new plant in use adds greatly to the importance of Chicago as an industrial center," Reid said. "This plant is the result of studies by engineers over a long period and consequently it is the last word in efficiency. Contracts have been let for the construction of two similar plants in other parts of the country.

FIRST NATIONAL, CONTINENTAL PLAN DIVIDENDS

RFC Is Not Opposed, Jones Discloses.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—Both the First National Bank of Chicago and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company contemplate early resumption of dividends on their common stocks, Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, disclosed today. The RFC owns 50 million dollars of preferred stock of the Continental and 25 millions of preferred in the First National.

The RFC, Jones said, not only would raise no objection to the resumption of dividend payments by the First National and the Continental but had been urging such a move.

RFC Is Not Opposed.

In answer to a question as to whether the First National had asked approval of the RFC to go on a $4 annual dividend basis beginning Jan. 1, as reported recently on good authority in Chicago, Jones replied:

"They have discussed the matter with us, and we interposed no objection. I think they ought to. Looking over their earnings I see no reason for their not paying $4 a year. They are earning considerably more than that and are in excellent financial condition."

Jones said that he had been informed of the First National's reported plan to retire 10 million of the 25 million dollars of preferred stock held by the RFC out of the bank's surplus funds, but that no definite arrangements had been made.

Continental's Condition.

"The Continental, also, is in excellent shape, and I see no reason for its not paying a dividend," Jones said. "I hope to see both of these banks resume payments in the near future. We encourage banks to pay dividends when they can. We think stockholders are entitled to some return when their banks are earning enough to justify payments."

Later he said that Chairman Walter J. Cummings of the Continental had talked with him about resuming dividends, but that no specific rate of payment had been mentioned in these conversations. The amount of Continental dividend, he said, would probably not be the same as that of the First National because of a difference in the par values of shares of the two institutions. When the Continental sold 50 millions of preferred to the RFC it reduced the stated value of its outstanding common stock from 75 millions to 25 millions and cut the par value of each common share from $100 to $33.33.

View on Preferred Stock.

In reply to a question as to whether the employment of bank earnings to pay common dividends rather than using them to accelerate paying off preferred shares held by the RFC would postpone the time when banks could complete the retirement of the RFC's interest, Jones said:

Under the terms of the agreement by which the RFC purchased preferred stocks of the First National and the Continental the banks, in addition to dividends on the preferred, are required to provide for the retirement of 5 per cent of the preferred each year for twenty years. If earnings warant, however, they are permitted to pay off their indebtedness to the government agency at a faster rate. The preferred stock carries voting power equal to the common. In the event of failure of a bank to meet dividend or sinking fund requirements on the preferred the voting powers of the preferred are doubled.

BANKS' SHARES RISE.

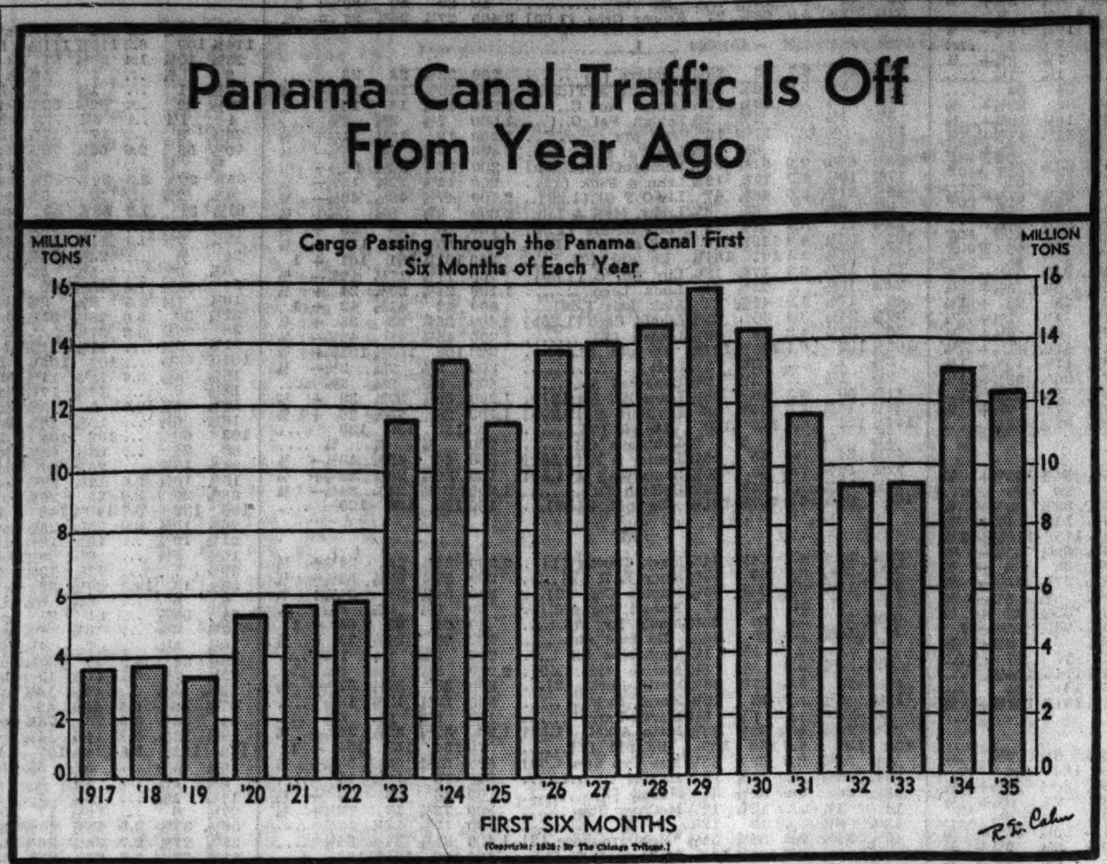
The prospect of an early resumption in dividends by Chicago's two largest banks yesterday brought an advance in the prices of the banks' shares. The stock of the First National bank rose 7 points in the unlisted market and shares of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company were bid up 4½ points.

Officials of the banks in Chicago confirmed the fact that directors will consider dividends soon. Directors of the First National bank are expected to place the stock on a $4 annual basis at their meeting Dec. 13. At the same time the board is scheduled to approve the retirement of $10,000,000 of the $25,000,000 of preferred stock now held by the RFC.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental bank, said that the matter of dividends would come up for consideration at the January meeting of directors. Cummings has asserted on several occasions that payments to stockholders would be resumed as soon as conditions warranted.

Canadian Government Denies Plan to Dump Wheat

OTTAWA, Can., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Denial of reports the government intended to force Canadian wheat on the markets came from the first meeting today of the cabinet committee to deal with the wheat situation. Some observers believed the denial was prompted by representations from Winnipeg to the committee that the uncertainty of the situation was having a depressing effect on the market.



Rise in Bank Reserves May Bring Inflation

The rise in bank reserves, which some economists regard as an ominous portent of coming inflation, continued last week, according to the weekly statement of the federal reserve system released yesterday. Total reserves of banks belonging to the system rose 78 million dollars, which sent the "excess" reserves—idle bank funds—up to the record figure of 3,010 millions.

Never before the history of the federal reserve system have unemployed funds of the member banks approached that mark. The funds are sufficient, it is estimated, to finance a credit inflation amounting to 30 billions or more.

As for the last several weeks, the expansion reported yesterday followed closely the increase in the monetary gold stocks, which were boosted 57 millions by additional imports. Total gold stocks are now 9,686 millions.

Gold and Reserves Related.

There has been a close correlation between gold and reserves since devaluation of the dollar in January last year. Since that time American gold stocks have swelled some 2½ billions and excess reserves have increased about 2 billions.

Warnings by some economists that the government should take steps to check the expanding reserve have brought no response. The government has two weapons which it may use to check the rise. It may direct the central reserve banks to reduce their holdings of government bonds or it may, through the federal reserve board, increase the reserve requirements of member banks. Neither weapon has been used. Both courses appear to be politically inexpedient at the present time.

Banks Increase Investments.

While reserves were expanding, the bank credit in use in New York and Chicago last week increased moderately over the preceding week. Significantly, in both cities the upturn was due to an increase in bank investments and not to an expansion in commercial loans.

The New York banks purchased 9 millions of government securities and 30 millions of other securities. The Chicago banks bought 14 millions of governments. Commercial loans were off 3 millions from the preceding week in both centers. The New York banks reported a decline of 4 millions in their loans to brokers.

The volume of bank clearings in the principal cities showed some recession during the last week, as compared with a week earlier, but for the sixteenth consecutive week showed a gain over the corresponding period last year.

Clearings Above Year Ago.

A compilation by Dun & Bradstreet, for the week ended Oct. 30, showed total clearings of $4,840,431,000 in 22 leading cities, an increase of 9.4 per cent over the comparable 1934 period. In the week ended Oct. 21 the margin of increase over last year was 27.5 per cent. New York clearings last week, the compilation showed, were 3.4 per cent over last year. Chicago clearings were 23.2 per cent above a year ago.

Chicago clearings for October were the largest in nearly four years. The total for the month was $1,190,581,792, against $1,017,320,493 in October, 1934. Last month's volume was the biggest since December, 1931.

Butter and Egg Futures Trade Heaviest Since 1933

Trading in butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange during October was the heaviest for any month since July, 1933, when an all-time record was set, the exchange announced yesterday. The total of 8,706 cars was also the heaviest business for October since 1930 when 10,000 cars were traded. October butter sales were 3,113 cars, and eggs, 5,593 cars.

International Harvester Official Honored at Dinner

Arthur A. Aranson, who has just resigned as assistant manager of purchases of the International Harvester company, last night was honored at a farewell dinner at the Chicago Athletic club by about 100 steel and industrial officials. Aranson will become assistant to the president of the Crucible Steel company of New York.

SANITARY DISTRICT'S 139 MILLION REFUND DECLARED OPERATIVE

The Chicago sanitary district's program to refund $139,000,000 in bonded debt was declared operative yesterday by the board of trustees and the refunding agents—the Harris Trust and Savings bank, Northern Trust company, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, First National bank, and City National Bank and Trust company. Ninety-three per cent of the bonds have been deposited in approval of the plan announced July 25, against the 85 per cent needed.

At the meeting of the sanitary board, President Ross Woodhull announced bids will be asked immediately on a new issue of $20,000,000 Series A bonds bearing a 4 per cent coupon. If a sale can be made above par, the district will use proceeds to retire bonds now in default or due before Jan. 1. Otherwise, the board is expected to exercise its option to issue the new bonds in exchange for present holdings. The $119,000,000 Series B issue will be used to retire bonds with later maturities and will bear the same rate of interest as outstanding issues.

Nov. 16 was set by the board as the final date for deposit of bonds under the plan, and Woodhull expressed the hope that a 100 per cent record may be achieved. Bonds so far deposited aggregate more than $130,000,000.

MUCH U. S. GOODS IS SENT TO ITALY DESPITE WARNING

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The state department tonight possessed reports that a heavy volume of American goods has been flowing to Italy this month, despite repeated administration efforts to "discourage" such trade.

This authoritative disclosure threw light upon the unusual actions of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull yesterday in turning on their heaviest pressure against transactions of any nature with the Italo-Ethiopian belligerents.

The total of recent trade with Italy was not revealed. It was stated reliably, however, that a "large number" of American shipments had gone to that warring nation since the chief executive's Oct. 5 pronouncement of a trade-with-belligerents-at-your-own-risk policy. Trade with Ethiopia was shown to have been small.

GLIDDEN TO ERECT SOY BEAN PLANT, OFFICE BUILDING

Building permits were issued yesterday for the construction of a $35,000 one story plant and a $10,000 two story office building by the Glidden company, whose soy bean products plant at 1845 North Laramie avenue was wrecked by an explosion on Oct. 7, killing eleven persons. The new plant will be of steel and brick construction, with a frontage of 99 feet at 5164-74 Moffat street.

According to Paul Olson, construction engineer for the Glidden company, a mechanical process will be used instead of the former chemical process in the treatment of soy bean products. This will insure safety, he stated.

The office building will be of ordinary brick construction, with a frontage of 36 feet at 5165 Moffat street. N. Roneeberg, Inc., is architect and engineer for the two buildings.

Bethlehem Nets $701,616 in 3d Quarter

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Bethlehem Steel corporation today reported a profit for the third quarter, the first earnings in a September quarter since 1930.

EUGENE G. GRACE.

The report showed a net profit of $701,616 in the last quarter, compared with net of $1,809,909 in the June period and a net loss of $2,400,126 in the corresponding period a year ago.

The profits for the September quarter, after interest, depreciation, depletion, taxes, and other charges, were equal to 75 cents a share on the 933,887 shares of preferred outstanding. In the preceding quarter the company earned the equivalent of 5 cents a share on the outstanding common stock.

Nine Month Figures.

Operations for the first nine months this year indicated net profit of $1,895,227 after all charges, equal to $2.03 a share on the preferred, compared with net profit of $139,472, or 15c a share on the same stock in the first nine months of 1934.

The directors declared a quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock. Arrears on the senior issue now total $19.25.

Production currently is approximately 46 per cent of the company's capacity, according to Eugene D. Grace, president of the company.

Output averaged approximately 37.8 per cent of capacity in the September quarter, compared with 38.6 per cent in the second quarter, and 22.8 per cent in the third quarter of 1934.

Will Reduce Funded Debt.

Grace said that on completion of the company's refinancing operations the funded debt would be cut to less than $100,000,000. He pointed out that, in addition to the $53,000,000 bonds to be called next year, $19,000,000 of miscellaneous issues also will be paid.

Bethlehem will spend $10,000,000 in the fourth quarter for plant improvements, Grace said. About $12,000,000 was spent for similar purposes in the first nine months.

Grace expressed optimism over the business outlook, but asserted continued recovery depended largely on a balanced federal budget and a comprehensive national taxation program that will knit together federal, state, and municipal plans with a reduction of expenses in every division.

PARISH CALLED FOR QUIZZING BY U. S. TRADE GROUP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Frank P. Parish, Chicago's "boy wizard" whose Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company skyrocketed him to fortune and then involved him in a mail fraud suit, has been subpenaed to appear before the federal trade commission on Nov. 6, inquiry disclosed today.

Parish has been summoned to testify in the FTC investigation of gas utility companies. This is the same investigation which indicated that F. G. Bonfils, late publisher of the Denver Post, received $350,000 from a Standard Oil subsidiary to change his paper's attitude toward a Denver gas franchise.

Whether Parish has been summoned to relate his own activities or to state charges against gas companies which he claims wrecked his enterprise was not revealed by FTC officials. Parish has filed damage suits against these companies.

TAXES, COSTS OFFSET GAIN IN UTILITY GROSS

Earnings of Chicago Companies Hurt.

Increased taxes and operating expenses more than offset better revenues of the Commonwealth Edison and Peoples Gas Light and Coke companies in the three months ended Sept. 30, and also cut heavily into improved earnings of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. The three chief utilities in the Chicago area issued their quarterly reports yesterday.

Public Service, however, nearly doubled its net profit of the third quarter of last year, with $467,099 as against $234,480. After preferred dividend requirements, earnings on the common stock were 33 cents a share compared with a deficit of 3 cents a share in the third quarter of last year. This striking gain enabled the company to show better net income for the first nine months of 1935 than it had in the same period last year—$2,256,194 against $2,090,516.

Refunding Cuts Interest.

The improvement was almost entirely due to the saving in interest occasioned by recent refunding operations. Interest and other deductions amounted to $1,630,774, a reduction of $213,894 from the $1,844,669 in like period of 1934.

Gross earnings for the quarter totaled $8,521,029, an increase of $475,647 from last year's figure of $8,045,382. Operating expenses and taxes were up $524,472 to an aggregate of $6,505,098, compared with $5,980,626. Other income rose from $14,391 to $81,941. The principal increase in expense was $191,690 for gas purchased. The new state 3 per cent public utility tax accounted for $117,266 of the rise in taxes. Other state and local taxes rose $87,106.

The company estimated nine months' gross earnings of $26,719,827 would have been $687,638 more had it not been for rate reductions put in force on June 1, 1934. In the first nine months of last year total gross earnings were $25,900,487.

Edison's Expenses Rise.

Commonwealth Edison reported $18,666,756 gross earnings for the third quarter, compared with $18,125,111 in the same period last year, but operating expenses increased even more—from $14,376,087 to $15,251,159—to cut earnings from operations.

Other income was $581,764, compared with $507,097 a year ago. Interest and other deductions were cut from $2,407,269 to $2,353,358 through refunding operations. Amortization increases kept the reduction down. Net income was $1,644,003, or $1.02 a share, compared with $1,848,851 or $1.15 a share, in the third quarter of 1934.

Chairman James Simpson and Vice Chairman George A. Ranney in commenting upon the report called attention to the $875,071 increase in taxes and expenses.

Comment on Heavy Taxes.

There now are three separate levies of 3 per cent on all or part of the company's revenues, they said, in addition to ordinary local, state, and federal taxes. Of the $568,869 increase in taxes last quarter, $309,433 was caused by the new 3 per cent state sales tax which went into effect July 1. State and local taxes accounted for most of the other rise.

For the year to date, Edison gross revenues were $58,115,603, against $55,987,707 in the same period of 1934. Operating expenses and taxes, about even until the third quarter, were $45,394,376, compared with $43,314,266 for the 1935 and 1934 nine month periods. Net income was $7,213,917, or $4.49 a share, compared with $7,160,723, or $4.45 a share, for the same period in 1934.

Peoples Gas Also Affected.

Gross earnings of Peoples Gas for the third quarter of this year were $8,156,079, compared with $7,577,751 for the same period in 1934, an increase of $578,328. But operating expenses and taxes increased $1,212,375 from $6,574,579 to $7,786,955. Cost of gas purchased increased $993,568, while taxes increased $136,529, of which $90,174 was the result of the Illinois sales tax.

After interest charges and other expenses, Peoples Gas had a deficit of $622,284 for the quarter, compared with net income of $38,974 in the third quarter of 1934.

For the nine months this year gross earnings were $27,708,854, compared with $25,518,911 for the same period last year, an increase of $2,189,943. But taxes and operating expenses rose from $21,079,259 to $24,642,201, an increase of $3,562,942. Net income, after charges, totaled $114,255 so far this year, or 17 cents a share on the capital stock, against $1,539,061, or $2.28 a share, for the period last year.

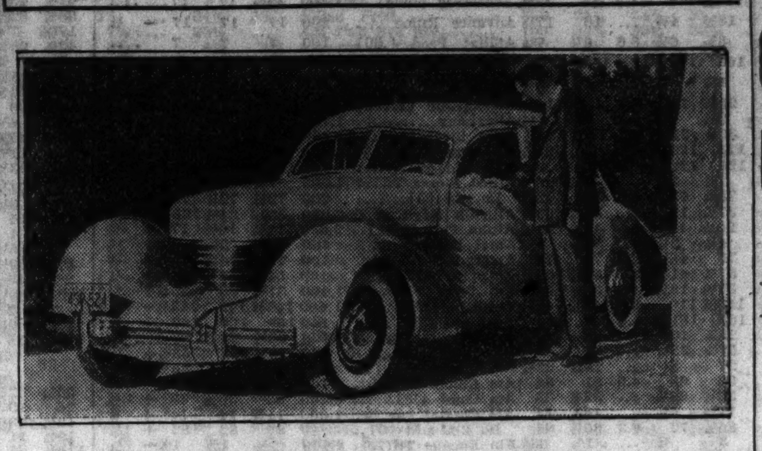
Lights Are "In" When They're "Out"



One of the 1936 model Cord front drive automobiles, as it appears with head lights retracted into the front fenders. Other features are the absence of running boards and its exceptionally low overall height.

New Cord Car Big Departure in Designing

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—Details of a radically different automobile were disclosed today. It's a front drive, aerodynamic Cord, produced by the Auburn Automobile company, to supplement a more conventional line of 1936 models bearing the name of the company.

This low, sleek wind splitter will share attention of novelty seekers at the national automobile show with the Ford Motor company's medium priced streamliner, the Lincoln Zephyr. The show will open at the Grand Central Palace here Saturday afternoon. Exhibits will be on display at the International amphitheater in Chicago Nov. 16 to 23.

Big Change in Hood.

The most striking view of this new Cord is obtained from the front. The head lamps, when not in use, are retracted into covered recesses in the fenders. The hood is in one piece without radiator cap or ornamental substitute. The radiator is completely hidden.

Around the sides of the long, low hood, extending from front door to front door and taking the place of conventional louvres and grille, are seven horizontal fins with chrome edges. The effect might be called either Venetian or modernistic.

A split windshield is slanted sharply to blend into a "parabola top" that bends over the body and sweeps down to the rear bumper. Each fender, constructed separately, is another "tear drop." There are no running boards.

Plenty of Head Room.

The top of the car is no higher than the shoulders of a man of average stature, yet there is head room for a passenger with a silk hat. The floor boards are only 10⅝ inches from the ground, yet there is normal road clearance.

power, is said to be capable of driving this body and chassis of low wind resistance at speeds exceeding ninety-five miles an hour. The transmission, with four forward speeds, is also under the hood and is operated electrically by remote control by means of a selector no bigger than a thumb that can be reached by a finger without the hand leaving the steering wheel.

AUBURN LOSS LARGER.

The consolidated net loss of the Auburn Automobile company and subsidiaries for the third quarter ended Aug. 31, 1935, amounted to $933,023, against $679,066 a year ago, which brings the consolidated net loss for 9 months to $1,796,410, against $2,324,532.

The third quarter loss included extraordinary charges representing a write-down of patterns, dies, tools, and fixtures amounting to $123,218. This was in addition to the usual amortization charge. Many items of the expense were due to production of the new Cord front drive car. Inventories were marked down $326,997, and bad debts charged off totaled $71,289.

The consolidated balance sheet as of Aug. 31, 1935, disclosed total current assets of $4,390,894, which included $449,341 cash. Total current liabilities were $759,745.

FORD BUILDS MILLION CARS IN TEN MONTHS; GIVES 'ZEPHYR' PRICES

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Henry Ford today made good his promise of a year ago to build a million automobiles in 1935. In fact, he did better than that, and built one million in ten months. The total output for the year will be approximately 1,180,000 units.

Ford's announcement was received in some quarters with incredulity. In financial centers it was taken to indicate that American industry was pulling out of the depression.

A January production figure of 100,793 showed something unusual was afoot. February's figure of 126,646 and that for March 158,887, showed the pace at which production and sales were moving. April brought the four month total to 546,429 cars built and distributed. Seasonal demand, which usually sags sharply in summer, this year held unusually strong, and the production was maintained.

"How about next year?" a newspaper man asked Ford.

"Well," he replied, "you can just say we'll make all we can sell and sell all we can make."

World production of Ford units from June, 1903, when the company started business, to Sept. 1, this year, totaled 23,308,684.

Base prices of the Lincoln-Zephyr, the new Ford and Lincoln entry in the medium price automobile field, were announced today as $1,275 F. O. B. Detroit for the sedan with two doors, and $1,320 F. O. B. Detroit for the sedan with four doors.

CHICAGO TRADE IN SEPTEMBER FAR ABOVE 1934

Chicago business in September ran far ahead of a year ago the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. The study disclosed that new building permits more than doubled, real estate transfers showed a pickup of almost $4,000,000, carloadings were more than 20 per cent higher, and the output of Chicago district steel mills was almost 100 per cent over September 1934.

Following are figures for September and a year ago:

Building permits, $1,326,200, $520,475; building contracts, $3,253,200, $1,723,100; real estate transfer, $9,524,413, $5,713,562; department store sales index, 72.5 per cent, 74.9 per cent; bank clearings, $1,069,688,416; $931,523,255; Chicago Stock exchange transactions, shares, 1,058,000, 394,000; carloadings, 161,285, 128,838; telephones in use, Sept. 30, 837,002, 817,261; electric power production, kwh, Sept. 1 to 28, 408,740,000, 393,578,000; surface lines passengers, 51,547,851, 54,569,480; postal receipts, $3,870,818, $3,613,414; pig iron production, Chicago area, gross tons, 355,287, 177,295.

I. C. C. APPROVES TWO TRUSTEES FOR SOUTH SHORE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today approved appointment by the northern Indiana federal District court of John M. Shannahan and Claude J. Jackson as trustees for the Chicago, South Shore and South Bend railroad, which is in the hands of the court for reorganization.

The ratification of Shannahan's appointment was on the condition that he should receive no salary as an officer or employé of the company and that his only compensation should be that allowed by the court within maximum limits to be approved by the commission. The commission did not fix a maximum in today's order.

CHRYSLER PUTS QUARTER RATE UP TO 75 CENTS

Profits Climb; Bank Loan Reduced.

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Chrysler corporation today increased the dividend on the common stock to 75 cents for the quarter, or the equivalent to $3 a share annually. In the previous two quarters the company paid 25 cents a share regular, together with an extra of an equal amount.

Directors announced the company proposed to pay an additional $5,000,000 of bank loans in advance of maturity. The bank debt involved is not due until April 25, 1938. It is part of total accommodation of $25,000,000 arranged with the banks several months ago to finance the retirement of the $30,150,500 of 6 per cent debentures of Dodge Bros., Inc.

Profits Show Sharp Rise.

Profit of the corporation for the nine months ended Sept. 30 was $23,184,458, after all taxes and charges, equal to $5.35 a share on the common stock. This compares with net of $9,422,826, or $2.17 a share, in the like period of 1934. The nine months net earnings were the largest for any similar period in the company's history, except that of 1929, when the total amounted to $24,730,418.

Net after charges and taxes for the September quarter totaled $4,525,149, equal to $1.04 a share on the common, compared with net of $9,496,127, or $2.19 a share, in the preceding quarter, and $1,230,742, or 28 cents a share, in the third quarter of the last year.

Sales to distributors and dealers during the first nine months of this year totaled 599,415 units, an increase of 15 per cent as compared with the 523,283 units sold in the first nine months of 1934.

Prices Lower than in 1929.

Dollar sales for the 1935 period were $366,711,178, as compared with $311,780,091 for the 1934 period. Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the board, in a statement to stockholders accompanying the financial report said:

"While more units were sold thus far this year than in any full year in the past, dollar volume, due to lower prices and a larger proportion of sales in the lower priced market, was not as large as it was in the best previous year, 1929, when 25 per cent fewer units were sold."

He also said retail sales of the corporation's four lines of motor cars and one truck for the first nine months of this year were 35 per cent greater than during the 1934 nine months.

Current assets of the corporation, as of Sept. 30, were listed at $87,644,936, including $53,793,018 in cash and marketable securities. Current liabilities were $26,989,162. This compares with current assets of $85,744,552, as of Sept. 30, 1934, of which $50,718,685 were in cash and marketable securities. Current liabilities a year ago were $31,652,342.

Cut Loan to $5,000,000.

"The Chrysler corporation," said B. E. Hutchison, chairman of the finance committee, "decided today to pay off in anticipation of maturity $5,000,000 of the $25,000,000 loan arranged last spring. Since this loan was arranged the corporation has already anticipated payments of $10,000,000 of it, comprising the $5,000,000 of five year notes, due April 25, 1940, which bore the highest interest rate of the five maturities, and the $5,000,000 of four year notes due April 25, 1939, which bore the next highest interest rate.

"Today's action contemplates payment of the three year notes due April 25, 1938. After giving effect to this action the corporation will have outstanding only $5,000,000 of debt other than current liabilities."

STOCKS RESUME UPWARD MOVE; TRADE CALMER

Motor and Metal Groups Lead Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31.—Fresh demand for motor, metal, and miscellaneous industrial stocks propelled the share market forward anew today. Dealings were on a more subdued tone than in other recent sessions, however, and few of the more important issues were able to extend their gains more than a point.

Outside news continued favorable, especially the earnings reports for the third quarter and the initial nine months of the year. Freight loadings for the week, according to preliminary forecasts, again topped the 700,000 car mark, thus providing indications of increased October earnings.

Chrysler "Off on Good News."

Announcement in the early afternoon of Chrysler's earnings and higher dividend seemed to touch off a little spell of profit taking, but the net effect was not greatly upsetting. Chrysler, "with the good news out," fell back a couple of points from its early high and most other trading favorites closed slightly below their best levels. General Motors rose a point on the biggest turnover of the list. Packard and Studebaker among the lower priced issues of the group were again turned over in heavy volume and both advanced fractionally.

Coppers came into fresh prominence. American Smelting duplicated its best price for the year. Some of the foods were well liked in view of the publicity given the rising price of the "forgotten man's" necessities here of late. National Biscuit stood out, achieving a new high on an upturn of nearly $2 a share.

Skelly Is Star Performer.

A number of the independent steels scored impressive gains. Youngstown preferred jumped 5 points, but fell back a little later.

In the petroleum section Skelly was a star performer, both the common and preferred stocks bidding for registering sharp gains.

Phillip Morris was a feature in the tobacco group. Small gains were the rule in the rubber, rail, and chemical groups. American Telephone gained 2 points.

Virginia-Carolina set a fast pace for the fertilizers, and Schenley showed the way up once more for the whisky stocks, adding $2 a share to its listed valuation. Holland Furnace capitalized its earnings figures a little further and Owens Glass was bid up 3¼ points.

Sales on the New York Stock exchange during October totaled 46,814,621 shares, the highest for any month this year and comparing with 34,726,590 shares in September. In October, 1934, sales totaled only 15,659,921 shares.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was quiet today and prices unchanged at 3.60c per lb for spots and 3.28c for over quota sugars. Futures showed early gains of 1 point, but reacted toward the close under increased December liquidation and scattered commission house selling, prompted by the continued inactivity in the spot market. Final prices were at the low of the day and unchanged to 2 points net lower. Sales amounted to 2,750 tons.

Washington advices said that deliveries of all kinds of sugar for domestic consumption for the first nine months of this year amounted to 5,136,704 tons, according to the AAA, or about 81.8 per cent of the total amount allocated under the Jones-Costigan sugar act.

WHEAT HIGHER ON FORECAST OF SMALL EXPORTS

Argentina and Russia May Sell Less Grain.

Supply and demand influences coupled with war talk dominated the action of the world wheat markets yesterday. Sharply higher prices were recorded. General short covering and some increase in speculative buying developed as the result of forecasts for smaller Argentine and Russian exports this week. It was estimated Argentina would probably have only 56,000,000 to 72,000,000 bushels wheat for export from the new crop, which will not be harvested for nearly a month.

Wheat prices on the Chicago Board of Trade, at Winnipeg and at Liverpool advanced about 2 cents per bushel at the extreme. While profit taking developed on the bulge North American markets finished around one cent higher.

Supply and Demand Considered.

Yesterday was the first time in nearly a month that supply and demand factors had much effect on the wheat market. It was noticeable, however, that there was still considerable uncertainty regarding prospective developments in Canada. The trend of prices, it was believed, would be determined to a considerable extent by the policy to be followed by the wheat board in disposing of its tremendous holdings of cash grain.

Corn and other grains were higher. There was some short covering in corn as the result of a moderately bullish construction placed on the announcement that the AAA would lend 45 cents per bushel on No. 3 grades of cash corn in farmers' cribs.

Closing quotations on December futures in Chicago yesterday, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$0.98¼	$0.97½	$0.99⅝
Corn	.58⅞	.59¼	.60⅛
Oats	.27	.26½	.26⅝
Rye	.50⅛	.49¼	.50⅝

Forecast Corn Belt Rains.

Forecasts for wet weather over the corn belt, which might delay the movement of the new crop, was as much a factor in stimulating buying of futures as the announcement of the government loan basis to producers.

No. 1 northern spring wheat at Winnipeg was quoted at the close yesterday at over 1 cent per bushel below the government guaranteed figure of 87½ cents to the producer for that grade of wheat delivered at Fort William or Vancouver.

PRICES ADVANCE IN BUTTER, EGGS, POTATOES, CHEESE

Butter futures advanced yesterday, the December delivery on the Chicago Mercantile exchange selling at a new high for the year. Closing trades were ¼ cent higher with November at 28⅛ cents per pound. Aggressive buying was stimulated by the American association report showing production last week 13 per cent less than the preceding week and 24 per cent less than last year.

Forecasts for colder weather brought in fair speculative buying in egg futures, and the close was unchanged to ¼ cent higher. January potatoes advanced 10 cents per 100 pounds and cheese rose ⅛ cent per pound, now $600 per car above the recent low point.

Sales of butter futures aggregated 225 cars, eggs 200 cars, cheese 10 cars, and potatoes 1 car. Deliveries on October contracts totaled 12 cars. Prices:

FOUR OF 20 BANKS TO MAKE REFUND BEFORE YEAR-END

3 More Plan Payments Early in 1936.

Four of the 20 closed banks for which State Auditor Edward J. Barrett issued statements of condition yesterday are making further returns to depositors before the end of the year. No payments were made by this group in the quarter ended Sept. 30.

Checks for another 10 per cent to Industrial State bank depositors are out now. The other three, about ready to pay 5 per cent more, are Lake View State, Lansing State, and Lincoln Trust and Savings. The Italian Trust and Savings and Kaufman State expect to return another 5 per cent early next year. Within a short time thereafter hope is held for payments by the Hubbard Woods Trust and Savings, Hegewisch State, and Kimbell Trust and Savings banks.

Condition of Banks Shown.

Detailed information will be found in the following individual analyses of the 20 banks, based on the auditor's reports and opinions of men closely associated with the affairs of these institutions. They show progress of liquidation, together with prospects for future payment of depositors. Figures, unless it is stated otherwise, apply to the entire period of receivership.

HALSTED STREET STATE — Receipts, $947,000 [$26,500 last quarter]. Paid $349,000 prior claims and $352,000, or 45 per cent, to depositors. Repaid $102,000 on RFC loan [$18,000 last quarter], but still owes $220,000 balance. Cash reserve, $42,000. Further returns to depositors hinge on RFC repayment, but enough should be left for another 10 per cent or so. Costs: $46,000 to protect assets [$8,000 last quarter], with return of $35,000 [$6,000 last quarter]. Costs: $12,000 interest, $26,500 clerical, $7,800 legal, $329 receiver.

HEGEWISCH STATE — Receipts, $204,000 [$3,000 last quarter]. Paid $47,500 prior claims and $94,000, or 32½ per cent, to depositors. With $10,000 of $14,500 cash free, hope is held for another 5 per cent early next year. Eventually, total return may be 50 per cent or better. Costs: $15,500 to protect assets [$11,500 returned], $17,500 clerical, $10,000 legal, $7,600 receivers.

Homewood State Bank.

HOMEWOOD STATE — Receipts, $159,000 [$20,000 last quarter]. Paid $70,000 prior claims, but still is faced with disputed village preference claim for $45,000. RFC loan of $48,500 being returned [$24,500 last quarter], because it could not be used to pay depositors as long as village claim is hanging fire. If courts force payment of claim first, little will be left for depositors; if not, a fair return is possible. Costs: $12,000 to protect assets [$6,000 returned], $5,300 interest, $15,000 clerical, $4,800 legal, $2,500 receiver. Cash in reserve, $24,200.

HUBBARD WOODS TRUST AND SAVINGS —Receipts, $208,500 [$4,000 last quarter]. Paid $47,000 prior claims, $22,400 RFC loan, and $97,500, or 55 per cent, to depositors. Has $12,500 cash, more than enough for another 5 per cent, but is holding up payment while seeking increase of new RFC loan approval of $13,000. Expects to pay 5 or 10 per cent early next year, with 70 per cent or more as total final payout. Costs: $2,300 to protect assets [all returned], $1,100 interest, $15,500 clerical, $7,200 legal, $3,200 receivers.

HUMBOLDT STATE—Receipts, $1,485,000 [$47,500 last quarter]. Paid $387,000 prior claims and $565,000, or 30 per cent, of deposits. Cash of $42,000 [$20,000 added last quarter]. Only small bills left, but owes some taxes. Further returns not expected to be more than 15 per cent. Advanced $318,500 to protect assets [$22,000 last quarter], with $289,500 returned [$20,000 last quarter]. Costs: $92,500 clerical, $71,000 legal, $9,500 receivers.

Immel State Bank.

IMMEL STATE — Receipts, $194,500 [$5,000 last quarter]. Paid $16,000 prior claims and $92,800, or 15 per cent, of deposits. All that remains is for creditors, with an indicated total return of 40 to 50 per cent if present slow liquidation can be speeded up. Costs: $22,500 to protect assets [$11,000 returned], $29,200 clerical, $14,200 legal, $10,400 receivers. Cash, $9,000 [up $3,000 last quarter after expenses].

IMMIGRANT STATE — Receipts, $98,000 [$1,800 last quarter]. Paid $33,000 prior claims and still has some bills. Liquidation slow, but some small return expected for depositors eventually. Costs: $41,500 to protect assets [with $48,000 returned], $1,000 interest, $11,000 clerical, $5,200 legal, $5,500 receivers. Cash only $9,000. Heavy losses of $67,500, or 33 per cent, on assets sold to date.

INDUSTRIAL STATE — Receipts, $190,000 [$2,200 last quarter]. Paid $85,500 prior claims and $47,200, or 25 per cent, of deposits to Sept. 30. [Paid another 10 per cent in October from $14,000 cash on hand]. Might reach total payout of 50 per cent. Costs: $4,800 to protect assets [$4,100 returned], $26,200 clerical, $5,000 legal, $7,500 receivers.

ITALIAN TRUST AND SAVINGS — Receipts, $643,000 [$38,000 last quarter]. Paid $335,300 prior claims, $115,000 RFC loan, and $65,000, or 10 per cent, of deposits. Another 30 per cent indicated, 5 per cent early in 1936. Cash now $33,000, but over half is reserved. Advanced $16,000 to protect assets, with $30,500 returned. Costs: $17,600 interest, $34,000 clerical, $19,000 legal, $8,200 receivers.

Kaufman State Bank.

KAUFMAN STATE — Receipts, $247,000 [$2,300 last quarter]. Paid $58,500 prior claims and $118,700, or 37½ per cent, of deposits. Eventual return cannot be estimated, because of uncertainty of foreign bonds, which comprise two-thirds of remaining assets, but another 5 per cent expected early in 1936. More than two-thirds of $15,600 cash is free for dividends. Costs: $4,600 to protect assets [$3,800 returned], $33,000 clerical, $11,500 legal, $4,600 receivers.

KENWOOD STATE — Receipts, $321,200 [$2,200 last quarter]. Paid $120,000 prior claims and $141,300, or 58 per cent, of deposits. Only small further return expected, unless results of stockholder liability suit are good, most of good assets being sold. Costs: $8,500 to protect assets [$7,000 returned], $3,500 interest, $27,000 clerical, $11,000 legal, $6,400 receivers. Cash only $3,800.

KIMBELL TRUST AND SAVINGS — Receipts, $890,000 [$31,500 last quarter]. Paid $473,000 prior claims [$18,500 last quarter]. Advanced $266,000 [$7,000 last quarter] to protect assets, with $287,000 returned [$6,000 last quarter]. Hopes to make first 5 per cent return on $1,360,500 deposit liability early in 1936, but has some $50,000 unpaid fees and claims, plus $61,000 balance due on old bills. Has $35,000 cash and RFC approval of $156,000 loan. Trying to have latter increased or get partial waiver on bills to make payment to depositors possible. Future not encouraging. Costs: $21,000 interest, $80,500 clerical, $6,000 legal [$25,000 owed], $8,100 receivers.

Lake View State Bank.

LAKE VIEW STATE—Receipts, $3,121,000 [$38,500 last quarter]. Paid $372,700 prior claims and $1,716,000, or 30 per cent, of deposits. Will pay another 5 per cent this quarter from $339,000 cash on hand. Hopes for further 5 per cent from RFC loan. Final payout of 50 per cent seen, with good luck on heavy real estate holdings. Costs: $310,000 to protect assets [$13,500 last quarter], with return of $180,500 [$13,000 last quarter]; $194,500 clerical, $142,500 legal, $45,800 receivers. Loss of $335,000 on sale of assets less than 8 per cent.

LANSING STATE — Receipts, $228,300 [$2,000 last quarter]. Paid $61,000 prior claims and $83,500, or 25 per cent, of deposits. Cash now $11,000, and expects to pay 5 per cent more before end of year. Total return of 50 per cent indicated. Costs: $22,500 to protect assets [$16,500 returned], $1,000 interest, $26,000 clerical, $16,000 legal, $7,500 receivers.

LARAMIE STATE — Receipts, $212,500 [$27 in last six months]. Paid $153,000 prior claims and still owes $5,000 old bills, plus some fees. Heavy loss of $81,000 on sale of assets to date, with heavier ones to come. No more than a pittance ever expected on $316,000 due depositors. Liquidation slow. Costs: $6,100 to protect assets, $4,200 interest, $26,200 clerical, $11,600 legal, $7,600 receivers.

LINCOLN STATE — Receipts, $255,700 [$2,300 last quarter]. Paid $154,700 prior claims. What little depositors will get on $872,000 owed them cannot be estimated until $61,700 balance on old bills is paid. Heavy loss of $190,500 on assets sold to date, with heavier ones to come. Slow liquidation. Costs: $28,000 to protect assets [$26,300 returned], $12,500 interest, $34,000 clerical, $15,500 legal, $10,000 receivers.

Lincoln Trust and Savings.

LINCOLN TRUST AND SAVINGS — Receipts, $1,609,500 [$21,000 last quarter]. Paid $265,700 prior claims and $845,000, or 30 per cent, of deposits. Further payment this quarter will be only 5 per cent, RFC loan being cut to $179,000. Payout up to 50 per cent indicated in long run. Advanced $237,500 to protect assets [$11,500 last quarter], with $214,700 returned [$7,000 last quarter]. Costs: $126,400 clerical, $85,800 legal, $17,500 receivers. Cash on hand, $31,000.

LOGAN SQUARE STATE SAVINGS—Receipts, $506,000 [$8,000 last quarter]. Paid $251,000 prior claims. What will be paid on $623,000 owed depositors depends on what is left after $199,300 remaining old bills are paid, but indications now point to only 10 per cent. Costs: $103,500 to protect assets [$4,500 last quarter], with $84,600 returned [$5,000 last quarter]; $36,300 interest, $49,000 clerical, $19,300 legal, $6,300 receivers. Cash balance, $41,000.

LYONS STATE—Receipts, $205,500 [$800 last quarter]. Paid $112,300 prior claims and $53,000, or 25 per cent, on deposits. Lucky if as much as 25 per cent more is returned. Costs: $7,400 to protect assets [$6,500 returned], $14,500 clerical, $8,100 legal, $4,000 receivers. Cash, $6,000.

MADISON SQUARE STATE — Receipts, $543,000 [$6,000 last quarter]. Paid $337,500 prior claims [$1,500 last quarter] and $25,300, or 3 per cent, on deposits. Further return depends on what is left after $156,600 old bills are paid; questionable if anything left. Costs: $24,000 to protect assets [$26,500 returned], $17,000 interest [$4,000 last quarter], $34,000 clerical, $28,000 legal, $4,800 receivers. Cash, $22,500. Heavy loss of $383,500, or 41 per cent, on assets sold to date.

WEATHER, TRADE BUYING HELP COTTON UNDERTONE

Freezing weather forecast for parts of Oklahoma and Texas and steady trade buying of the nearby deliveries of cotton gave this market a firmer undertone yesterday.

Further buying of the December delivery against sales of October in New York resulted in the latter dropping to a discount of 36 points at the close, compared with 24 points at the close on Wednesday. Closing trades in Chicago on the old crop months were 3 to 10 points higher, and other markets were 7 points higher to 6 points lower.

A cotton crop of 11,285,000 bales this year is estimated by Nat C. Murray, compared with his figures of 11,410,000 bales a month ago.

Spot cotton closed 5 to 10 points higher with New Orleans 11.45 cents, Houston 11.25 cents, and New York 11.40 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

CHICAGO STOCK TRADE HEAVIEST FOR 27 MONTHS

Shares Sold in October Total 1,988,000.

The Chicago Stock Exchange's October trade was the heaviest in 27 months. The turnover was 1,988,000 shares, the largest since July, 1933, when the volume was 3,207,000. It was the largest October total since 1931, when 2,230,000 shares were traded.

The September total was 1,058,000 shares and August volume was 1,549,000. In 1934 the October volume was only 418,000 shares and the best month of the year was February with turnover of 1,848,000.

Price Changes Mixed.

Price trends were mixed again yesterday, but the balance swung slightly toward gains. Of the 120 issues traded, 47 advanced, 33 were steady, and 40 declined. Twelve issues reached new highs.

Motor accessory shares, led by Houdaille B, rallied from recent doldrums. Houdaille advanced 2 points to a new high in 6,000 share turnover. Bendix Automatic Products, and Cord also improved, though Noblitt and Borg lost.

Continental Steel rose nearly 2 points to a new top of 36½ in a 5,700 share turnover.

Utilities Gain a Little.

Utilities were slightly higher, Edison, Central and South West, Central Illinois Public Service, General Household, Kentucky Utilities, and South West Gas and Electric all showing gains. Public Service dipped ½ point.

Stocks losing as much as a point included Bastian Blessing, Kalamazoo Stove, Monroe Chemical, and Muskegon Motors A.

Cash dividend payments made by companies listed on the Chicago exchange mounted to $12,222,276 in October, the exchange announced last night, against $5,411,217 in September, $10,615,651 in October, 1934, and $6,504,480 in October, 1933. For the first ten months of this year dividend payments totaled $87,100,546, compared with $72,039,574 in the same period of last year and $59,608,806 in 1933.

I. C. C. REJECTS COURT APPOINTEE AS RAIL TRUSTEE

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—An important change in reorganization proceedings of bankrupt railroads became evident to Wall street today when it was revealed in Washington that the interstate commerce commission had rejected the plea of Charles Elsey, president of the Western Pacific railroad, to serve as a trustee for the carrier.

The commission ruling was received with great interest in the financial district because the rejection is the first of its kind.

T. M. Schumacher, chairman of the executive committee of the Western Pacific, and S. H. Ehrman were ratified by the commission. These two, in addition to Elsey, had been appointed trustees by a San Francisco court.

The interstate commerce commission rejected Elsey's application to serve as trustee on the grounds that the intent of congress was to limit the number of appointees as trustees who have had previous connection with the management of a railroad to one person.

Friend of the Coal User

The Friend of the Coal User will supply information on economical use of coal in an attempt to enable users to meet with less loss the added expense which the Guffey coal law is loading on the Chicagoland public. Inquiries should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Items of general interest will be published.

Merits of Coal.

East Chicago, Ind., Oct. 19.—Will you please inform me as to the relative merits of Illinois mine run coal and Pocahontas mine run? Which would be the most economical to use, if Illinois coal costs $5.25 per ton and Pocahontas $8 per ton, in a hot water system? R. F. O.

Answer—At the prices you state there is no question that the Illinois coal would be most economical; but economy is not the only desirable quality in coal. With Pocahontas you will have less smoke, less soot coating in your fire box and flues, and your hot water system will require less frequent firing and cleaning. These qualities should go a long way toward offsetting the difference in the cost of the coal.

How Much Fuel?

Chicago, Oct. 25.—I would appreciate any advice you could give me on the economical use of coal. I have a three flat building and a coal saving device on the furnace. What is the approximate number of tons which should be burned all winter? The flats are each of six rooms. T. D.

Answer—If the general condition of your building is good, the windows equipped with storm sash, the draft attachments of your furnace in good working order, and you are using Pocahontas mine run coal or its equal, you should get through the winter season on about 22 tons.

COMMISSION MEN FIGHT CONTROL BY SEC. WALLACE

Sue to Regain Lost Live Stock Selling Charges.

Seeking to increase the amount of their fees for the sale of live stock, 200 commission men operating at the Chicago Union Stock yards yesterday filed a petition for an injunction in the United States District court to restrain Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and other federal officers from interfering with collections under a new rate schedule they propose to institute today.

The new schedule will increase the present commission rates by approximately 20 per cent, thereby raising them virtually to the level existing before last Feb. 3, when the United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld an order of Secretary Wallace cutting them by one-fifth. This ruling was appealed by a group of commission men, most of whom are among the plaintiffs in the action filed yesterday, to the United States Supreme court where it still is pending.

Acted According to Law.

In the petition filed yesterday by Attorney George I. Haight, the group cited powers granted them under the packers and stock yards act of 1921, to set up their own rates and schedules. Acting under these rights, the petition stated, the brokers made up the new schedule and published it.

While contending that the stock yards act is illegal, the plaintiffs are compelled to proceed under the terms of the act despite the fact that Secretary Wallace on Oct. 26 refused to approve the new rates, the group asserted. The brokers now "are in a dilemma," they said, because they must proceed under the law, but are subject to civil penalties and to criminal prosecution by the secretary if they do collect the higher commission rates.

The new increased rates, the petition asserts, were fixed in "self-preservation" because the brokers' receipts have fallen the lowest this fall since 1882, due to a decrease in the volume of sales and the reduction in commissions made last spring.

Constitutionality Questioned.

The plaintiffs base their rights to an injunction upon their contention that the stock yards act is unconstitutional. The act, they assert, "empowers an administrative officer to issue orders and make determinations without investigation or hearing, and upon his caprice or whim may nullify acts of congress." They assert they are being deprived of their livelihood without due process of law.

Today Federal Judge John P. Barnes and two other judges, as yet unnamed, will sit en banc because the suit involves a question of the constitutionality of a federal act, to determine whether a temporary injunction should be issued.

OCTOBER LARD ADVANCES MAXIMUM AS SHORTS BUY

Belated shorts started to buy October lard in the last few minutes of the session yesterday and found offerings light until the price had advanced 50 cents per 100 pounds, the limit permitted for one day's upturn under exchange regulations. A broker who usually acts for packing interests sold on the upturn.

Distant deliveries were under pressure from liquidating longs. The close was 17½ to 20 cents lower, the January delivery in new ground for the season. Leaf lard declined 75 cents as the result of increased offerings and a slow demand, and was quoted at $13 at the close.

Cash lard was $14.10; loose, $13.87, and clear bellies at $18 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

TAX DECISION HELPS TO BREAK PRICES OF HOGS

Sharp declines in the wholesale markets for fresh pork and a court ruling that ordered Chicago packers to deposit hog processing taxes in escrow pending the outcome of the Supreme court test of the constitutionality of the AAA knocked the props from under hog prices yesterday. The court's decision to tie up millions of dollars, probably for several month, sharply curtailed the buying power of packers, particularly the smaller houses.

Hog prices dipped another 15 to 25 cents yesterday to the lowest levels in almost four months. The market was $1 to $1.25 lower than early last week and $2.90 to $3 under the 1935 highs established in August.

Packers are encountering difficulty in keeping pork supplies moving into retail channels, many of which have been closed to pork in recent weeks due to the prohibitive level of prices artificially maintained by light supplies and the AAA tax throughout the summer.

Declines of 50 cents to $1.50 in pork were reported yesterday.

Top grades of 210 to 230 pound new crop hogs brought $11.60, processing tax included. The average price sank 20 cents to $11.20.

A few long fed steers maintained a steady price basis yesterday, but the bulk of the supply declined 15 to 25 cents. The market for most cattle was adversely influenced by the severe break in hogs. The top was $12.75, and only a small part of the day's run was good enough to bring over $11.75. The bulk sold at $8 to $11.50.

Lambs slumped 25 to 50 cents to the lowest price levels since Thursday of last week, top grades going to packers at $9.50 and below.

HIDE FUTURES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—In the last few days it is estimated around 100,000 hides have changed hands in Chicago, with light weight selections selling at somewhat lower prices. Futures, however, were little affected by the latter development, closing 1 to 3 points lower with sales of 76 lots or 3,040,000 lbs. Closing bids in cents per pound. December, 11.54c; March, 11.87c; June, 12.22c, and September, 12.52c.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Fresh eggs were in fair demand yesterday at unchanged prices. Receipts were 2,569 cases. Butter advanced ⅛ to ⅜c per lb. Receipts were 3,958 tubs. Live hens were steady to ½c lower and ducks, steady to ½c per lb. higher. Receipts were 35 trucks.
